

has been earned for them by the ages of suffering and persecution which their fathers have endured for the sake of conscience and religion. Let every Irish Catholic who is thrown early on the world's wide waste, remember this great, this all-important truth, and practise the lesson to be found in these unpretending pages.

Montreal, November, 1850.