TRAINING SCHOOL

GRANTED DIPLOMAS

Kindergarten instructors completed courses—Exercises last night.

The graduation exercises of the Froebel Training School, conducted by Mrs. W. C. Matthews, took place last evening in St. David's church Sunday school, before a large and appreciative audience. An excellent programme was carried out by members of the graduation class. These included songs, essays and games. The essays were exceedingly good, especially one entitled "Story Telling" by Miss Elsie Tremont and all showed a thorough knowledge and careful preparation in the study of kindergarten work.

Rev. W. H. Barracough addressed the graduates and presented the diplomas. He spoke of his close connection with the work, which he heartily endorsed, which had been brought near to him by the education of his own children in kindergarten schools in the Canadian west and the Yukon. He reminded the graduates that God had called them to the task of training children. They were invited to share in the task. The hope of the nation was centered in her children.

Archdeacon Raymond Rev. W. O. Raymond made a short address in which he emphasized the good work done by the kindergarten schools. He had watched the development of the schools since their beginning, twelve years ago, and was wholly in sympathy with the work. He did not see why the school board did not introduce such an excellent study in the public schools. He pointed out the marked differences between a child of the street and a kindergarten bred child and hoped that the time would not be far distant when the matter would be taken in hand by the local board. He congratulated the graduates and wished them every success in their future work.

The girls receiving the directors' diplomas were: Edna Colwell, Helen Camp, Ruby Isaacs, Kate Dishart, Elsie Tremont, Marion Flagler, Besie Carmichael. Those receiving the assistants' diplomas were: Elsie Estabrooks, Mabel Lodge and Mildred Barnes.

TIED UP BY STORM

Considerable delay was experienced in the street car service yesterday afternoon at the foot of King street during the heavy rainfall. The blockage was due to the rain carrying a large quantity of gravel off Chipman Hill and depositing it in the car tracks. At one time during the storm there were eight cars in line at this point waiting for the tracks to be cleared before they could proceed. The rainfall also caused extreme annoyance to pedestrians at the corner of Paradise Row and Main street. One of the catch basins at that place was unable to receive the heavy overflow of rain with the result that it became blocked and the water rose almost to the level of the door steps of the surrounding houses. People were obliged to wade through the water when getting on the street cars or when proceeding up Main street.

Hon. Mr. Hazen Makes Appeal To Manufacturers in Province

Minister of Marine, in stirring address before Rotary Club, points to New Brunswick's opportunity—Should organize factories for work of supplying Munitions of War to Britain and Allies—Cheers for Minister at conclusion of ringing speech.

Before the St. John Rotary Club yesterday afternoon Hon. J. D. Hazen sounded a ringing call to the manufacturers of New Brunswick to organize their plants for a more active participation in the furnishing of munitions of war to the allied nations. It was the regular Monday luncheon and there were present some sixty or seventy members with H. C. Creighton in the chair. Four new members were elected, namely, James Lewis, W. Frank Halboway, R. D. Patterson and N. Louis Brennan. Hon. Mr. Hazen said that he had been called upon at short notice and had not had an opportunity of preparing anything in the nature of a definitely thought out address. His speakers would therefore have to bear with any seeming weaknesses in the sequence of facts which he would endeavor to place before them. At the conclusion of the address the concert of opinion was that there had not only been need of an apology on Mr. Hazen's part, but that the address was one of the greatest treats yet enjoyed by the club.

"Inasmuch as the world war is now the predominant idea in all minds," said Hon. Mr. Hazen, "it may not be out of place for me to devote the few minutes at my disposal to a presentation of some facts connected therewith and, perhaps, more particularly, along the line of Canada's participation in this struggle. It is safe to say that public sentiment throughout this Dominion is everywhere united in favor of this country's participation in the affairs of the Empire, and more particularly do we stand as one in the sentiment that everything possible shall be done in upholding our part in this contest.

Canada's Debt to the Navy.

"Canada is year by year taking a larger share in Imperial affairs, our sentimental regard for the mother land has been growing deeper and deeper with the passing of time, until now it approaches a passion. We look with feelings of the most profound sympathy on desolated Belgium, and our hearts swell with anger when we realize the perfidy of the German government which deliberately ordered the violation of a solemn and sacred treaty covering the neutrality of that little country. We realize, too, that for our safety in future years we must depend on that wonderful protection which has been afforded us in the past, the strong arm of Britain's navy, which alone has made possible our mercantile marine. To this great force is due that safety in which our products are distributed to the markets of the world and our necessities brought to our Canadian ports. We see that without such protection our future as a people, our homes, and all our political institutions would be subjected to a serious menace. Now we see that protection threatened by a nation, which, during the past year, has violated every better impulse of humanity and broken all the laws of nations.

