Colonel Machin Attacks O. T. A. In House

Act is Being Ruthlessly Enforced.

CLAIMS IT IS AN INFRINGEMENT OF INDIVIDUAL RIGHTS.

TORONTO, March 5.—Colonel Machin M.P.P. of Kenora yesterday dressed down the Ontario Temperance Act and the manner in which it is enforced.

The Kenora member in an hour and a half address attacked the Ontario Temperance Act from two sides first because it had no fiscal effect on the business of the liquor people without compensation and secondly because it was an infringement on the rights of the individual. In the latter connection he uttered a warning against what he considered the growing tendency in the province to restrict individual liberty—the growth of Phariseism of a selfish type as that which Christ himself had condemned two thousand years ago. In every part of the province the "sin-bound" was on the trail of the man who wanted to live his life in his own way. Col. Machin declared that he was not in favor of return to the old open bar but he was equally convinced that some arrangement would have to be made by which the man who wanted to have liquor in his home might have it. How that could be accomplished without bringing back all the evils of the old system was a problem but he believed that a solution could be found. He offered his own—a distinctly ingenious one. It was simply this: that every municipality should have the right to declare by a majority vote whether it desired the establishment of a Government liquor store in the municipality. If the voters so decided the store would be established. Then every bona fide resident and householder could go to the Government store, prove his identity and secure a license to buy liquor. With this license he could secure enough liquor for his legitimate needs, but he could not use it to purchase one he left his own municipality.

In commencing his attack the Kenora member explained that in 1916 when he was training his battalion for overseas he made a hurried trip to the Legislature, having heard that the Government proposed advanced temperance legislation. He had opposed it then in caucus, but since he had been overseas he had had an opportunity of making his position clear in the House. The present opportunity was the first he had had since then. Continuing, he voiced the opinion that the Government was confiscating the business of the liquor people after having encouraged them in the belief that they would be kept within the law they would be allowed to continue, should have been fair enough and British enough to have compensated them.

Coming to the passing of the Act, Col. Machin declared that the people of the province had been willing to submit to any legislation, no matter how arbitrary in order to help in the winning of the war. Act ruthlessly enforced. "I think," he said, "that our friends, the prohibitionists, took a most unfair advantage in inflaming the minds of the people, already strained by the horrors of war, on the subject of prohibition and stamped the Government into passing the drastic legislation which they did. But I say, Mr. Speaker, that if an unfair advantage was taken then, an honor of the savagery, the brutality and the offensiveness with which this Government and its officers have prosecuted the people of the province for breach of the Ontario Temperance Act, and it speaks marvels for the self-control of the British subjects of this province that they have submitted to the state of affairs in the way they have done."

Col. Machin read several extracts from newspapers dealing with the search for liquor. Continuing, he declared that the soldiers had gone overseas to fight for democracy and for human liberty and were coming back to find their liberty as British subjects and individuals taken away from them. "I say to every honorable member here," he said, "assert yourself. Be men and not mice, and vote according to your conscience on this matter." The Kenora member repeated his charge that a wave of fanatical Puritanism, fanned by certain men and women, had convinced the Government that they were a majority. He admitted that he might be taking his political life in his hands in making the address he was making, but he was willing to pay the price.

Able Address By Gifted Toronto Lady

Interest of Independent Labor Party

The organization by the ladies in the interests of the Independent Labor Party is under way. Mrs. Singer of the West Branch, Toronto, is in the city and will remain for a few days, in order to meet some of the local ladies who may be interested in the party. Last evening Mrs. Singer addressed a public meeting held in the Trades and Labor Hall. Mrs. Singer is a gifted speaker and made a deep impression on her hearers. Her eloquent style and her pleasing personality besides her thorough understanding of the subject held the audience in rapt attention.

The speaker alluded to the unrest in the country at present and said this was the natural sequence to the state of political affairs and she blamed the labor people themselves for this condition. However she said she was glad to see the people coming back to the

The necessity of better education for the children of the laboring man was alluded to by her, she impressing the fact that one must look to the betterment of the conditions of the rising generation, and any man or woman, who deserved to be called such, was deeply concerned with the welfare of his or her children.

Reviewing the organization and the growth of the Independent Labor Party Mrs. Singer said that the accomplishments in Toronto, Brantford and St. Catharines were remarkable. In Brantford for the election of Mayor and several aldermen. Regarding the granting of women's franchise, Mrs. Singer said that all the credit for this franchise should go to the Independent Labor party, who for years, she said, had asked for this reform. Woman's franchise was only granted in submission to the demand by the people, she remarked.

Mrs. Singer criticized the Government regarding the preparation for the after war period. Unemployment in Toronto among other places was rampant. Preparations avoid this should have been made before the war ended when members of the government were away from their post of duty. The men should have been provided for as soon as they came back to this country.

Col. Machin said that all reforms desired were to be gotten through constitutional means. The appeal to all was to think of the responsibility of each and every one to mankind. "Be one that is willing to shoulder that responsibility—Dare to be a Daniel."

After the address ways and means of organizing were considered. Mrs. Singer suggested interesting a few ladies in the city and predicted that from these small beginnings big results would accrue. While here, she will also speak in Waterloo.

Refreshments were indulged in quite frequently, mostly sandwiches, the pickles being monopolized by Table No. 1. Mr. E. Wahl acted as caterer and was kept very busy by the large crowd present. In fact he complained of being tired very early in the evening and was asked to take a much needed rest.

largely by the rougher element present. Mr. Hartung was taken completely by surprise, but expressed his hope that this affair be an annual one, although nobody knew what he was going to do with all the Cans. He also informed his hearers that one learns to make good speeches such as his by being connected with the City Planning Commission.

All in all, everybody had a good time, although there was almost a Donnybrook when the baby of the crowd, Mr. Fred Kaminski, wanted to brag that he was older than anyone else present. Brother Kaminski hasn't started to shed his locks, and Brothers Stuebing and Hoelscher, whose locks haven't started to grow as yet, each wanted the honor.
