COMPLICATION OF WOMAN'S ILLS

Yields to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Athens, Texas.-"I had a complication of diseases, some of them of long standing. I wrote to you for advice and took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and some other things that you suggested. I must confess that I am much better in every way and have been relieved of some of the worst troubles. My neighbors say I look younger now than I did fifteen years ago."- Mrs. SARAH R. WHATLEY, Athens, Texas, R. F. D. No. 3. Box 92.

We know of no other medicine which has been so successful in relieving the suffering of women, or received so many genuine testimonials, as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

In nearly every community you will find women who have been restored to health by this famous medicine. Almost every woman you meet knows of the great good it has been doing among suffering women for the past 30 years.

In the Pinkham Laboratory at Lynn, Mass., are files containing hundreds of thousands of letters from women seeking health, in which many openly state over their own signatures that they have regained their health by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, many of them state that it has saved them from surgical operations.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

HANDS COVERED

Itched So Kept from Sleeping. Passed the Nights Scratching. Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment Stopped the Itching at Once and Entirely Cured.

69 3rd Ave., Ville Emard, Montreal, Que. -"My trouble started with small pimples on my hands, which itched so that it kept me from sleeping, and I passed the nights scratching it. I did not know what to do with myself. I became so discouraged that I did not have the heart to do my work. My hands were all covered with little watery pimples. For three weeks I had my hands done up to keep them from touching the bed, for I tossed and scratched so that I made them all bloody on the bed-board. I had suffered for three years like this when I saw an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment. I decided to send for samples of them.

"As soon as I received them, I applied the Cuticura Ointment and washed my hands with Cuticura Soap at night before going to bed. This stopped the itching at once. I continued to use them, using not quite two boxes of Cuticura Ointment with the Cuticura Soap, and I was entirely cured. My husband had a burn on one of his hands. He anointed it two nights with Cuticura Ointment and has not felt it since. We have great confidence in Cuticura Soap and Ointment, and I assure you I shall tell all who suffer with the same disease about them." (Signed) Mrs. Roger Hebert, Dec.

Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment are sold by druggists and dealers everywhere. For a liberal free sample of each, with 32-p. book, send post card to Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Dep. 31D, Boston, U. S. A.

Now, Rice had long since recognized that Waverton was a changed man; but he was not prepared for this scornful rehe was not prepared for this scornful repudiation of a special friend and crony. He did not quarrel with the later estimate of the man—in fact, he agreed with it thoroughly—but it gave him a shock, nevertheless, and a hand went cautiously to his shave, upper lip.

"I believe you met him in New York, Mr. Claude," he said in his noncommittal

"That's right, sir. He came back from Arizona five years ago, and—and—"
"Well, out with it!"

"Have you forgotten your cousin, sir?"
"Not likely, poor chap! That is just why I am wondering now why I ever took up with a scamp like Tearle. Of course, no knows the exact facts, and my cousin's death shut down the only source from which they could emerge; but I always had my suspicions that Tearle could say a lot more about that affair than he ever disclosed, and held his tongue because his own share in it was discreditable."

Rice's sallow face actually flushed with and man.

"I'm very glad to hear you say that, Mr. Claude," he cried eagerly. "I always liked your namesake, sir. Nice, affable young gentleman he was, and I couldn't believe he would ever do such things as they said about him in the newspapers. But, for all that, Mr. Tearle an' you were particular friendly before you went to Palm Beach—Particular, you were."

The valet was so unusually voluble and excited that he hardly noticed the shadow of disappointment that crossed Waverton's face for an instant; or, if noticing it, he attributed it to his insistence on the nature of the friendship between his employer and the man they were discussoyer and the man they were discuss-

"If I may venture to say it, Mr. Claude," he went on, "I always thought Mr. Tearle was a bad lot. If it hadn't been There was a pause, for Rice was st obsessed by the notion that Waverte might fly into one of those fits of un governable rage for which he was on

"Go on. Rice. I shan't eat you," an Waverton smiled, for he knew what wa passing in the man's mind,

For a little whi he remained silent, and Rice was yieldir to a subdued amazement at his ow temerity when his employer's comme-showed that he had given more heed the purpose underlying the valet's wor to their form.

"Before returning to New York, Ric want you to understand one thing clea y," he said. "I have broken off entire ly," he said. "I have broken off entirel with the past. I made an ass of myse for years; but all that has gone before idead and done with, in so far as a ma ever can ignore bygone evils. Rice's face lengthened. This questiouched a sore point. "Why, Jubilation be sure, Mr. Claude—Jubilation for t Brooklyn Handleap. I went down a howlever that myself."
"So you did. Never mind, Rice. Ver both are older and wiser, and your salatis doubled from today, so Jubilation rohome at last. No, no thanks. I am goi for a stroll in the park. Have everythin the gready to cross to Lewiston by the after

"Have you forgott that if we go to New York we can't vewell get to The Dene before Monday?" "I know; but I must go to New York and then for the country. I mean to stake Champlain gleaming among t trees at the earliest possible moment." Waverton threw an oddly determin note into his voice as he uttered this conparatively unimportant resolve; and Richard with the continuous round of recovery and Richard Richa paratively unimportant resolve; and Ric busy with the continuous round of pacing valises that had just been emptie realized that he was beginning to learn his master's ways all over again.

True, Claude Waverton was invariable in his right senses nowadays, and he been as invariably befuddled with drift in the past, and the difference between Philip drunk and Philip sober is no nething; but the valet sometimes found him self almost wishing that his employ would take an extra glass of champar. would take an extra glass of champagn or dinner, if only once in a while, so to dispel the uncanny fancy that po

Like every other well-trained English servant, he turned up his nose at the methods of hotels. And this drove from his mind the question why his master did not make the short journey from Montreal to Lake Champlain, if he was so anxious to reach his country home.

"Did we? Who was there last fall? Confound that rap on the head I got at Palm Beach! Every now and then my recollections of people and events jumble together, in the most extraordinary way."

Rice was always puctilious in such matters. "That is Mr. Claude G. Waverton, and I am his valet," he answered.

divorce suit?"
Rice coughed. "I don't discuss my master's affairs." he said dryly.
"Oh, of course not. Pray pardon me.
The question was not meant in any derogatory sense; quite the reverse."

After that the conversation languished but each man was somewhat puzzled, though for widely different reasons. Rice knew little or nothing of the ways and language of French Canada; but once upon a time, not so long ago, he would have matched his lore against Waverton's for more money than he lost over Jubilation.

Another small surprise awaited him in the fact that they went through to New York, where his master preferred the Rice's sallow face actually flushed with pleasure. For an instant even he, Rice, most decorous and discreet of valets, bridged the gulf that separates master bridged the gulf that separates master day had he known what really happened.
