SMALL FIRE

Last evening about five o'clock the firemen were called out to box 16 on the corner of Head and Baldwin streets. The alarm first came in from J. D. Stark's grocery.

Albert Side's residence on St. Clair street had caught fire in the garret from the chimney. Not much damage was done by fire but the water did considerable damage to the building. The contents were all removed from the house and thus were not damaged. It was necessary to lay one line of hose to extinguish the flames. The firemen worked for about half an hour. They had the fire under control ten minutes after they got there.

THE REGISTRATION

The registration proceedings have not been nearly as lively this year as they were last election and not as much interest by a great deal is taken in the registration. Yesterday James Holmes registered 73. That was the largest number who were given the franchise at any polling booth in the city. Judge Bell registered 62, Judge Houston 60 and Judge Dowling gave 42 the right to vote. Things were a little more lively this morning for a while and at eleven o'clock Judge Dowling had 19 recorded.

The workers on both sides report that they have found a large number who have not been in the city the requisite three months.

In Windsor much more interest is taken in the registration and no booth there registered less than a hundred yesterday, while the total registration here was only 237. Last year there were in the neighborhood of 800 registered altogether, so that this year may show little change in the long run.

DID NOT LIVE HAPPILY

Mrs. Dee Said She Would Like to See Her Husband Dead.

Dr. Coleridge Swears At the Inquest That Mr. Dee Did of Strychnine—Mrs. Dee Denies Giving Him Anything—Mrs. Kennedy Swore Mrs. Dee Said She Would Kill Him if She Could—Evidence of Tuesday.

Ingersoll, Oct. 13.—The arrest of Mrs. William Dee of Salford, on suspicion of having murdered her husband, has produced a sensation in this vicinity. Mrs. Dee was taken before Magistrate Morrison and remanded for a week, when it is expected the coroner's jury will have given a verdict fixing responsibility for the crime.

Doctor's Testimony.

Dr. Coleridge, who attended the deceased just before his death, was the first witness called. When summoned to Salford he had been told to bring along a stomach pump. He naturally concluded then that it was a case of poisoning. He arrived at the Dee home and found the patient, William Dee, suffering from convulsions. His pulse was practically motionless and he was in great agony. The doctor proceeded to administer an antidote hypodermically and also attempted to give a little medicine. About the same moment the patient died. The doctor had been at his side only four minutes. There were no marks of violence on the body and Dr. Coleridge believed death to have been the result of strychnine.

Mrs. Dee On the Stand.

The wife of the deceased, Mrs. Dee, said she had first seen her husband Monday morning between 8 and 9 o'clock. He had eaten his breakfast and then had gone out to work. In a few minutes he returned feeling ill. He threw himself on the lounge and his wife prepared a drink of sweet milk and water but he did not drink it. Mrs. Dee was about to go to her neighbor's, John Quinn, for help, but her husband told her Quinn was away. Then she went to James Kennedy's, the sick man telling her as she left the house to hurry back as he felt lonesome. Mr. Kennedy sent for the doctor.

Returning home Mrs. Dee found her husband in a nervous state and suffering from convulsions. He said he had a bitter taste in his mouth, and that his breakfast made him sick. The witness testified that he had had potatoes, bread, butter, cake, pie and tea for breakfast. She had not breakfasted with him but had partaken of the meal at an earlier hour, as she had felt hungry.

"We have not lived happily together always," said Mrs. Dee on the witness stand. "I can't remember whether my husband ever threatened me or not. He was always good to buy things. I myself never threatened to do anything I should not do. I made all the breakfast yesterday morning except the cake. My husband remarked that the cake did not look right. He cut it and ate a piece. It had been purchased at Ingersoll on Friday of last week. I never threatened to give my husband anything. I never heard him say he would like to put himself out of the world. After Mrs. Kennedy came to our place yesterday morning my husband told me where his money was and said good-by. To my knowledge he had no poisonous drug in the house. He was with me when the cake was bought. I gave him everything he ate yesterday morning, and after Mrs. Kennedy came I gave him mustard and water to make him vomit. It never crossed my mind that I would like to put my husband out of the way. He asked me yesterday morning if I had given him anything bitter. I said no. We had no quarrel or dispute yesterday morning. I didn't eat any of the pie or cake at breakfast. After breakfast my husband went into the pantry."

