THOUSANDS THROG FRANKFORD FOR FAIR

Annual Fall Event Well Patronized Admissions Totalled 4,000 yesterday—Fine Exhibits in all Classes—List of Exhibitors—The Races.

Frankford Agricultural Society held on Thursday and Friday of this week the annual fall exhibition for West Hastings. The event was exceedingly successful from the standpoint of entries and finances. Yesterday no less than 4,000 people paid admission to the grounds. The crowds gathered late but the results were better than ever. The entry list equalled the past fairs in size, many classes being more fully filled than in the past.

The weather on Thursday was ideal, and conditions were admirable on Friday. Late in the afternoon the air became cool but this did not injure the fair in any way. Frankford band played before the grandstand on both days selected programs of modern and patriotic music.

The whole Trent Valley district generally exhibits at Frankford and this year's event saw Sidney, Rawdon and Murray yeomen contesting in stock and grain. The competition in horses, cattle, vegetables, roots, sheep and hogs was keen. There was a shortage in fruit but every sub-class was full. The fruit exhibit was about two-thirds of its usual size. In every other feature the show equalled or excelled those of the past.

A number of herds of Holsteins, Ayrshires and Jerseys were exhibited. The horse show was particularly attractive, crowds staying in the vicinity of the paddock for hours as the judges were going over the entries to award prizes. The poultry exhibit was second to none with all varieties of barnyard fowl and geese, turkeys, ducks and pigeons. Competition here was keenest. Frankford fair in its swine and sheep show was graced with the presence of animals bred by the best known breeders in Hastings County.

The exhibition hall at Frankford is a thing of beauty and a joy forever. Downstairs are the fruits, vegetables and household products, while upstairs one finds the largest fancywork display one meets with in any part. The vegetables included many not shown at other fairs, such as kohlrabi, Mammoth pumpkins were on view with the choicest butter and cheese, tempting home-made bread and sweets in the form of preserved fruits. The epicurean feasted his eyes on these delicious products of the kitchen. A high sense of the artistic was noticeable in all the fancywork, and fine art exhibits. The grains demonstrated the excellence of the past season, so plump were the kernels.

Interesting races were held on the track. Auto agents had exhibitions of cars and patriotic societies reaped a good harvest for their pains.

The management in charge of this year's event, to whose effort the success of the fair is due, is composed of the following well known gentlemen:—

Directors of Board: Geo. Nicholson, J. C. McCauley, G. C. Stickle, G. W. Ketcheson, C. H. Ketcheson, Wm. Mills, W. J. Sharpe, F. R. Malloy, Ross Turley, N. Simmons, T. H. Ketcheson, President, J. W. Hess; 1st Vice-Pres., S. Nicholson; 2nd Vice-Pres., R. McMurter; Sec. Treas., Dr. Simmons.

SAMUEL W. DAVIDSON

Samuel W. ("Walley") Davidson died at St. Michael's Hospital early Thursday morning, the result of an operation performed three weeks ago for appendicitis. Improvement had been so rapid that he expected to be home on Sunday but an internal hemorrhage resulted in sudden death. He was born in London, Ont., 34 years ago, moving to Toronto with his parents when a child, and attended Dawson and Crawford street Public schools. Mr. Davidson was a member of the Sportmen's Club and manager of the Toronto office of Pathe's Film Exchange, being previously employed with the Universal Film Co. He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Davidson, 1018 Queen street west, a sister, Miss Anna Davidson, at home and three married brothers, Robert, of 89 Ashburnham avenue, James, of 654 Shaw street, who succeeds his late brother in business, and Frank at 227 Ashworth avenue, Toronto.

Walter Davidson is remembered in Belleville as one of the former local managers for Griffin's theater. He was of a genial type and possessed fine business ability. His death is a great shock to his many Belleville friends.

CREAGH—SIMMONS

The First Presbyterian church was the scene of a quiet wedding on Thursday, September 13th, when Dorothy J., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Simmons of Unity, Sask., and Mr. Charles C. Creagh, were married by the Rev. Dr. McQueen. The bride wore a traveling suit of dark brown gaberdine and pretty velvet hat and was attended by Miss Dulmage of Edmonton. After the ceremony the wedding party with a few intimate friends, went to the MacDonald Hotel for the wedding dejeuner. The groom's gift to the bride was a handsome pendant of pearls and sapphires. The bride is a cousin of Mr. A. R. Chapman, 107th street, Edmonton. Mr. and Mrs. Creagh left on Friday for their home in Unity, Sask.—Edmonton Bulletin.

