The Commissioners have power, by writ of attachment, to compel Mr. Huntington, or any one else whom they may choose, to appear before them and give evidence on oath. The public will expect them, if necessary, to use that power to the utmost. It will expect them to bring Mr. Huntington, or any other unwilling witness, before them, and endeavor to obtain such evidence as they can give. These men cannot longer be permitted to prate about delay on the part of others, and themselves cause further delay in preparing for the meeting of Parliament. The evidence must be brought out now, if possible.

Another Railway Project.

A few years ago it was supposed by the assembled wisdom of New Brunswick that the Lobster Act provided for soll the reilway longings of the Proywick that the Lobster Act provided for all the railway longings of the Province. The claws of the Railway Lobster were fastened on every section that needed a railway in the opinion of the legislators. And yet every year that needed a railway in the opinion of the legislators. And yet every year some previously contented community cry out for railway communication, and work themselves up to the belief that they can no longer live without it. Railways seem to sprout and grow, like seed planted by the farmer. In a hundred years a village will no more be without its railroad than without its "oldest inhabitant." The railway from the Intercolonial to Cape Tormentine, under the especial patronage of Mr. Milner of the Chignecto Post; the Mr. Milner of the Chignecto Post; the Chatham Branch, which has been voted a handsome subsidy; the extension of a handsome subsidy; the extension of Riviere du Loup to St. John, which is talked of; the Albert Branch, which is now a sure thing; and the St. Martins town a sure thing; and the St. Martins that the sun comes out and Upham road, were supposed to be impurities. now a sure thing; and the St. Martins and Upham road, were suipposed to be all the railway projects on hand in New Brunswick: but we have another—a Gagetown branch. Queen's County is alive to the necessity of railway communication. Gagetown must be joined to the Western Extension by iron bands. The enterprise has been taken in hand by Mr. Williams, M. P. P., a man of wealth, and by other enterprising men of Queen's. They have made no noise about it as yet, but are quietly maturing their plans. They have accretained that an easy route can be found, and have consulted Mr. E. R. Burpee, the prince of Railway builders and stock subscriptions are obtained The Provincial grant would, of course, be the safine as that offered to the Chatham company—$7000 a mile. This would, probably, construct the road-bed. The portion of the County west of ham company—$7000 a mile. This would, probably, construct the roadbed. The portion of the County west of the St. John river would vote enough to purchase the rails, and a company could easily be formed to buy rolling stock and work the road. The gauge will, of course, be 4 ft. 8 1-2 in. We see no reason whatever for failure. Should Mr. Williams and the other gentlemen who are talking this project over, throw themselves into it with a will the road will be built. The projectors may rely on the aid of The Tribune in working up the project, as we believe the taxation involved by railway subsidies to be light in comparison with the benefits derived from the roads.

What Will the Commission De?

This question is asked all over the country. The people are anxious that it should do the work assigned to it, so that the truth may be known, and are eagerly waiting to see if its action is to be stopped by the refusal of Mr. Huntington to to prosecute. If there is no investigation by the Commission there will be no report to lay before Parliament, and, therefore, no early meeting of Parliament, as promised. The Mail seems to think that Mr. Huntington should be compelled to appear. It says:

The Commissioners have power, by writted attachment, a compell Mr. Huntington attachment, at compel Mr. Hunting attachment, a compel Mr. Hunting is and pronounced by good authorities to be unfit for use. Exhaustion and degeneration follow the excessive use of the senses, without due intervals of rest for repair. In order to maintain the wonted energy, the force expended, whether of body or mind, must be restored. When the expenditure of brain matter and other nervous elements is continued by overwork, the early extinction of life itself may be looked for as the result of such degeneration. The ingredients composing Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites are such as constitute healthy blood, re-establish sound nerves and senses, and will, consequently, not only prevent this exhaustion, but in most cases restore such as is lost.
