thro' my hand and wrift, which disabled me from loading my gun. I however found means to keep my people from being intimidated by this accident; they gallantly kept their advantageous fituation, till the fire ceased on both fides. The enemy, during the action, used many arts and stratagems to induce us to fubmit, fometimes threatening us with feverity if we refused, affuring us that they every moment expected a large reinforcement, which should cut us to pieces without mercy: at other times flattering and cajolling us, declaring it was a pity so many brave men should be lost; that we should, upon our surrender, be treated with the greatest compassion and kindness; calling me by name, they gave me the strongest assurances of their esteem and friendship that words could do; but no one being disinayed by their menaces, or flattered by fair promises, we told them our numbers were sufficient, and that we were determined to keep our ground as long as there were two left to stand by each other.

After the action, in which we had a great number so severely wounded that they could not travel without affistance, and our ammunition being nearly expended, and considering that we were near to Ticonderoga, from whence the enemy might easily make a descent, and
