MUST CONSCRIPT WEALTH AS WELL AS LABOR OR WORKERS WILL NEVER BE SATISFIED

Recommendation From Executive to Delegates.

DEMAND FOOD CONTROLLER

Oppose All Efforts for Military Training in Schools.

PLAN INDEPENDENT PARTY

Convention Called to Consider Formation of Political Organization.

WHAT WAS DONE.

No resolution concerning conscription. Call for appointment of food controller.

Demand taxation of war profits.

Demand nationalization of industries.

Opposed military training in the schools.

Demand union conditions for Hydro employees.

Arrange convention to form independent party.

Elected new officers.

No resolution in regard to labor's attitude on conscription was passed by the 119 delegates to the Labor Educational Association of Ontario in convention here at the Masonic Hall on Thursday. The general feeling of the meeting was that the matter should be left to the executive of the Dominion Trades and Labor Council and that it should not be hampered by any premature expression of opinion on the part of other units throughout the country.

Conscription Wealth.

A recommendation by the executive committee read as follows:

"Since the convention call has been issued, and within the past week, the policy of the Government upon the question of conscription has been promulgated. It is a question with which this convention will deal, but we believe that any scheme that does not conscript wealth as absolutely as it does labor will not be acceptable to the workers of Canada, that the food supplies, the railroads, and the mines, and all the natural sources of wealth, shall also be conscripted and administered in the interests of the commonwealth. It will be, however, for this convention to take what action it may see fit and place the labor movement of the province squarely on record on a question so fraught with significance to every man, woman or child, within the borders of our Dominion."

Sent To Executive.

Immediately following the reading of the recommendation Delegate James Simpson, Toronto, moved that it be referred to the Dominion executive council which meets at Ottawa on June 1.

"Why should the convention be concerned with the demand?" Delegate Keene. "It is proposed within a few days to interfere with the right of a man over his own body and I think that there should be some discussion."

Other delegates were in favor of holding the discussion that representatives of the Dominion council might learn the consensus of opinion. They did not ask for a resolution.

H. L. Vivian of Toronto, claimed that if conscription were to come into effect without provisions for organized labor trouble was bound to arise. He asked if it would be fair to draft a machinist into the engineers, and from there to the munition shops at $1.20 a day, instead of the $4 which most of the munition makers are receiving.

Trying To Force It.

Another delegate deprecated the importation of labor from other provinces filling the places of men here and compelling them to enlist. If conscription were worked out on a representative basis he claimed that Ontario would have few to send.

Delegate R. Hessel of London, asserted that the movement interested in making a concerted effort to force conscription, selective or otherwise. They were attempting, he said, to have the Canadians drafted that they might fill their places with foreigners and better control the wage scale.

Delegate Altshuler maintained that if a discussion were held it would merely reveal organized labor's hand.

"Let it go to those who have the power to move to tie up the mines and the street cars and other necessities," said Delegate Manse of Toronto. The motion carried by a heavy majority.

Discuss Qualification.

At the morning session discussion of necessary qualifications in the way of the union labels was the first business before the convention. Some of the delegates moved to have the qualification abolished. Others claiming that there was a concerted effort on the part of the manufacturers to abolish the label urged that the resolution remain. A motion that all the delegates register stating the number and kind of labels on their clothing was carried.

A motion to give to international delegates not appointed to the convention by their unions the right to speak and vote was ruled out of order by the chairman, who claimed it as an amendment to the constitution.

Discussing the union label recommendation, a machinist's delegate called on the delegates to demand the union labels on all their tools. This he said was not being done and the machinists, one of the basic unions, was being "buckled" by nearly every other trade union. The automobile industry particularly he said was one of the chief offenders in this way.

Recommendations of the executive were presented and carried as follows:

Two-Day Conventions.

The experience of the past year, and more especially of the last two months, proved that the time has come when the growing work of the Labor Educational Association can no longer be transacted in a one-day convention. It is therefore recommended that the holding of morning, afternoon and evening sessions, and it is, therefore, the first recommendation of your executive that the constitution be amended to provide for a two-day session hereafter.

Larger Executive.

Experience has proven, as a rule, wherever an executive member of the organization is stationed, there is a feeling of responsibility engendered. This has tended most materially to advance the work of the organization, and your executive would recommend that the number of executive members be increased to nine in order to give more adequate representation thereon to every section of the province.

Advocate Active Committee.

The time has come for every man to declare himself. Joseph Marks, editor of the Industrial Banner, said: "I have never seen a time more favorable for the labor movement than the present." declared Fred Bancroft, Toronto. "If you don't want the lobbyist, you've got to get down to the political action of some sort."

