BASKETBALL TEAMS DEFY THE A. A. U.

Varsity Played Outlaw Team on Recent Trip and Mel Brock Is Under the Ban.

Mel Brock has run foul of the Amateur Athletic Union of the United States, and if the ruling is upheld by the Canadian A. A. U., the Olympic middle-distance champion will be out of amateur sports. The trouble came thru the Varsity basketball team, of which Brock is a member. On the recent trip Varsity disqualified itself by playing against Rockville Centre, a team under the A. A. U. ban. Says The New York Sun: Every Christmas holiday season the basketball situation provides a peek of trouble for the officials of the Amateur Athletic Union, who feel it incumbent on them to control this sport never had to face such a general outbreak of unannounced games and the resulting disqualified players as exist at present. Roving college teams are not the only ones responsible for the revolt against the A. A. U. of Brooklyn maintains an unregistered team in defiance of the A. A. U., and to bring the matter closer home several clubs in the Metropolitan Association have had their teams disqualified for playing unregistered players.

The Crescent A. C. has started the ball rolling merely for the season by playing games with Manhattan College, Fordham University, St. John's University and Polytechnic Institute. These teams are disqualified, but the mischief does not end there, for in due course all the other teams that play against any of these disqualified ones will meet with the same fate. Not only that, but the players will be barred from competing in all sports over which the A. A. U. has jurisdiction. The exclusion of all these teams from the benefit of the A. A. U. competitions apparently did not disturb the equanimity of the Crescent A. C. managers, or those of the colleges. The Brooklyn club went calmly ahead with the arrangements for the game scheduled with Yale University. Further than that, the registration committee asserts that the West Point team has contracted the name of playing against athletic club teams, and that the colleges are disqualified. The middle will be in the same boat shortly, as it is said that the Crescents have made arrangements to go to Annapolis to play the navy team.

One far-reaching effect of the disqualification of the regulations for the control of basketball is found in the case of the Toronto University team, that disqualified itself by playing against the Rockville Centre team. One of the Toronto players is Mel Brock, one of the best middle-distance runners in the world, a member of the last Olympic team.

In addition to the teams named, the following have been disqualified: Tripoli Club, Brooklyn; Club Roseville, Bath Beach, and Visitation Club, Brooklyn. The officials of the Amateur Athletic Union have determined on drastic measures.

Toronto Athletics for Buffalo. There are 233 entries for the eight events on the program in Buffalo Saturday night. General Lister's Toronto relay walking team, composed of Freeman, Kelly, Martens and Russell, which meets the All-Canada aggregation, composed of Kapperman, Whitham, Cobb and Gavin, had their final workout last night, and they show up at Buffalo like this: Lister will be satisfied with the result. This is the feature event, and the Buffalo men would like to put one over on them, but are not likely to. Toronto, sending no novices for the running events, and for the open events Taft, Brock, and Phillips. The Toronto sports go by the Phillips. The Toronto sports go by the Phillips. SHARPSHOOTER'S UNUSUAL GRIT

During the siege of Lucknow in the Indian mutiny there was afforded what was probably the most notable instance of the record in war of a crack shot. The rebels were endeavoring to mount two eighteen-pounders, which they had hauled up to the flat roof of one of the palaces surrounding the residency, and it was necessary to prevent this being done, or they would have been able to pour down a heavy fire on the defenders. Sergeant Halliwell was chosen for this duty. He was a crack shot of the Thirty-second foot.

Being given the best rifle that could be found, his orders were to prevent the guns being mounted. He took up his position behind some battered down shutters, where there was only cover for him to lie at full length. He remained in that position, it is said, for several days, not being able to stand, inasmuch as that would have resulted in instant death. His only change was to roll over from his back to his stomach. His eyes were ever kept on the dismantled guns, and whenever the Sepoys attempted to mount them his unerring rifle played havoc among them and prevented their object being accomplished. Food was brought to him at night by men who

After some time a sortie was made and the Sepoys were defeated. For this brave work Sergeant Halliwell received the Victoria Cross.—Harper's Weekly.

RUG MAKING AT GREAT SPEED

An invention, which is said to have created considerable interest among textile manufacturers, is a rug-making machine which will make clipped rugs thirty inches wide by six feet in length at the rate of sixty an hour. When it is considered that no less than 2500 cloth clips are needed for each rug, says Popular Mechanics, and that these are picked up automatically by the machine, placed in the canvas and the rug completed all within the space of one minute, the capability of the machine must indeed be great.

The only manual labor connected with the rug making is said to be the cutting of the cloth clips. An idea of the saving both in time and cost may be gained from the fact that at present it takes one rug maker four hours to produce one rug and the cost is $35.50 per hundred. It is said the new machine will produce them at a cost of $6.05 per hundred.

The most interesting feature of the machine is the spring clips which automatically pick up the cloth strips from the flexible platform and convey them to the machine.

Choosing Right Sort of Hobby

Many Men Fall Into Error of Assuming That Their Distraction Must Be Dignified.

Writing on the advantage and enjoyment that a busy man will derive from a hobby, Arnold Bennett says in The Metropolitan:

"In choosing a distraction—that is to say, in choosing a rival to his business—he should select some pursuit whose nature differs as much as possible from the nature of his business, and which will bring into activity another side of his character. If his business is monotonous, demanding care and solitude rather than irregular, intense efforts of the brain, then let his distraction be such as will make him reach out upon his brain. But if on the other hand the course of his business runs in crises that string up the brain to its tightest tension, let his distraction be a foolish and merry one.

"Many men fall into the error of assuming that their hobby must be as dignified and serious as their vocations, the surely the example of the greatest philosophers ought to be followed. They seem to imagine that they should continually be improving themselves in either body or mind. If they take up a sport, it is because the sport may improve their health. And if the hobby is intellectual it must needs be employed to improve their brain.

"The fact is that their conception of self-improvement is too narrow. In their restricted sense of the phrase they possibly need improving. They possibly are already improved to the point of being a nuisance to their fellow creatures; possibly they need less improving. In the broad and full sense of the phrase self-improvement, a course of self-worsening might improve them."

"I have known men—and everybody has known them—who would approach nearer to perfection if they could only acquire a little carelessness, a little absent-mindedness, a little illogicalness, a little irrational and incoherence in the nature of the time of day. These considerations should be weighed before certain hobbies are dismissed as being unworthy of a plain man's notice."

Siberia's Great Wealth. Siberia, with its valuable timber, minerals and vast areas of land awaiting the hand of the enterprising Canadian, and must one day be opened up still more to western civilization. To this day, when the traveler once leaves resort to the old system of "poaching," a wonderful system in itself, but still somewhat out of date, "poaching" and "wild towns" exist in Siberia 500 miles from the railway, all communities between them and the world being dependent upon the "wild towns" "tarantass."—Wide World Magazine.
