The spring football practices of '99 were marked by a departure from the time-honored custom of a four-team contest. In past seasons four teams were selected from the most promising candidates for football honors, and a series of games played for the championship trophy. The warm weather succeeding the disappearance of the snow this spring necessitated a change in the old regime. Two senior and two junior teams were chosen. The seniors were scheduled to play semi-weekly games while the juniors were forced to content themselves with a weekly encounter. The games were hotly contested throughout and were the means of bringing to the notice of the executive several good players whose ability had not been recognized heretofore. Teams A and B carried off equal honors; the first and last matches going to A. the second and third to B. The players of team C proved themselves superior to those of D by an aggregate score of 4-0.
