

A WIFE'S GRATITUDE

Husband Got Drunk Twice a Day.

He Gave Him Tasteless Samaria Prescription—He Now Brings His Wages Home—Doesn't Take a Single Drop.

"How could I ever prove you my gratitude for the happiness I have enjoyed through your simple remedy for the cure of the drink habit? My husband was such a drunkard that he got drunk twice a day. Since taking your Samaria prescription he has not taken a single drop, and the money he earns comes home to the family. I feel it will be an obligation to me now to recommend the great cure of the drink habit to all my friends and relations."—Mrs. C. Beuchard.

SUNSTROKE GAVE ELI HYMAN A MANIA

When Eli Hyman had gathered together a considerable sum of money again he invested it in Toronto loan company stocks. His investments appreciated at a rapid rate, and in a few years he was nearly $100,000 to the good. Consumption Can Be Cured.

Marvelous Discovery by the Famous Dr. Yonkerman of Kalamazoo, Mich.—State Officials and Great Medical Men Pronounce. It the Only Genuine Cure for Consumption and Lung Troubles.

Consumptives Given Up to Die and Sent Back From California Hopeless and Helpless are Now Alive and Well Through This Wonderful Cure for Consumption.

A Free Package, Containing Sufficient to Convince the Most Skeptical, Sent, Prepaid, to All Who Write.

DR. D. P. YONKERMAN, the Discoverer of Tuberculozoyne, the Only Cure for Consumption.

Consumption can at last be cured. Marvelous as it may seem after the many failures of a sure, positive and certain cure for the deadly consumption has at last been discovered by Dr. D. P. Yonkerman, a great Michigan doctor, who has made a life study of this fatal disease. His wonderful remedy has been fully tested and rigidly proved a cure by state officials, and noted medical men all over the world testify to its power to kill the dread germ that causes consumption. The doctor makes no secret of the ingredients of his wonderful cure, believing that the people are entitled to sending free treatment all over the world. He has a knowledge of certain rare herbs from this world, and the eminent scientists as Koch, Lillien, Pasteur and all the great medical and germ specialists and chemists have already repeatedly declared that the consumptive germ cannot live a minute in the presence of the

made up his mind when the Spanish-American war broke out. Eli's old fear of war and the war tax asserted itself, and he made up his mind to continue yet awhile in Canada. From that time, however, he showed an intention of leaving for the safety of the institutions in which his wealth was deposited. No less than $250,000 of his money was in the Canada Cycle and Motor Company. When that stock depreciated, Eli Hyman had an attack of nerves, and at the meeting of the shareholders he delivered an address that will long be remembered by the other shareholders present.

An Enfold Tale. "Show me Mr. Cox, show me Mr. Cox," he demanded as soon as he found his feet. The rest of his story is too hysterical for print. It is known that Eli Hyman had a sister in New York and it is believed he had children in San Francisco. The peculiar characteristics noted by the people of Churchville was his anxiety to be unknown to the people among whom he circulated. When anyone addressed him as Eli Hyman he indignantly repudiated his identity, and he would even take his interrogator aside and caution him not to make the mistake again. It is said that several hundred dollars of the money he hoarded came from the sale of newspapers that he begged from people and from newspaper offices and then sold on the street.

The villagers tell wondrous tales of the eccentric doings of the late Eli. He was wont to wander thru the woods in the neighborhood, pick up dead fowls and other refuse and take it home to feed his chickens. The local storekeepers never bartered goods for eggs with Eli. He was known to go to Brampton and order a side of beef after beating the butcher down to the lowest possible point of profit. He always stipulated that the beef should be delivered to Churchville, five miles away. He would get home before the butcher got there, and then send his wife to refuse the beef unless the price was lowered. The butcher generally compromised rather than take back his beef.

"Speak no evil of the dead" does not form part of the villagers' creed. Everyone you meet seems keen to call the old man names that do not signify virtue. Eli, while in the flesh, had the reputation of always putting his nose into other people's business. He got many a reward for informing on wrongdoers. It was this propensity to nosy about everything that caused him to be nearly choked to death by a villager against whom he had laid information for having smuggled jewelry into Canada.

Claims Kinship. Mrs. Esther Wertheimer of San Francisco filed a claim in Osgoode Hall yesterday that, as a daughter of Eli Hyman, she was entitled to a share in the fortune. She claims her mother died in 1868. Thomas Mulvey, on her behalf, seeks a declaration that she is the lawful next of kin to Eli Hyman or Henry Davis, or Henry Zolinski, and for the administration of the estate. The suit is entered against Mrs. Hyman here and the National Trust Co., administrators of the estate.