OLD BARLEYCORN TAKE BIG JUMP

Twenty Cents for Glass of Whiskey is Now Being Charged in 'Burg

Ogdensburg, Sept. 21.—Whiskey over the bar has taken a jump and while the consumption has gone down prices have gone up and a further advance is being looked for by October 1st.

Twenty cents is the charge at the bar of a hotel here which has taken the initiative in raising the price from 15 cents a glass.

Cafes throughout the city will soon follow suit, when patrons will slide a nickel in addition to the dime former charge, over the mahogany. But that is not all. Saloon men believe that this price is not stable and predict that before long another increase will be announced. Which brings joy to some and less hilarity to others.

A. J. LAMBERT PAID THE PRICE

Killed in Action in France on Sept. 11th—Was South African Veteran

Mrs. Alice Lydia Lambert, 337 1/2 Front Street, Belleville has been notified from Ottawa of the death of her husband at the front according to the following telegram:

"Deeply regret to inform 637169, Lance Corp. Archibald John Lambert, Infantry, officially reported killed in action September 11th '17. (Sgd.) Director of Records."

Archibald John Lambert was a member of the 155th Battalion and went overseas on October 14th, '16, with that unit. He was a veteran of the South African war in which he received three wounds, for which he had medals. Before enlisting with the 155th he was engaged in farming in this vicinity. He was a member of Christ Church. This congregation has been very hard hit by the war, many of the younger members having paid the great price. A memorial service will be held on Sunday morning at Christ Church by the rector, Rev. Dr. R. C. Blagrove.

Lance Corporal Lambert leaves besides his widow, a young daughter about twelve years of age.

BELLEVILLIAN IN TROUBLE

A Belleville resident was yesterday afternoon caught by Inspector Arnot with a partially empty bottle of liquor under a stand at Frankford fair. He had made an effort to allow the liquor to run out of the bottle, but was closely followed and threw the bottle away before it was entirely drained. The inspector secured the bottle and will prosecute the man who has offended against the O.T.A. before.

TOMATOES DECLINED

Potatoes Likely Lower Soon—Meats Are Steady in Price

There was a good supply of tomatoes on the market this morning and prices in consequence dropped, first to $1.25 per bushel, then to $1.15, and towards the close to $1.00. At noon many crates still remained unsold. Plenty of green tomatoes were offered at $1.00 per bushel. There were not so many plums offered today, the usual price of 75c and 80c being asked.

Potatoes while still held at $1.15 and $1.25 per bushel, are showing a tendency to a much needed decline. Apples were fairly plentiful at $1.00 per bushel.

Vegetables were in profusion, beets, carrots and so forth selling readily. Melons and pumpkins are offered in large numbers.

Hogs are quoted at $16.50 live-weight and porkers at $11.00 to $12 per pair.

Beef is a little firmer at 17c per pound wholesale for hind quarters. Lamb is wholesaling at 28c and 24c. Butter sold from 45c to 50c, the price being a little easier. Eggs were quoted at 43c to 45c and in wholesale circles are easier in tone. Chickens sell at 65c to $1 each. Oats at 60c to 62c; wheat at $2.10 and barley at $1.10 to $1.15 are unchanged.

TRENTON

Trenton, Sept. 20.—The young son of Mr. Geo. Auger who accidentally shot himself yesterday is improving and the doctors now think he will recover, providing blood poisoning does not set in. He is able to talk now and remembers everything but what happened at the time of the shooting, but it is pretty well understood that he was looking down the barrel with the butt of the 22 rifle on the ground and he accidentally kicked the gun as the bullet lodged in his cheek under the left eye. Yesterday he could not see out of the eye but today he can and he is able to move his foot on the side that was paralyzed. The doctors have not been able to extract the bullet as yet, which lodged back of the eye. Leo, who is an unusually bright boy, is very popular among all classes and his hosts of friends wish him a speedy recovery.

The W.A. of St. George's church held an afternoon tea at the factory yesterday afternoon which was very much enjoyed.

Mr. Allan Leigh is erecting a residence on Dundas street north of Dufferin avenue.

Mr. Durkin, of New York is in town today.

Mr. J. B. Christie who has been the master here for the past 30 years has been superannuated, but will continue to reside here.

Mr. and Mrs. C. N. Barclay turned from Montreal today.

THE SINN FEIN MOVEMENT

An English Writer's Impressions

The following is a summary of a letter addressed to the Press by Mr. Austin Harrison, a well known English writer, in which he gives some interesting impressions of the Sinn Fein movement and its leaders.

