London Girl Guides Parade To St. Paul's Cathedral

Dean Tucker Preaches Sermon On Woman's Place In the World.

The morning service at St. Paul's Cathedral was yesterday given over to the Girl Guides who attended as a unit. The Guides turned out to the number of one hundred, and marched to the cathedral in troops or companies, each unit with its standard-bearer, carrying a Union Jack. The girls presented a splendid picture as they entered the church, each in her regulation blue hat, and blue and white middy.

In honor of the occasion, Dean Norman Tucker gave a splendid address, basing his remarks on the Biblical text, "God created man in his own image, male and female created He them." In expounding his text he stressed the latter half of the quotation in explaining the equality of nen and women. He pointed out that today perfect equality is recognized between men and women in practically every of life. The Girl Guides, he explained, were the newest of the movements which had tended to make this equality tangible.

"The Girl Guides of today," he said.

will become the leading women of tomorrow, and the training that they eceive as Girl Guides will help them n making the most of the splendid equality of women, that has become more apparent of late." He declared that the Guide movement afforded a splendid training ground for the es-sentials which are required in women for the upbuilding of the national

All through the world, he stated, the women were becoming enfran-chised, and in every profession and every walk of life they were holding their own, and in some cases had monopolized certain position. He pointed to Lady Astor and Miss Agnes McPhail as examples of the heights to which women could when marriage was the only career open to women." "At the same time," open to women." "At the same time," he declared, "the fact remains that women will always be filling their most useful and glorious position as wives and mothers. The biggest factor in life of any nation is not the individual, it is not the successful lord of creation, but the family. And in this same connection the wife and mother is the most important unit in the family, and the pivotal center around which the family revolves."

He deplored the fact that divorce Agnes Mcriaii as examples of the heights to which women could attain, and said that there was not a position today that was not open to Guides was bound to become an educational feature in stamping out this cational factor in stamping out this

GORDON-COPPERSMITH. A quiet wedding took place Sunday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents in Grey street, when Lillian coppersmith, daughter of Mr. and B. Coppersmith, was married to Mr. Gordon of Detroit. The cere-mony, which took place at 6 o'clock, was performed by Rabbi Phillips. The bride, who was given in mar-riage by her mother and father, looked charming in a white gown and a wedding veil. Following the ceremony a wedding supper was held. Owing to a recent death in the family only the immediate relatives of the bride and groom were present.

Among the out-of-town guests were: Mr. D. Coppersmith and daughter Annie of New York; Mrs. Shanfield and Misses Sissie and Leah of Chicago; Mrs. Caplan of Canton, Ohio; and small daughter Zelda, and Miss Florence Coppersmith of Chicago. Other relatives were present from Detroit, Windson and Rodney. Mr. and Mrs. Gordon will leave today on a honeymoon to New York and upon their return will reside in Detroit. The bride will travel in a narvella cape, with a platinum fox collar, and a black crepe dress, and a smart black hat.