Whom Lord Rosebery is to wed former belle from Kentucky. His engagement to Mrs. Alice Carr Chauncey, sister of Lady Newbrough, is announced. Louisville, Ky., Jan. 16.—A romance in real life, before which the most amazing fiction pales into insignificance, came to light in a letter received from Mrs. Josephine Armstrong of Louisville, who is now in Switzerland, announcing the engagement of Mrs. Alice Carr Chauncey to Lord Rosebery, former Premier of the United Kingdom.

Beyond the statement that the engagement existed no details were given in the letter. It simply states that Lord Rosebery had been very attentive to Mrs. Chauncey for several weeks, which they have been spending on the Riviera, and that the engagement was announced in a courtship which began when the couple met at Cannes a few weeks ago.

The Famous Carr Girls. This engagement recalls the history of the famous Carr girls, who were once belles of Kentucky.

Hardly fifteen years ago the Carr family resided on a farm near Madison, Ind., the father being a small farmer, which barely yielded the necessities of life. While on a visit to this country the girls, both named Bell, well-to-do carpenter, who became interested in them and invited them to visit his home in the modest home a few miles from Louisville.

The visit was prolonged into weeks, and then into months, until the girls met Dr. William Griffith, a wealthy practitioner of this city, who was attracted by their remarkable beauty, and volunteered to educate them. The invitation was accepted, and the result that the Misses Carr in time became two of the most popular girls in Kentucky.

Married to Millions. Eleven years ago, while Alice was spending the summer at an Atlantic seaside resort, she met and married Samuel Sloan Chauncey, young, handsome and many times a millionaire. Their marriage life, extending over a term of seven years, was untroubled, only a fainting fit in the death of Mr. Chauncey in 1890. He bequeathed his widow two millions.

The remarkable resemblance to one another, both being tall and having a wealth of Titan hair, and many resembling, two years ago, while cruising in the Mediterranean, Lord Newbrough met, wooed and married Grace Carr. Their marriage in London is still remembered as a brilliant event. They now have one of the finest court seats in England.

WESTERN FORESTERS GATHER LIVING, THE PASSING AS DEAD

Union Meeting in Occident Hall. Proves Success as Promoter of Social Intercourse.

Address by HARRY COLLINS, S. T. LAST MONTH HE WAS REPORTED DEAD

Magnificent Showing of the Order Dealt With and its Financial Standing Discussed.

A united meeting of the Independent Order of Foresters of the Western courts of the city was held last evening in Occident Hall, Bathurst and Queen-streets. There was a very large attendance, and the proceedings were mainly of a social nature, an excellent program being provided.

Master Arthur Sargent's song was unanimously entered and he responded by singing "The Admiral's Broom." This young boy soprano has a remarkably clear and expressive voice, and his name is becoming deservedly popular. Three costume songs, by Harry Lloyd Sargent, a fitting contrast to James Heary's solo, "Boys Will be Boys," the chorus of which was taken up by the audience.

T. E. Kyle is a clever monologist, one of the refined type, and his easy delivery, no less than his clear enunciation and dry humor, held the audience spellbound until the end of some thirty minutes. The speaker then delivered a paper on the subject of "The Forester as a Social Reformer," in which he gave an opportunity for an outburst of laughter. Mr. Kyle is an entertainer of a very high order.

Wm. Moore of the McDonald Male Quartet sang "An Old-Fashioned Mother" and "Mary's Angels." His manner is his voice, and both are charming. The accompanist, E. Charles, was the right man in the right place.

Address by Harry Collins. Perhaps the main feature of the evening was the short but stirring address of Harry Collins, S. T., who stated at the commencement of his speech that the condition of the Order of a social nature, he would not more than touch on the business side of Forestry. He referred to the address of the Bible into the public schools, because after perusing it carefully, he had found some of the passages which he thought were worthy of being read in the schools of the City of Toronto.

Mr. Collins was proud to say he was an Irishman, and that he was a member of the Order of Foresters. He referred to the progress of the I.O.F., which, in 21 years, had advanced from a deficit of $100,000 to a surplus of $1,000,000, and a membership of 200,000.

At the Fraternal Congress in Denver last year, 53 societies were represented, 52 of which were of United States origin and the other Canadian, the I.O.F. This society had a better financial backing than any of the 52.

The speaker made a glowing tribute to Orinby's exertions, the S. C. R., to whose indefatigable exertions and brilliant genius the rise and growth of the order was mainly due. He urged strongly upon the young men the advisability of joining the order at once, while the "evil days" come not, and thought that men who loved their wives, who loved their homes, who were ready to sacrifice a moiety of the good things of this world for the benefit of a thousand-fold greater, should see to it that they provided for their dear ones and their homes.

The I. O. F. was pre-eminently a workingman's order, for whoever was the Foresters' flag to protect the fearless, would find the hand of fellowship extended to him bidding him come into the joy and protection it afforded.

This was the true way to protect the Foresters' flag, to protect the grand old Union Jack and cause the Maple Leaf to flourish forever.
