WRECKERS ON THE COAST OF NEWFOUNDLAND.

Mr A. Gilchrist, of Galt, Ont. has sent to a western paper account of his adventure on coast of Newfoundland last June from which we take the following extracts:—

Nailed from Montreal on Saturday, 11th June, steamship "Ashburne," Capt. Wm. Hall. All went well Thursday, June 16th, when 2.30 a. m. our steamer stranded in Mall Bay, west coast of Newfoundland. We learned that we were 60 miles from the nearest telegraph station and of 120 miles from Bay of Islands the nearest port from which we could possibly expect a help or vessels. There are several families in Mall Bay, who stop port themselves by fishing and hunting. Excepting the light house at Point Rich, and the huts afterwards mentioned there is no other habitation within thirty miles. On enquiring as to the safety of the steamer should it blow, they assured us with a strong wish from N. E. or N. W., SHE COULD NOT RESIST IT FOR A DAY, and that no boat could possibly leave her or live in the sea. Reporting to the captain he decided on landing the cattle and throwing the cargo overboard meanwhile keeping a sharp lookout to land for any appearance of change of weather. Having been seen that no boat could lie alongside of any description, and, moreover, that the time occupied in landing the sheep and cattle by boat, had circumstances even been most favorable, would have jeopardized the ship, it was resolved to throw them overboard and let them swim for it. The sheep were the first to go, although a few of them got ashore over 520 were drowned. The clinging to the steamer with remarkable tenacity and swiftness round and round

BLEATING PITHEOUSLY,
The sight was a sad one and moved all who witnessed it. The power of endurance was greater in some than in others but at the average time they could sustain themselves was about forty minutes. Fearing that the bullocks might share the same fate the captain decided to land them ashore from boat and two being obtained from the fishermen which were light and more easily handled than those belonging to the steamer. Being hoisted from their stalls to the deck the animals were forced along a gangway to the shipside, but on sighting the water they made such a determined stand that it took six or eight men to force them over the ships bulwarks. They leaped about fourteen feet, and, we sup-
