We have received the communication of "An English Translator," but think it objectionable, unless the writer will consent to revise it, and omit any part that has not reference to agriculture, or agricultural education. We shall be glad to insert the letter with these alterations, as it is well written.

LIFE.—A modern philosopher has apportioned man's full existence as follows:—

Seven years in childhood's sports and play—	7
Seven years in school from day to day	—14
Seven years at a trade or college life	—21
Seven years to find a place and a wife	—28
Seven years to pleasure's follies given	—35
Seven years by business hardly driven	—42
Seven years for some, a wild goose chase—	49
Seven years for wealth, a bootless race	—56
Seven years for hoarding to your heir	—63
Seven years in weakness spent and care	—70
Then die, and go—you should know where!

Absence and other engagements prevented us from visiting the Panorama of the Crystal

Palace, previous to Friday last, and we regret that the circumstance of this Journal being published on the first day of each month only prevented us from rendering any service to Mr. Barnum, by any notice we could give of it until now, in recommendation of this highly interesting picture of the Crystal Palace, and the Great Exhibition of the Industry and productions of all Nations. Panoramas, well got up, and that of the Crystal Palace is especially entitled to this character, are both interesting and instructive to young and old.

Mr. Barnum deserves general patronage, for having chosen such a subject for a Panorama, and thus affording an opportunity to those who did not see the original, to see the exact representation of, unquestionably, the most interesting Exhibition that has ever taken place, and one in which all Nations were interested, and we hope Mr. Barnum will be amply remunerated for the rich treat he has afforded to the citizens of Montreal by his splendid Panorama.

AGRICULTURAL REPORT FOR MAY.

The month of May commenced with a cold rainy day, but was succeeded by dry cold weather, very suitable for spring work, but not very favorable for vegetation. Had the spring commenced early in April we might have expected cold in May, but after so long and severe a winter, we did hope that the month of May would be beautifully fine, which we regret, it has not been. A cold, harsh wind has prevailed that rendered the soil dry and hard, and in many places difficult to work or plough, and up to the 29th there was scarcely any dew at nights. On the night of the 6th we had some rain, succeeded by very high and cold winds. Rain fell again on the 20th and 21st, accompanied by a very low temperature and a harsh wind. This sort of weather is not by any means favorable for grain lately sown, and just appearing over ground. We have been told that in many places it was very difficult to plough, and we believe a large portion of the land intended to be ploughed last fall was not done, in consequence of the
