Close observation on the part of a newspaper man in Boston several years ago revealed a striking device employed by the firm of McKim, Mead & White, the noted New York archi-tects, of which Stanford White, who which the firm's name was to be engraved on the Boston Public library.

As may be observed, the arrangement defied literature, history and philoso-phy in arrangement, and this was the thing that attracted the newspaper

Moses,

Cicero, Kalidasa, Isocrates, Milton.

These names, through their initials, formed the first part of the acrostic, spelling plainly "McKim." A slight space appeared before the next list of names, which was:

Mozart, Euclid, Aeschylus, Dante.

The initials of these names brought out the second name of the firm, "Mead." Another slight space, and the

Here was the name "White" also en the building was completed, that the discovery was made and published. The list of names was changed.

Dear Sirs,—While in the country last summer I was badly bitten by mosquitoce, so badly that I thought I would be disfigured for a couple of weeks. I was advised to try your Liniment to allay the irritation, and did so. The effect was more than I expected, a few applications completely curing the irritation, and preventing the bites from becoming sore. The Bird's Bill Was Locked A curious bird tragedy is told about in the London Field. A man found a yellow hammer dead in his yard at the foot of a wall. The bird had flown against it with such force as to be stunned. Not only that, but the upper mandible had been bent back, and in the straightening out the sharp point was driven down through the lower bill and locked, thus dooming the bird to death by starvation. The man sent the head to the Field. A good many similar accidents have been recorded, but it was always a heavier bird, whose weight made the springing of the bill easier. A good many of the birds were found in a starved condition, showing that they died lingering deaths from want of food. Birds that fly against
