Under Currents

By The Duchess

And that last speech of the old man's—that crowned all. It was in keeping with the sorry scene. "My son is willing! Willing to make this hateful sacrifice. Willing to marry even her to please his father, to curry favour with him lest he fall out of his good graces and lose the money that the old man must leave behind him when death strikes."

Oh the dastard! The poor pitiful wretch, thus to sell his manhood, his honour, his whole life, for the sake of paltry gold. He had pined when he saw her, he knew his father had been trying him. Some remnant of grace made his colour fade, and she wondered how he had the courage the hardihood to stand there to face her, knowing that she knew all.

Rising she began to pace the room with rapid footsteps.

That it should come to this! That she should be openly insulted brought so low that man should dare to think of her as won before even her consent was asked! She had lingered many a time in fancy over some vague hour in the future, when some vague somebody should be glad, even proud to win her love—may more, should count that love the one great good the earth could give him. And now she is to be delivered up into the hands of a man who has, with many sighs doubtless and many a frown and deep regret declared himself willing to burden himself with her for life! What a touch of resignation lies in the word!

Her lip curls. After all they had misadventured. They should have chosen some other woman to that meek part. She pauses suddenly in her rapid walk, as though some new strange thought has come to her. Why had she been chosen? Why should a man so miserably as Gregory Dyrant elect to wed his son to a girl whom he himself had in choicest language dubbed a "pauper"? Surely there must be something in this. And why should the younger man lend himself to such a scheme? Surely some weighty meaning was attached to it. There had been little love lost between her father the elder brother and Gregory Dyrant, therefore no sentimental nonsense could have suggested the idea of a marriage between the cousins to the latter. Sentiment and Gregory Dyrant. She almost laughs aloud at the strange combination she has formed.

Yet, think as she will, no light comes to her. Backwards, and forwards, she beats her brains, trying to work out the troubles of the problem presented to her, coming always to a mental cul de sac that drives her back upon herself bewildered.

CHAPTER XVIII.

How do I love thee? Let me count the ways. I love thee to the depth, the breadth, and height. My soul can reach, when feeling out of sight. For the ends of Being and ideal Grace.

It is now close upon noon, and Griselda, walking briskly yet with a carefully different air upon her (because he is a wonderfully ubiquitous person, and it is almost impossible to know round that corner he may not spring himself upon you at a moment's notice) is endeavoring to get what good she can out of the glorious afternoon. It is indeed exceptionally lovely. The soft shower that fell an hour ago is now half forgotten, living only in the hearts of the tiny myriad raindrops that nestle in the flowers and hang here and there in the air.

branches. The sun, assuming forth again with a reddish brilliance, and the great hanging clusters of the honey-suckle bursting from bud to blossom, emitting perfumes richer than those of Araby fill all the air with sweets. Daisies pied, and violets blue. And cuckoo-buds of yellow hue—all, all are here with a thousand other gems of Nature's rearing. The sky is streaked with soft blue lines that fade into a world of fleecy whiteness and against it stand out some giant firs growing upwards from a rocky hill whilst through all these comes a rushing tremulous sound, mingling with them yet distinct that tells of the cool tumbling of waters over stones unseen, and that yet is half silenced by the glorious peen that the birds are giving forth from their leafy home.

Griselda in her big white sunbonnet that suits so charmingly her mignonette face and from out of which her soft eyes glance so coquettishly looks as if Nature had appropriated her and made her one with her surroundings. Happily unconscious of all that has taken place at Greycourt she walks merrily onward drinking in sweet draughts with every step.

Not that her mind is so free from care either as she would have you believe. There was that quarrel with Peyton the day before yesterday, in which she cannot think she was altogether blameless try as she will. An uncomfortable feeling that, if she should chance to meet him to-day she will hardly be able to present as innocent a front as she would desire, is gnawing her nervous system and even as she thinks she turns a corner and comes upon that young man standing knee deep in the stream, which here almost rises to the dignity of a river, minus boots and stockings and with his trousers well-tucked up.

"Well, really," says Griselda stopping short and striking a shocked attitude. She could not have argued it out, but it instantly dawns upon her that this is an excellent opportunity of pretending to be offended, and so placing him in the wrong. If she had hoped to abash him, however by this mode of address she is decidedly out of it.

WEEPING ECZEMA SOON RELIEVED

A Perfect Treatment For This Distressing Complaint

WATERLOO, ONT.
"I had an attack of Weeping Eczema; so bad that my clothes would be wet through at times."

SAYS HOT WATER WASHES POISONS FROM THE LIVER

Everyone should drink hot water with phosphate in it, before breakfast.

To feel as fine as the proverbial fiddle, we must keep the liver washed clean, almost every morning, to prevent its sponge-like pores from clogging with indigestible material, sour bile and poisonous toxins, says a noted physician.

If you get headaches, it's your liver. If you catch cold easily, it's your liver. If you wake up with a bad taste, furred tongue, nasty breath or stomach becomes rancid, it's your liver. Bellow skin, muddy complexion, watery eyes all denote liver uncleanness. Your liver is the most important, also the—much abused and neglected organ of the body. Few know its function or how to release the dammed-up body waste, bile and toxins. Most folks resort to violent cathartics, which is a dangerous, salivating chemical which can only use occasionally because it accumulates in the tissues, also attacks the bones.

Every man and woman, sick or well, should drink each morning before breakfast, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, to wash from the liver and bowels the previous day's indigestible material, the poisons, sour bile and toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and freshening the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

Limestone phosphate does not re-stimulate the liver, because it is harmless and can not salivate, for it is harmless and you can eat anything afterwards. It is inexpensive and almost tasteless, and any pharmacist will sell you a quarter pound which is sufficient for a demonstration of how hot water and limestone phosphate cleanse, stimulate and freshen the liver, keeping you feeling fit day in and day out.

WOMEN AS BRAVE AS THE MEN

Their Struggle Shows a Remarkable Spirit.

Talk of the bravery of men, but where can you find a finer spirit than among the half-sick women who are fighting and struggling to do their duty against the terrible odds of ill-health and who will not give up.

One woman in every three is struggling against weakness. Most of them are not exactly sick, but, oh, how miserable.

The burden and misery of it all has its foundation in the blood which is thin and watery. The red cells are too few. The very stream of life is reduced in vitality. Weakness and inevitable ill-health are the certain result.

Every ailing or weak woman can quickly regain her health in this very simple way. By filling the system with the nutrition that comes from rich red blood, a quick change for the better will result. To accomplish this, take two chocolate-coated Ferrozone Tablets after each meal. You'll feel better immediately for the simple reason that Ferrozone renews the blood. It gives you vim, vigor, endurance, restores a tired, worn-out system very quickly.

You'll feel like new all over once you get Ferrozone working through your blood. It puts color into faded cheeks, brightens the eye, quickens the step, brings back that wonderful feeling of youth.

One of the finest things Ferrozone does is to make you eat lots and digest it as well. With keen appetite, sound sleep, strong nerves and lots of nourishing blood you're bound to regain robust health. Any sickly girl or ailing woman that Ferrozone won't make well must be incurable. There is a secret power in Ferrozone, and it is worth a trial at all events. Fifty cents per box, six for $2.50. At all dealers in medicine or by mail from The Catarthozone Co., Kingston, Ont.
