The Intolerance of Tolerance.

By RUTH CAMERON.

Said one of my young friends: "She is so intolerant. There are times when, if she were not so much older than I, I should call her just what I think of her and her narrow views. She has no sympathy with people who think differently from her. I do so hate intolerance."

I wonder how many of us are just like my young friend—possessed of a hatred of intolerance in somebody else.

The tolerant person is the person who "puts up" with everything and everybody. He has his own views; he allows others the same privilege. The so-called, or perhaps I should say self-called tolerant person, is more often the person who is intolerant of somebody else's intolerance.

The Puritans, resenting the lack of religious tolerance in England fled to America. In their homes one might have expected to find religious tolerance. But there was none. The Puritans seeking religious tolerance for themselves, were, for their part, as intolerant of others as their own persecutors had been.

The moment we actively resent or actively attempt to remove anybody else's "intolerance," we are simply letting ourselves become intolerant in turn. We attempt to impress our views on them, which is in itself the very essence of intolerance.

It is true of course that there are times when one must be intolerant for one's own good. A community, for instance, that becomes too tolerant of political abuse, would be overrun by grafting executives.

We should be intolerant of injustice, of deceit, of lying and of many things where it is universally agreed intolerance is wise.

But where we need tolerance—real tolerance—is where there is ground for an honest difference of opinion. That you, of a younger generation perhaps, have no use for the "old-fashioned" views of your elders, does not necessarily brand their views as wrong, any more than their intolerance of your "new-fangled" views makes them right.

And if you feel inclined to criticize intolerance, first ask yourself if there is any intolerance on our part in doing so.

Buffalo Jones

Off to Lasso Gorillas.—A Lady "Reporter" in the Party.

Colonel "Buffalo" Jones, the famous lion-roper, who in his time has captured with the lasso lions, rhinoceroses, hippopotami, leopards and panthers, is going to try his practical hand on a new quarry, the gorilla, one of the most ferocious, as it is the least known of animals. The veteran hunter of the Wild West, who has spent his life facing every kind of wild animal with no other weapon save his lasso, is in London preparing for an expedition to rope gorillas in the French Congo. Four years ago he headed an expedition to British East Africa, where lions and rhinoceroses and rhinoceroses were "lassoed" by the party, as Mr. Cherry Kearton's remarkable photographs afterwards showed. The dangers of this expedition can hardly be exaggerated. Though young gorillas have been brought alive to Europe, fully grown gorillas have never been seen alive in captivity. It is the largest of the man-like apes, and when fully grown is about seven feet high and weighs some 700 pounds. It has a fearsome face, the eyes overhung by a bearding ridge of bone; it is covered with a blackish kind of hair, and is known to be extremely strong, savage and morose.

Raids on Native Women.

It has been known to carry off native women to its nest in the trees of the jungle, whence the women never return. Its roar is described by those who have heard it as being terrific—far louder than that of the lion. The Buffalo Jones expedition is taking a graphophone with it to obtain the first "recording" of gorillas. Buffalo Jones has deep-set glittering eyes, as steady and as quick as the eyes of a wild beast, which look out fearlessly above a hawk-like nose. His face is deeply lined and with his straggling grey hair he looks his age, which is high on seventy, but his bodily and mental alertness is that of a man in his prime. The expedition, consisting of Buffalo Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Meigs, Mr. Macdonald, and Mr. and Mrs. Spinger, leaves Liverpool very shortly for Cape Lopez, in the French Congo. Buffalo Jones introduced us recently to Meigs, a typical "roper-in" southerner that and all, with the blood of the Cherokee Indians in his veins.

Varicose Veins and Itching Piles

Usually Arise From Same Cause—Relief and Cure Effected by Dr. Chase's Ointment.

Nearly everybody knows of Dr. Chase's Ointment as the most effective treatment for piles or hemorrhoids that medical science has ever able to compound. So much suffering and misery arises from this ailment that one is not long in telling his friends when he has found its cure. This accounts for the enormous sales of Dr. Chase's Ointment. This letter tells of relief from the suffering of varicose veins by the use of Dr. Chase's Ointment. Many suffer from this trouble not knowing the comfort to be obtained by the use of this great soothing ointment.