The Premier's Offer of Aid.

"So it was fitting that on August 1st, when war loomed large on the horizon of the world, the Prime Minister, Sir Robert L. Borden, speaking for a united Canada telegraphed the Home Government that Canada was prepared to do the fullest extent of our capabilities. Not until August 6th was a reply received, when the message came to prepare. You all know that in the past Canada has devoted very little attention to military affairs. This country has not permitted itself to dwell on the thought of war. We have spent comparatively small amounts of money each year—though some people have continually complained that these amounts were excessive—chiefly on elementary training for a small force of militia. So when war broke out Canada found herself totally unprepared in so far as training was concerned, and also with respect to equipment for an overseas expeditionary force. But, and this is greatly to the credit of our people, within four weeks after war broke out a magnificent camp had been constructed at Valcartier, and there, under canvas, were gathered from every part of this broad Dominion an army of thirty-five thousand men. Six weeks after war broke out this army was fully equipped for active service and could have been sent forward at that time had it been possible for the British government to provide escort. Yet within a very few days after the completion of these matters the greatest army that ever crossed the ocean was to be found on thirty crowded transports conveyed by a squadron of British vessels, hastening to Britain to stand side by side with their fellow patriots overseas in the defence of the Empire which was all love. Today there is in Europe a much larger Canadian army than the total British force under Wellington at the battle of Waterloo. Bernhardi, in his book 'Germany and the Next War,' declares that Britain's overseas dominions might be regarded as a negligible force. How he had his fellows misjudged the sentiment of these overseas dominions has been shown by the manner in which Canadian troops have conducted themselves at Ypres, Neuve Chapelle, Langemarck and elsewhere, checking the German advance and stopping the rush to Calais.

What Was Done at Valcartier.

"May I speak for a moment of what was done at Valcartier. The organization of that camp and army within the space of four weeks was a magnificent achievement. A rifle range, comprising a line of 1,500 targets, and extending about three and one-half miles, was completed in ten days. A complete water supply with necessary piping, pumps, tanks, and chlorinated plant, with about 200 taps fitted to abutment tables, and seventy-five shower baths was constructed. An electric light, power and telephone system was installed, streets were constructed, buildings and tents erected, and an effective sewerage system, comprising over 25,000 feet of drain pipe was completed. Halfway sidings for pay and transport offices, hospital stables for sick horses, fumigating and other buildings were constructed and made ready for use within the same period.

Training and Equipment

"Thirty-five thousand men were assembled and put through a most systematic course of training in all branches of the service. Infantry, cavalry, artillery, engineers, army service corps, army medical corps, signallers, and ammunition columns were organized and all were trained in their respective duties. The clothing and equipment, the transport and supply for thirty-five thousand men were a heavy undertaking, especially in the urgency of haste. What was necessary to equip the force sent forward and to make some provision for future contingents included 250,000 pairs of boots, 100,000 forage caps, 60,000 great coats, 20,000 jackets and sweaters of various types, 25,000 pairs of trousers, 70,000 rifles and bayonets, 80,000 oil bottles, 70,000 water bottles, 95,000 sets of valise equipment, and so on, in the proportion, over a list of sixty-six different articles. With the first expeditionary force we sent to Great Britain twenty-one 13-pounder quick-firing guns, ten 4.7-inch howitzers, 60-pounder motor lorries, transport wagons and a vast quantity of ammunition. The force was ready for embarkation within six weeks of the outbreak of war. This force was twice as great as the Spanish Armada and fifty per cent. greater than the British force, commanded by Wellington, at Waterloo.

Subject For Congratulation

"Canada has to congratulate itself on the highly creditable manner in which this army was sent. Since then other contingents have gone and more will go. This country may feel proud not only of the national response which has been made, but of the very generous manner in which private individuals have come forward with subscriptions and other forms of aid. 'Today more than two hundred factories in Canada are manufacturing munitions of war, not only for the Canadian forces but for Britain and for Russia. Much of this work is being done under a special committee organized by the Militia Department with Col. Bertram as chairman. Engaged in this work, too, is Thos. Cantley, one of the foremost figures in the industrial life of Nova Scotia.

"In New Brunswick factories for the manufacture of shells and similar munitions are operating in St. John, Moncton, Fredericton and Chatham. Numerous other plants in this province and throughout Canada are engaged on contracts for other forms of service. These goods are being sent through channels apart altogether from political influence. As Great Britain has appointed a minister of munitions, so Canada has appointed under Mr. Kemp, a member of the Government, and a very successful business man. This commission is awarding contracts on all sides, and in carrying on its work it has secured the co-operation of people with many contracts for these various supplies, yet it is a matter for our

Can More Be Done?

