ANOTHER VICTORY FOR TOOTHPULLERS

Dentals Score Fourteen While St. Patricks Are Getting Three in Senior Game.

Jerry Laflamme's Dentals are out after the group honors. The tooth-pluggers gave St. Patricks a 14-to-3 beating at the Arena last night and showed plenty of class. The whole team had a hand in the victory, and with Jerry in shape they will be hard to beat.

C. Stewart gave a classy exhibition of goal-tending, and his rival, little Hayden, was also good, despite the big score. The Dents worked their way in almost as they liked after the first period, and this accounts for the big score.

There was only one little tiff. Adams and Box came to blows. They were rightly ordered off for the rest of the game. The Dental forwards showed pretty combination, and the defence was a stonewall. It stood 5 to 1 at the end of the first period, and the second count was 8 to 3, with the final 14 to 3.

Sheldon received a nasty cut over the eye in the second period, but was able to continue. Goldsmith went off with a bad leg in the first round, and it was cut down to six a side when Hodgens was dropped.

This seemed to suit the Dents, and

Monday, Feb. 5—Brantford at Ingersoll.

Newark, N.J., Feb. 1.—The baseball meeting of the International League in this city on Feb. 15 or thereabouts will be one of the most important reessions. ever held in the history of the game from a minor league standpoint. By that time the magnates will have a pretty good line on the dimensions of the little strike movement Dave Fultz is laboring st hard to launch.

If the class B. C and D players join the strike movement it will mean the dissolution of the National Association, which protects minor league clubs, and the leagues will then be thrown on their cwn resources and the players, in turn, will have to worry because the leagues will be more shaky and their jobs more uncertain.

On top of that, the International will account its proposal to organize a separate association, composed of the three class AA leagues, which would be a boon in more ways than one, and would ultimately produce fast teams here. The two-year draft rule is also on the docket for discussion.

A. E. Donovan, M.L.A., stated that he was in the house when the bill was in troduced, and, altho a number of prominent dairymen were present, no objections were raised. The government, he said, was not anxious to press this act into service, but would be willing to let it stand over for educational purposes.

At the afternoon session, Mr. L. A. Zuefelt, superintendent of Kingston Dairy School, spoke, outlining the advantages of the standard dairy, merits of the test system for milk, and the advantages which would be derived under the new Dairy Act. About two hundred farmers were in attendance. The meetings will be continued tomorrow.

Revision Which Makes Game More Difficult.

GOLF DUFFERS

The House of Golluf is divided against itself over the question:

"Shall the game be made harder to play?"

The champs and near-champs favor a general lengthening of the holes, or a change in computing per. The dubs are shricking: "Let this game be."

The introduction of the rubber-cored ball some years ago undoubtedly made golf an easier game to play. And that's one of the great big reasons for the increase in the golfing population.

In the bygone days of the gutta-perchaball, none but a most powerful driver could lam the ball much more than 200 yards. Novices who could slam it for 125 or 150 yards were few. Many folk tried their hands at the game in those days, falled after many attempts to get any distance with their drives—and quit in disgust.

Then came the rubber ball. One swat, landed just a bit below the amidship section, and even the "dub" could send it zipping 200 yards and more. When the rubber-centred globule came into being, those who had quit because guita perchahad folied them were myited to come back and try their wallops on the new "saller." They did, and, presto!—the golfing family increased by leaps and bounds.

Would Handicap Duffers.

Adding 25 yards to a par 3 hole doesn't seem to be a serious handicap at first thought. But it is. Making a 225-yard hole in 3 is comparatively easy. Add 25 yards, and keep par the same—and it's something entirely different. If 75 yards something entirely different. If 75 yards something entirely different. If 75 yards were added to a hole, the layman would think that meant a real handicap. But increasing it from 225 to 250 is no worse than boosting it from 225 to 300.

The ordinary golfer can get from 190 to 215 yards on his drive. If it's true, he is on the green, or close enough to it to rise his putter. That makes an approach unnecessary, and gives him two putts in the property of the layman would offices.
