BASQUES AND NORMANS.

available material which had been gathered from the Atlantic seaports had not yet reached a conception of this great watery portal of a continent which lies back of Newfoundland. That there could not have been knowledge of this obscure gulf in some of the seaports of northern and western France

L'auvent Sur One torce de Embouchure Du Flenne De Bois: Envoice De Canada

Jegan Tenue

9

JEAN DENYS (alleged Map), 1506. [Reduced from a Tracing furnished from the Archives at Ottawa.]

may indeed admit of doubt; and perhaps some day a dated chart may reveal the fact. We need not confidently trust the professions of Michel and other advocates of the Basques, and believe that a century before Cabot their hardy fishermen had discovered the banks of Newfoundland, and had even penetrated into the bays and inlets of rent than La t these new ast of Asia, e landlocked and in this e of Vespucontinental Vest Indies, orth Ruysch e unmistak-

C.VERDE

olemy of 1508

t dissever y towards

with the