"Although New Brunswick is securing many contracts for these various supplies, yet it is a matter for our regret that we are not doing more. At the conclusion of the address a vote of thanks was moved by P. A. Dykeman who briefly referred to the glorious part played by Canada's soldiers on the battlefields of Europe and to the pride felt by those at home in the noble bearing of their friends at the front.

T. H. Estabrooks seconded this motion, and in doing so referred to the pleasure of the club in having Hon. Mr. Hazen with them as well as to the satisfaction each member would feel in seeing the minister looking so well after what many had feared might prove much a more serious illness. Hearty cheers were given for Hon. Mr. Hazen and the gathering broke after singing the National Anthem.

serious consideration whether more factories in this province might not be organized and developed to meet this unlimited demand. Last winter there were shipped through the port of St. John eighteen million dollars worth of supplies more than had ever previously gone in a single season. These munitions were forwarded in safety. We cannot foresee the day when we are soon to come soon, but in the event of a long drawn out conflict it is absolutely necessary that Canada as a whole shall produce everything possible which may tend to assure victory to the British arms. Mr. Cantley, to whom I referred, while in England recently had a conversation with Lord Kitchener, who informed him that Canadian manufacturers had come to the point where they could produce more munitions than the British manufacturers, with the exception of those who are regularly engaged in the manufacture of munitions. This is gratifying indeed, but New Brunswick manufacturers should do more. I would suggest that they get in touch as soon as possible with men like Mr. Cantley, Col. Bertram and Sir Thos. Shaughnessy on his return from England, with a view to extending very largely the scope of manufacturing done here. We are doing something, but everything we can possibly produce will be needed. We have in our favor all the necessary conditions.

Canada Weathering Storm Well.

"I believe that New Brunswick has suffered less through this war than any other province in Canada. Of course in portions of the West there had to be a reaction from over-production in real estate. This followed by the war has made conditions somewhat more difficult. These here we have seen our lumbermen getting good prices, we have had a busy year in St. John harbor and our province has benefited by a share of expenditures made for military supplies. Not having to pay for previous speculation we are in a very fortunate position, and despite the depression in the West I believe that Canada with the possible exception of the United States is about the most prosperous country in the world.

"If our manufacturers will get in touch with the men I have named much good may result. We feel proud of the way in which our soldiers have borne themselves. They have been shown true to the best traditions of the sturdy peoples from whom they are sprung. May we not at home turn to their aid? Our soldiers are doing good deeds, and we can do our part by supporting them in this way service corresponding in value to that rendered by our men in the field.

Canada Will Not Fail.

"Permit me to close this somewhat rambling address by a brief quotation from an address delivered by Sir Robert L. Borden: 'I believe that our cause is just and that there is an unflinching determination to make it triumphant. I believe that it can have only one conclusion, British reverses may come, but if they do they should only inspire us with deeper courage and greater determination. All that our fathers fought for and achieved, all that we have inherited and accomplished, our institutions and liberties, our despatch as a nation, the existence of our Empire, are all at stake in this contest, and I am confident that the resolution, the determination, the self-reliance and resourcefulness that have never failed Canada in the stress and trials of the past will assuredly not fail here now.'

At the conclusion of the address a vote of thanks was moved by P. A. Dykeman who briefly referred to the glorious part played by Canada's soldiers on the battlefields of Europe and to the pride felt by those at home in the noble bearing of their friends at the front.

T. H. Estabrooks seconded this motion, and in doing so referred to the pleasure of the club in having Hon. Reading and writing materials supplied to the soldiers—Three hundred letters a day.

One of the chief attractions at Camp Sussex is the headquarters of the Y. M. C. A., where a refreshment booth is conducted and a large tent is available as a reading, writing and recreation room. At all hours of the day men off duty seek the comforts of the big reading tent.

Paper and envelopes are supplied the soldiers and the Y. M. C. A. handles daily about 300 out-going letters for the men of the 50th New Brunswick Battalion.

Mr. Cross of Charlottetown (P.E.I.) has charge of the work and associated with him are J. A. Green and F. C. Manning of St. John and L. T. Dow of Sherbrooke (Quebec). Messrs. Green and Manning are students at Acadia University while Mr. Dow is a St. John work in different parts of Canada.

Table games and magazines are always ready for the men off duty. While the supply of magazines has so far been adequate there is still need of more table games. Several chess and checker boards have been installed but other types of parlor games would be welcomed by the Military Y. M. C. A. at Camp Sussex.

Another feature, which will be added to the camp grounds will be a large out-door theatre where moving pictures will be shown and other attractions offered. The ground is especially suited for the work, having natural elevations for seats. It is expected that the out-door theatre will be very popular with the men.
