Messrs. W. A. A Delicacy at London Breakfasts. Plovers' eggs have not been so plentiful this season (in consequence of the backwardness of the spring) as in some former years, and at some fashionable breakfasts these delieacies are said to have cost £1 per dozen! It is a curious fact that the eggs of the "green-crested lapwings" have from the earliest times commanded what may be called a fancy price; while the finest eggs of our domestic fowls may be purchased for eighteen pence a dozen, plovers' eggs will be charged on some days quite as many shillings. Enormous quantities of these eggs are consumed during the London season, or so long as they can be procured, either at home or abroad, and instances are no- wanting in which, when the eggs of the peewit are not obtainable, the eggs of other birds are sold as the real article.

A very large business is carried on in plovers' eggs from early in March to the middle of June; and so great has become the demand that the most distant fields are searched in order to add to the supply. Formerly enough for London used to be got in the counties of Kent, Essex and Norfolk now they are brought from distant parts of Scotland, as well as from Ireland and from Holland. There are generally four eggs in a plover's nest, and in some season's as many as seven hundred nests have been despoiled in a district; and the stock of birds must really be numerous that can keep up, season after season, such a supply of eggs as we know is required in London

Wheels and Skirts.

From the Philadelphia Record. Bicycling is the ascendency. The recent meets of the various clubs have attached alike the attention of the interested and the curious. Devotees of the sport are becoming more and more enthusiastic. The members of the cycling clubs are now said to number nearly seven thousand. The pastime, aside from the pleasure of spinning along at will over pleasant highways and byways on a bright day, is pronounced healthful, phys-icians, as a rule, having commended the exercise as extremely beneficial. As yet, in this country at least, the male

Elizabeth Walsh was arrested last night in a warrant charged with threatening to urn one John Perry's house.

Ann Quinn was arrested last night on a varrant for being drunk on Queen street, he lives at No. 6 Macdougall's lane, that the present style of woman's dress is inconsistent with this sort of exercise, and any proposed reform as an adjunct to trieycling will be eagerly discussed. It may be that as the tricycle grows in general favor it will herald an unhoped for success to the "rational-dress" movement, and that the "divided skirt" of Lady Habberton may yet have its day. Even men were not blind to the necessity for a change in their own attire, and have very sensibly adopted the small clothes of their ancestors. That point in their case being decided, they are at liberty to devote their undivided attention to the machines they bestride.

In the meantime the inventors are puzzling their brains with devices whereby the greatest speed may be attained with the least exertion; and, surprising as some of the results of their genious have already been, it is safe to assume that cycles are as yet in their rudimentary stage.
