and idlenesse, that may as easilie bee great, by such honest and honourable endevoures.

But yet let vs come a litle nearer vnto our felves; and fee the diftreffes afwell amongst the great, as the small, throughout the whole Kingdome: and what increase there is of debts amongst vs in these dayes, never heard of before amongst our Predecessoures, wee shall sinde, that if wee followe not some other industrious manner of waye, to relieve them, then by menaging, in what-some-ever, and best forms wee can, our revenues, that they fhall never bee relieved.

There are three thinges that troubleth our estates that wee cannot live as our Predecessoures did before vs: First, the prodigalitie, both in our felves, our fervants, and our houses. Secondlie, wee have not such occasions, and vies at home for the Brethren, and fecond fonnes of our houses to get them preferment as of old. Thirdlie, that vniverfall plague of Cautionarie, throughout the whole Kingdome, whereby their is fuch a generall intercourse of distresse, each one for another, as all are linked into it: which all in following out fuch honorable, and honest indevoures abroad might bee remedied. I fpeake not of the favoured Courteour, nor of the fortunate Statef-man, for they have their owne bleffinges from GOD, and favour of their Mafter in their feverall places: but vnto fuch, my noble friends, and Countrie-gentlemen, fuch as my felfe is, and fo distressed as I am; and fpeaking out of mine owne experience; protesting that cautionarie hath beene vnto me; vpon mine honour, and credite, the value of an Hundreth thousand pounds; which any imployment abroad, either in the fervice of my King, or my Countrie, might have spared vnto me, and bettered the estate of mine House. Neither doe I fpeake fo farre of my felfe, for want of abilitie to doe mine owne businesse, which I praise GOD is knowne E 2