Delegate James Richards, Toronto, said that he had never seen a time when so many were anxious to change their party. "The people want independent political action. We want to be in a position where we can take some action at the next Dominion election."

Urges Action.

James Simpson urged that action be taken along the lines of the Independent Labor party of Great Britain. An amendment moved that this point be referred to the executive council. The motion was adopted.

schools were being made the kindergarten. At this juncture Mayor Stevenson welcomed the delegates in a short speech. The city was not backward in the matter of municipal ownership, he said, but moves in that direction had been opposed at every step by private interests. The municipal organizations were all paying good dividends, he said, and he believed that the street car system should also belong to the people.

One of the most important factors in the fight for municipal ownership today, he said, was the street car system. He declared that the time for bonusing railroads had gone.

Call Convention.

After debating for more than an hour, the convention adjourned. The convention last night adopted a resolution pledging the convention to give its support to the labor party in the election for the secretary to call a convention from each union, to form a provincial independent political party as soon as possible.

The motion adopted was the outcome of a debate between J. Everett of Cobalt. "In view of the fact that the laboring class and farmer have had repeated success in the election of federal members of parliament, we, the delegates of the Cobalt Miners' Union, move that the labor party be formed, and a per capita tax levied to form a central fund to send strikers and organizers to outside districts."

Might Be Determined.

"The motion if adopted would be a detriment to organized labor," said Delegate Simpson. "It would mean to the unionists organizations breaking up. Organized labor stands for anything but a per capita tax levied to form a central fund to send strikers and organizers to outside districts."

"You cannot pervert this into a political party because it contains men of different religious and different party affiliations," said Delegate Simpson. "I am a Tory. I was a Tory," he said, "but although I am only a working man, I consider that the party to which I belonged was not honorable. I withdrew my support from it and I will do the same if I voted before I was 21."

James Simpson urged that action be taken along the lines of the Independent Labor party of Great Britain. An amendment moved that this point be referred to the executive council. The motion was adopted.

During the session the convention adopted a motion by James Simpson of Toronto, seconded by Angus McDonald, that the association urge upon the executive council the immediate necessity of calling upon the Federal Government to appoint a special committee or commission to inquire into the possibilities of utilizing the advance in aerial navigation during the war, and that the work be undertaken with a view of the Government preventing all private or corporate control of aerial transportation for commercial purposes.

New Officers.

George L. Myland of Peterboro was elected president for the ensuing year. The vice-presidents named were: First, Jack Lawlor, London; second, Dr. Heist, Kitchener; third, Harry Everett, Cobalt; fourth, John Bragg, Hamilton; fifth, John McNichol, Niagara Falls; sixth, C. Stinson, Ottawa; seventh, J. H. Joseph, Joseph. Joseph Marks was re-elected secretary-treasurer.

Niagara Falls was chosen as the next place in which to hold the convention, receiving 48 of the 68 votes polled. Delegates will go on a trip on the L. and P. S. R. today.

At the afternoon session the following resolution with regard to hydro radicals was adopted in place of the recommendation of the executive committee in the morning.

Are opposed.

"That this convention go on record as strongly opposed to any provincial or federal government granting any franchises, renewal of franchises, or extension of franchises, or any privilege whatever, to any private corporation seeking to compete with any project initiated by the Ontario hydro-electric commission, and, further, that while we appreciate the magnanimous service rendered the people of Ontario by Sir Adam Beck in his fight against the private corporations, we emphatically protest against the administration of the business of the commission on the basis of engaging men at lower standards of wages and longer hours of employment than the private corporations, whose privileges we are arranging to destroy, and call upon the incoming executive of this association to appear before Sir Adam Beck and demonstrate that in all undertakings of the commission nothing less than union conditions apply; and, further, that Sir Adam Beck and his colleagues on the commission be assured that unless these conditions are observed that the association will be compelled to force the question to the people of the province, and demand the acceptance of a new policy acceptable to organized labor."

National Storage.

It was moved by Fred H. Barrett, Cobalt, that the convention request the Dominion Government to (1) nationalize the cold storage plants by taking them under government operation and control; (2) eliminate speculation in food by prohibiting gambling with the necessities of life, which goes on at the stock exchanges, and particularly the grain exchanges."

2. Appoint a food controller, absolutely free from suspicion of the charge of being interested financially in the producing of food, and appoint an advisory committee with representatives nominated by organized labor to aid in the work to control food prices and protect the people from exploitation.

4. Enact legislation to tax war profits to pay for this war, as far as possible, while it is in progress; to obtain revenue from profits made during the war.