The idea of a political holiday in Ireland, tempting me, I readily accepted a friend's invitation, and together we sought Kilkenny.

It was a grand day when we started out to envisage the situation, but everything was remarkably quiet, and except for the flags and posies of police stationed here and there, Kilkenny seemed a very peaceful spot. That night we went to the cross roads to attend a Sinn Fein meeting.

Things Seen and Heard

Wedged in the crowd, I listened more and more with surprise. Was this Sinn Fein? Was I, an Englishman, so entirely safe among these Republicans? I was. Absolute good feeling prevailed. Of personal animosity to Englishmen there was no trace. I speak to a man next to me. He recognises my speech. We talk. "Oh, no, he likes Englishmen, but he wants to govern his own country that is all." But is that all? Always I hear these rumors of some dread event impending. I find some English officers and we talk. They don't like this police job. Every man in the regiment has a friend in the town. Why do we not give the Irish what they want? The next day I visit the offices of "The Kilkenny People." I see the machinery removed by the military. I speak to the proprietor. He is a pleasant man, and tells the story without the slightest hostility. I can see the incident has exasperated people. It probably gave the Sinn Fein two hundred votes.

But Kilkenny is so orderly, there are so few 'sticks' that I move away, only returning on the eve of the election. Clearly Sinn Fein holds the town. Sinn Fein pickets hold the streets. In perfect order Mr. Cosgrave is elected.

Puzzled

I meet Professor MacNeill, and we shake hands. I find him a man of high character. Disorder! Certainly not. "Our object is to prevent the disorder," he tells me. Again I am puzzled. He looks a little tired, but there is no hatred in this man. As we talk I learn to like him. We discuss ends and means. I am in front of a lofty mind, sincere, creative, and then I get in conversation with a policeman. "Once more I find a human being. They are well disciplined," he tells me. Clearly he bears no ill feeling. I leave Kilkenny somewhat baffled.

On the one hand, I seem to see a National movement running away with the country; and on the other, the difficulty contained in the responsibility of government which in its present shape all sections of opinion are agreed must go. Now I am convinced that Sinn Fein, in spite of the letters "I. R." on the Republican flag, is in its ultimate objective a constitutional movement; in a word it stands for interdependence of Republicanism or Home Rule, also that it is determined to preserve order and endure to the limits of what in Ireland has come to be known as provocation. Provocation may come in two ways. We know, for instance, that the Easter rising was the result of a somewhat mysterious generalship, the conditions of which may still exist though perhaps in Ireland at all, and unknown even to the leaders of the movement.

But I will not seek to enter into this side of the question. My object is rather to point out, as I see the situation, the tremendous responsibility at this juncture resting upon the English Government. The forcible suppression of the Kilkenny paper is a case. A certain baton charge in which children were injured is another. A recent case of potential trouble in connection with a Sinn Fein demonstration is another. All restrictive orders are, in fact, aggravating the situation, and here I foresee a danger.

Last night I saw a young man knocked down by the police in Westmoreland Street and left there unconscious. I have seen Cossacks do shenanigans in the case of a man who in Chartist Russia, I cannot believe that such brutality conduces to settlement. It is clear that Sinn Fein would sweep the country. If it were to do so, and Sinn Fein has its ultimate objective, aims at interdependence, then surely we English, who desire a settlement, should avoid anything in the shape of provocation. F. S. WALLBRIDGE,

Corner Front and Bridge Sts., Belleville, over Dominion Bank.

Ireland is literally Britain's good faith. The winning over of Ireland is the justification of our cause. Never, perhaps, has the consummation of that end looked more hopeful than at this hour.

The danger, it appears to me, lies solely in misunderstanding, in that want of openness and open dealing which have been the bane of the Irish problem. For what I see are certain forces inciting to provocation, even unconsciously so inciting, where the conditions for real understanding were never so promising and in a true sense solid. It is the atmosphere of secrecy and mystification which causes the danger. If the women of Ireland now acclaim Sinn Fein it is because of Easter week. In my opinion only the full measure of Home Rule can bring contentment, the difficulty is the intermediate stage—the timetable.

If Phoenix Park only bears that in mind, there is, I firmly believe, reason for unqualified hope. The danger lies in failing to adjust the timetable to what is absolutely necessary in the interests of common order and what is natural in the enthusiasm of the hour. Publicity would help immensely. We cannot afford another clash, nor will there be any necessity for it if we deal openly with the leaders of Sinn Fein in the spirit of the timetable pending settlement through and by the Convention.
