The Rev. David Thornburn, D.D., minister of South Leith Free Church, died at Mossaton the 22nd ult, in the Sath year of his age. The son of a Leith merchant, he was educated at Edinburgh University, and was licensed to preach by the Presbytery of Edinburgh in 1831. In that year he became assistant to Dr. Robertsop, of South Leith, and on the death of the latter two years later was ordained winister of the second charge. Thus at the time of his death Dr. Thorburn had been a minister in Leith for sixty years. He joined the Free Church at the Diaruption of 1843, and was one of those who marched from St. Andrew's Church to Canomilla hall. Dr. Thorburn was for many years a prominent figure at the meetings of the General Council of Edinburgh University. He gave the first impulse to the movement which resulted in the formation of the society for the better endowment of that University, and in recognition of his services the University conferred on him the degree of Doctor of Divinity a sew years ago.

Mr. Wallace, who is the first minister of his present charge, was proviously paster of Pres byterian congregations at Woolwich, Birmingham (New John street), and Shrewshury. The Torquay congregation has been greatly weakened of late v-ars by the decline in the popularity of that ace fashionable watering-place.

As USUAL, a goodly number of ministers from beyond the Tweed have been occupying London Presbyterian pulpits during august, in the case of the ordinary pastors. Owing to the excessive heat, and the consequent exodus from the metropolis of all who could excape to the country or seaside, the attendances have in many cases been small. Among the Scottish preachers who have filled London pulpits during part of August were the following:—Rov. J Niblock-Stuart, B.A., of Stirling; Rov. James Jack, M.A., of Chapeltall, Andric; Rev. Alex. Taylor, M.A., of Kirkintilloch; Rev. Donald David, 51., of Canisby, Caithness, Rev. J. W. D. Carruthers, of Stewarton; Rev. J. Hallday, M.A., of Peterhead, Rev. James M. Swanson, M.A., of Lochmaben, Dumfriesshire, and the Rev. John Jeffray, ordained Free Church evangelist. A number of the Metropolitan pulpits were supplied by English Presbyterian ministers from the Provinces.

The meetings of the North Wales WALES. Calvinistic Methodist Association were highly successful this year. Statistics showed that the churches had a total membership of 15,000, while the ministers, preachers and deacons numbered 500. The chapel debts were estimated to reach £40,000, a sum of £5,000 having been paid off during the year. The total sum of collections during the year was £20,000, of which £7,000 had gone in support of the ministry.

The annual report of Queen's College, Bolfast, has just been is sued by the president, Dr. Hamil ton, from which it is evident that that institution continues its boneficient work with distinguished success. Among the events of the year were the resignation of Professor Redfern, of the chair of auatomy and physicology which he had held for thirty three years, and the death of Professor R. F. Dill, who had occupied the chair of midwifery for twenty-five years. Both positions are at present vacant, and there is much speculation as to who may be appointed to fill them. During the year a new chair has been established, bearing the name of "The Dunville Professor ship of Physiology," and provided with an endowment of £210 per annum. This is the first chair established in the college through private beneficence. The number of students attending in the various faculties was as follows:—In arts 166, medicine 243, law 24, ongineering 13; and of this total 390 came from various parts of Ulster. Efforts are on foot to add in various ways to the equipment of the college, and its future is in all respects full of hope and promise.

Rev. Dr. Moore contributes a very suggestive letter to the Publicat Witness.

REV. Dr. Moore contributes a very sug gestive letter to the Bellast Witness on the Social Life of Spain. Dr. Moore, who has spend over twenty years in the country as the Assembly's missionary, can speak with author try, and the picture he presents in connection with home life and the moral condition of the cloray is in certain respects a very painful one. Under such circumstances it is not to be wondered at if missionary progress is slow in Spain.

REV. HENRY MILLER, UNITED STATES. Kentucky, has just well comed a score of converts to his church near Middleaborough. He writes to the Christian Observer: Rev. W. A. Slaymaker kindly assisted me fifteen days. I determined to unitate the example of others who continue meetings until they reap. I modestly suggest that this may be the secret of an occasional seeming failure in Presbyterian meetings. If our twelve hundred ministers would, every one, conduct a meeting in a destitute part of his own field or an adjoining one, during the fall, making the ruling principle the perseverance that should over characterize the saints, the seed sown would certainly produce a harvest of souls numbered by tens of thousands, and the light would begin to break in upon the solution of the difficult question of Home Missions. The solution of that question is in the hands of our pastors. There is nothing more delightful than to bring souls to Christ, and that felicity is most when we bring those of our own community.

The Synod of the United Presbyterian Church, at its recent meeting, elected Rev. John A. Wilson, D.D., Professor of Ecclesiastical and Church History in Westminster College, at Wilmington, Pa.

EvangeList Evans has recently been holding special meetings in Bessemer, Ala., preaching during the day and in the evening. As the result thus far, sixty-seven individuals have united with the Southern Presbyterian church, while perhaps a score will go to other churches of the place.