Would Like Him Dead.

"I did not tell anyone," Mrs. Dee added, "that I would like to give my husband anything to make him sick, but not kill him. I did say I would like to see him dead. I don't remember us having any words Saturday or Sunday."

Mrs. James Kennedy, who proceeded to the Dee home after Mrs. Dee had asked Mr. Kennedy to go for the doctor, was the last witness called before adjournment. When Mrs. Dee called she told the witness that her husband was very ill and could not last long.

"I asked Mrs. Dee," said Mrs. Kennedy, "if she had given her husband anything, meaning poison. She said he had gotten his own breakfast. She had given him only a cup of tea. She had put milk in it. I asked Mrs. Dee the first question because of certain remarks she had made to me."

A Threat to Kill.

"Last spring and summer Mrs. Dee spoke to me of the treatment she received from her husband, and she said she would kill him if she could. She also spoke of going away, as she could not live with her husband. I told Mr. Dee of this unhappiness of Mrs. Dee, and he spoke kindly of her. Yesterday afternoon I asked Mrs. Dee if she remembered what she had said to me regarding her husband. She said yes, but that she didn't mean it at the time."

According to Mrs. Kennedy's testimony, Mrs. Dee was in no hurry to return to her sick husband after she had sent Mr. Kennedy for the doctor. When Mrs. Kennedy arrived at the Dee home, Mrs. Dee was lying on the floor and was in convulsions. He said he was ill because of something he had eaten for breakfast. He asked for an emetic, but Mrs. Dee said they had better not interfere until the doctor came. Mrs. Dee spoke of the cake being bitter. Mrs. Kennedy left the house to go for Mrs. Fyfe.

Will Investigate This.

Peterboro, Oct. 13.—Suspensions have been aroused regarding the very sudden death of Mrs. Fred Myles, who died in the township of Dummer on Oct. 5. Two days previous to her death she went to Newwood, a distance of 10 miles from her home, and had an insurance policy of $1,000 placed on her life in the Standard Insurance Company, she having passed the required medical examination. In less than 48 hours she was dead, heart disease being the cause that was given out to the public. Coroner Grey will hold an inquest to-day.

Suspicion in Gamble's Death.

Stratford, Oct. 13.—Some mysterious circumstances have cropped up in connection with the death of Albert Gamble, who disappeared about two months ago from Mr. Scott's, Poole, where he had been staying, and whose body was found in a swamp near Milverton Tuesday morning. Mr. Scott asserts positively that Gamble had with him a purse containing about $15, a bank book with a credit of $500 and a gold watch. None of these were found on the body. An inquest was opened yesterday morning, but was adjourned until Oct. 17, pending investigation.

...SOCIETY...

BALL—HOLDBROOK.

A wedding of considerable interest to Maple City society was solemnized at Waco, Texas, last evening when Charles Ball, son of William Ball, Victoria avenue, and Miss Helen Lenora Holdbrook were united in marriage. The ceremony was performed in St. Paul's Episcopal church, Waco, Texas, at 8.30 p. m. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ball are expected in this city next week on their wedding trip.

Mrs. R. J. Gardiner gave a charming tea on Tuesday afternoon in honor of her sister, Mrs. J. F. Cairns, of Saskatoon. The color scheme was brown, one well suited to the autumn season. The table was covered with brown felt and inlaid with a mirror. The cake and ice cream were brown and chocolate figured in the refreshments to a great extent. Mrs. C. J. Moore, Mrs. J. F. Cairns and Mrs. Gardiner received in the drawing room. In the tea room Mrs. William Gordon, Mrs. Joseph Hadley, Mrs. Fred. Stevens, Mrs. W. W. Scane and Mrs. H. S. Clements accepted. Mrs. Greening, Mrs. Pilkey and Mrs. G. W. Cornell assisted in the drawing room.

You must Register before Saturday night!
