"Kitty, dear," cried the lover, as he yearned hungrily over the back gate, 'you are the sum total of my heart's calculation, and though I hoped to gain.

A man without religion is to be pitied, by your addition, you set me at naught and leave me but to sigh for —." Just here the eld man solved his arithmetical harangue by footing him. To the alley.

In the history of medicines no prepa ration has received such universal com mendation for the alleviation is affords, and the permanent cure it effects in kid-ney diseases, as Dr. Van Buren's Kidney Cure. Its action in these distressing up man till thirty should perceive the complaints is simply wonderful. Seld there's a plain woman,—Byron. by J. Wilson. 2m

A man with red hair entered a railway car at the Union depot is St. Joseph, Mo, the other day and took his seat. A moment later another man with a fiery top knet and vermillion whiskers came in and sat down beside him. They ooked at each other, but said nothing until a third traveller with a scariet crest appeared men the scene. Then the youngest of the trio arose and remarked, to the general amusement, that he would do what he could to prevent a conflagration in case of accident by riding in another car. He was on his way to the door when, amid a roar of laughter that shook the windows, a fourth passenger, with a head like a beacon light flamed into the Then the quartette sat down together and made so much fun for the rest of the passengers that everybody

They are as fatal to health and beauty as they are misleading in effect. The blackened eye may look larger and the painted lip redder under the uncertain flare of the gas-lamp; but when seen at home in the broad and honest noonday sun the eye is lustreless, and flaming carmine distorts the mouth, the powdered shin loses its transparency, and the soft brown hair which formerly enhance the whiteness of the skin now appears a lifeless growth of metallic yellow or mahogany red without light or shade in it. The very men who pretend to admire these artificial dolls would hesitate to range their sisters among, or choose their wives from their ranks, thus once more verifying the old dictum, that a thing may look well in the shop window and yet not so adapted for home wear and tear.
