To the Editor of The Advertiser:

I should like to ask through your paper why Mr. F. Young classes all the men who were returned from England "unfit for fighting in France" with his friends who so openly admit that it was their own fault they did not reach France. No doubt these were the same men who headed the peace parade in London. My husband happens to be one of those men who evidently consulted the (Riley) F. Young mentioned, but he would have scorned to march in the peace parade with the war vetterans, neither does he lay claim to being one, but if the Government paid him another three months' pay it would not make up to him or me and my little kiddies for his impaired health, brought on through camp life and long marches. It is a long step from office life to soldiering, and when a man returns to find a single man in his place and his work

Nothing seems too foolish for the enemies of Russia to send out in their Nothing seems too foolish for the enemies of Russia to send out in their effort to blacken the democratic movement there. I see that the Danish ambassador says they are a menace to Europe. He would hardly say anything else, seeing that he represents a royal house related up closely to the half-imbecile creature who for years past was the dictator of Russia and the power that swayed lives of 180 million people. This is the day of the 180 million people, and czars and their like must go, wherever they may be. This Danish ambassador is typical of the people who are being quoted as besmirching Russia. It is always Count This or Count That, his excellency, his grace, his royal highness or something of that kind. But make no mistake, the labor men of Great Britain are not fooled, the British privates are not fooled, the Canadian rank and file are not fooled, and Canadian rank and file are not fooled, and Canadian rank and file are not fooled, and canadian labor is not fooled. At the peace conference we see plain evidence that the representatives of Great Britain and the United States are sympathetic with the Russian movement, and anxious tese that people work out its own salvation. Despite the Milners and the Curzons and the Cecils, also feudal in their thought, there is no intention of sending an allied force into Russia. This fact makes it pertinent to ask why Canadian should be called upon by her governors at Ottawa to send a force to Siberta to uphoid a group that plainly represents no democratic element of Russia, belong the other than the respectation. Despite the democratic clement of Russia, belong the first of the States are suppathetic with the Russian people are going to be the real rulers of Russia within a few months. The Assyrian an Armenian relief committee is now turning its attention to ministering to those who are coming out of Turkish harems, out of caves and other hiding-places, and are finding their way to the British lines in Mesopotamia and Palestine.

The Bishop of Huron has issued a pastoral to the clergy of the diocese, drawing attention to the fact that all the Sunday schools in Canada are being asked to do their part in bringing relief to Armenia nand Assyrian children who have suffered untold cruelties at the hands of the Turks, and are still in great destitution.
