TARIFFS AND MARKETS

Hon. W. S. Fielding is taken to task by the Conservative press because he declared in Toronto that the defeat of reciprocity in 1911 was a great blow to Canada.

Let us see. The Agricultural Gazette, a government publication, in its last issue tells of "Canada's need for wider markets for agricultural commodities." Reciprocity would have served that need. The article in the Agricultural Gazette says:

"The first six months of 1921 witnessed severe declines in the prices of farm products consequent on the curtailment of exports. A world shortage may still exist in meat, wheat, and dairy produce, but because of the decreased purchasing power of European currencies, with the consequent inability of countries overseas to pay for the products of this continent, the demand has fallen off, and with its relaxation increasing quantities of food products have been released for home consumption. The question of markets is the outstanding one presenting itself to the Canadian farmer. To the live-stock man in particular the question is vital."

The American market, right at our doors, would have been available under reciprocity, but now we have the American emergency tariff to contend with, and now also we have those who defeated reciprocity lamenting the lack of markets which a high tariff policy was supposed to produce at home. The Acadian Recorder well says:

"We have our home market. We always had. We have the British market freely. We always had it. Yet all these things are not sufficient. Our producers do not wish and cannot afford to limit their production to the amount marketable at home and in Britain. Such a limitation would disastrously hamper the development of our enormous and varied resources, for the possibilities of Canada in this regard are almost limitless. We want the home market and we want the British market—at least as large a part as can be obtained—but we cannot afford to be satisfied with these. We want to ship our products to any part of the world that will buy them. Even the most distant markets are desirable, but those nearest to us are approaching more desirable, and anything approaching a fair understanding with the most gigantic market of all right at our doors is the most desirable commercial objective at which we can aim."

The United States has discovered that a tariff against Canadian wheat did not profit the American farmer. It is discovering that a high tariff in general is not profitable, and the Fordney bill is likely to be shelved for this year. This is not good news for the Conservatives in Canada since they had counted on being able to call for retaliation and arouse a sentiment that would aid the cause of high protection on this side of the border. Meanwhile Canada wants markets, and the erection of a high tariff wall will not assist her in getting them.

THE MARITIME A. A. U.

If amateur sport has flourished in these provinces in the last two years, and it has done so to a phenomenal degree in the last year, it is due to the energy and firmness of the maritime branch of the A. A. U. of Canada. In the first place it did all in its power to encourage purely amateur athletic organizations; and in the second it set its face against any flirting with professionalism. Its attitude concerning the latter brought upon the president and his colleagues a good deal of criticism from time to time, but they were wise enough to know what the real interests of clean sport demanded. If they erred it was on the side of leniency, for which they got no thanks; as there are always those who take further advantage of every point conceded, and there are also those who can only think of sport in terms of dollars and cents. It is a fact to the credit of the A. A. U. officials that never in any one previous year did clean amateur sport in all departments make as much progress as in the year now drawing to a close.

This fact invests the coming annual meeting of the maritime branch with a very special as well as a general interest. It is said that another effort may be made to get some professionals into the amateur ranks again, and this should be resisted by the affiliated clubs in general. It would not help, but it would pave the way for further trouble. It must be borne in mind that the maritime organization is merely a branch of a national one, and that its decisions must coincide with those of the central body.

There is also said to be a movement in favor of establishing a separate branch for Nova Scotia. This would greatly increase the expense, and it is not easy to see what good purpose would be served. We are really going on very well as we are, and at this particular time in the revival of sport it would seem to be wise to make any change either in the organization or in its board of governors, who have rendered such admirable service. The clubs affiliated should all take pains to be represented at the annual meeting, and there can be no doubt that if this is done the discussions and decisions will be for the benefit of clean amateur sport. There is still time for the affiliation of new clubs.

and to give notice of resolutions or amendments it is desired to bring up for discussion. This annual meeting in the interests of maritime sport should become an event of universal interest.

THE MONTREAL MEETING.

Sir Lomer Gouin, in the course of his speech in Montreal last night said: "We do not need to be prophets to say that history will repeat itself and that in a few weeks the successor of Laurier, the leader of the Liberal party, Mr. King, will take up the work of Laurier and will continue it and finish it."