Mrs. R. J. Evans, 187 Huron Street, Toronto, writes: "We have used Dr. Chase's Ointment for years. I have been troubled with varicose veins, and it is the only thing that gives relief. For every purpose when a soothing, healing ointment is needed there is nothing so good as Dr. Chase's Ointment." Dr. Chase's Ointment is sold by J. B. Rose, of Edmonson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

Household Notes

Needlewomen who suffer from damp hands will find it an excellent plan to rub the palms of the hands occasionally with a solution of borax in a little alcohol. When sewing, keep a sponge saturated with the solution at hand and occasionally squeeze it in the palms of the hands. One's hands can be kept from becoming red by taking precautions. Never expose them to extremes of heat or cold. Avoid light gloves. Use moderately warm water to wash them. After drying, rub equal parts of lemon juice and glycerine into gloves when dusting or handling ashes.

such as automobile grease, from children's clothes. The greasy portion of cloth is laid in a small basin and the spot covered with kerosene. Let it stand for an hour or so, then rub the cloth between the hands until the greasy spot disappears.

To clean a sewing machine, use plenty of kerosene. Fill your oil can with it and oil carefully every working part that you can reach. Then sew rapidly on some useless piece of goods to distribute the oil. Then take a chamois skin, or a soft piece of cloth that will not leave lint, and wipe up all the surplus oil.

Spinach soufflé is made by mixing a cupful of cold, cooked, chopped spinach with the well-beaten yolk of an egg; then stir over the fire until the egg is set. Cool, then fold in the stiffly beaten whites of three eggs. Fill a buttered baking dish or individual soufflé dishes, and bake ten or fifteen minutes. Serve immediately.

Carafees can be washed in the following way: Half fill with hot soap-suds, to which add one teaspoon of washing soda. Put in newspaper, torn in small pieces. Let stand one-half hour, shaking occasionally. Empty outside and let stand to dry on side.

When cleaning currants, first run them into a large bowl, and to every pound of currants add a half cup of flour, mix the flour thoroughly through the fruit, and then rub them between the hands until all the stems are rubbed off; then scald, wash in cold water, drain, spread on a pie dish and stand in a cool oven, with the door open, to dry.

Submarine Boats.

By GEORGE FITCH.

Author of "At Good Old Swinsh."

A submarine boat is a boat which dives below the surface of the water and occasionally comes back.

Submarines were invented during the civil war by the confederates and proved to be one of the most devastating of weapons for the Union forces. As fast as enough superior heroic rebels could be gathered together to man a submarine, they would take it down below the surface for a trial trip. Later it would be raised by a derrick and the confederates would kindly report a verdict of accidental death.

Since then submarines have been greatly improved and it is now possible to live in them for whole days, while they are lying on the bottom of the sea. However, in the end the result is usually the same. A great many very brave men have been killed by these awful war machines, but unfortunately they have all been inside the vessels.

The submarine is supposed to slip quietly beneath the surface and to come up later beneath a battleship and blow it several thousand miles past Jerico at one blast. Possibly it may do this some day when there is enough war in the world to allow the boats and a submarine to meet in an unfriendly manner. In the meanwhile, however, the submarine continues to live peacefully for the bottom and to lie there as contentedly as a catfish feeding in the muddy bed of the Missouri River.

The United States owns a large number of submarines which have been far more humane than those of most countries. They travel long distances and do not sink except at the word of command. In the United States, the aeroplane has proved much more fatal to our brave defenders than the submarine, but in foreign nations the self-diving boat is the favorite method of producing quick promotions in the navy.

What is a terrible thing, but not much more terrible than the fear of war, which makes it necessary to stuff a few dozen nery men into a submarine vessel every few months and lay them away to soak in the bottom of the ocean.
