

seismic as well as non-seismic — will likely constitute the most effective verification approach for nuclear test bans.