not in any way preclude practicing in Grades higher than VI.

PROF. HUGHES: Direct supervision, both by the school principal and his colleagues in the school, also by myself and by my colleagues. My training in the first three, but in actual practice it would not happen.

THE PRINCIPAL: Do you find that to be helpful and useful? MESURIER: Don't these people need instruction

in the art of handling very young children in classes?

PROF. HUGHES: Yes, in all my experience of teacher training for the last eighteen years.

THE PRINCIPAL: It was the conclusion of the Committee that the candidates for High School diploma who had

that training was held qualified?

PROF. HUGHES: It is very impressive.

PROF. HUGHES: Yes, to this extent. We believe the

DEAR BRITAIN: A considerable number did teach in school practice should be done partly in the High Primary Schools.

Schools and partly in the Grades with younger children-we do believe that. It says that at least one third should be done in Primary Schools, the first line of

_____ : It was suggested to us that putting them in to Grades 1 to III was a waste of time, but IV to XI, all right. I think that is a very sound suggestion.

Having in mind that those who teach High School should have experience in teaching lower grades.

DR. WOODHEAD: Then, this should be amended, instead of

1 to VI, it should be IV to VI.