Not only Sir Lomer, but Hon. Mr. Lemieux and Premier Taschereau made it clear that the Liberal tariff policy is not one which would destroy Canadian industry. As the campaign progresses the Conservatives will find it increasingly difficult to get a hearing when they try to represent their opponents as free traders. The country remembers the years of progress and prosperity under Liberal rule prior to 1911, and will welcome a return, knowing full well that the Tory assertions about evils to come have no more foundation now than they had before Laurier came into power.

So far as Quebec province is concerned, the government party, having solidly against it the influence of such men as Sir Lomer Gouin, Premier Taschereau and Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, cannot hope to gain any more support than it had in the last parliament.

The reports that come from the province generally indicate that the interest of the people in the coming plebiscite on the question of the importation of liquor into the province is growing, and that the vote will be satisfactory to the friends of prohibition. It could hardly be otherwise, but there is always a danger that too much may be taken for granted, as is large as possible should be asked, so that there may be no doubt as the sentiments of the people. If prohibition is to be stopped, then the importation must be stopped. That is the present duty.

J. S. Woodsworth, who is mentioned as a labor candidate in Winnipeg, was formerly the Rev. J. S. Woodsworth, but left the ministry to engage in social work and finally became a participant in the labor trouble in Winnipeg. He is an avowed and pronounced radical. Mr. Woodsworth visited St. John at a time when he had not yet gone to extremes, and proved himself a very clever speaker along lines of social reform work.

With empty grain elevators at St. John, large quantities of Canadian grain are going to American ports for shipment, and they are also likely to get the cattle trade next winter. Is this the Meighen policy for national development? It is time the lower provinces had some spokesmen at Ottawa who could make themselves heard and put these provinces once more on the map. Some followers of a government which regards Canada as beginning at Montreal will not do.

An Ottawa despatch says that Hon. Mr. Wignmore may be left stranded, instead of being piloted into a sheltered haven. Surely this cannot be. Mr. Baxter would never consent to the abandonment of his friend in such a heartless fashion.

Toronto Globe. Conservative journals denounce group government, but do not suggest the obvious alternative of electing enough Liberals to give a working majority over both the smaller groups.

Sir George Foster, Hon. J. D. Reid and Hon. J. A. Calder can say that in political death they are not divided. They have all been buried in the senate.

The Standard this morning pictures Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King as a defeated candidate in Prince, P. E. I. But Mr. King is not to run in Prince.

Mr. John McCormick, whom the people of Cape Breton declined to accept as a representative, has been appointed to the senate. Who will be the New Brunswick senator?

The United Farmers are expected to contest nine or ten constituencies in Nova Scotia. Hon. T. A. Cresser is expected to visit the province in October.

Truth Will Triumph.

A merchant had advertised for a boy. Late in the afternoon a red-headed, freckle-faced, blue-eyed, honest-looking boy applied for the job.
"Do you like work?" asked the merchant.
"No, sir," replied the boy.
Then you can have the job," replied the merchant. "You are the first boy who's been here today who didn't lie about it and say yes."—Washington Post.

A man whose wife was fond of moving from one house to another was met by a friend, while walking behind a van load of household goods.
"Hullo, Jim, shifting again? Where might you be going again?" the friend asked.
"I don't know," answered Jim. "I'm following the furniture to find out."

Mrs. Newrich was having her house decorated. "The last finished the drawing room," said the foreman; "what shall we do next?"
"You can do the dining room on Thursday," said Mrs. Newrich.
"What shall we do in the interim?" she was asked.
"Oh, paper that, too."

Willings.

Mistress (interviewing prospective cook).—And can you cook entrees?
Cook.—Well, mum, I have always been used to saucers, but I'd do my best with trays.—Vanity Fair.

Don't Want Sympathy.

A big twin-six pulled up alongside a rail fence in one of the poorest counties in the State, the driver asked the farmer who was plowing the field: "Am I on the right road to the county seat?"
The farmer had no more than answered "Yes," when there came another question from one of the seven passengers: "My good truck are you willing to make a living off land like this?"
As the farmer wiped the sweat off his brow he replied: "Yes, and now before you start to pity me, I just want to tell you, don't waste your sympathy on me. There is a fellow on the next farm who likes this, and I own only 100 acres."—Indianapolis News.
