THE POET PHILOSOPHER.

How thankful we should be, my friends, the weather is so warm! No esty sky above us bends, we fear no arctic storm! Sweet summer lingers with us yet, the good old fashioned sort; and down my SIZZLING face refreshing sweat is rolling by the quart. The sun is sizmling through the skies, and paints its pathway red; the dear, delightful sportive flies are dancing on my head. And as I conplate the booms that cluster over me. I eat another dish of prunes and sied some tears of glee. Now while we loll in comfort here, let's think dethers' woes; the Eskimo who drives his deer among the drifted snows what would be give to sit with us, the mercury beside, and fan himself ed cuss, and cuss, while being slowly fried? What would the man of Lapad give to quit his native soil, in this, our sunny land to live, and atch his whishers broil? I do not have to shovel snow, and that is rely nice; and never am I asked to throw coal askes on the ice; you do see me on the fire big chunks of y man desire? I'm happy as a clam. George Matthew Atlanta Oack Mason dwood slam. What more could Sleep is Soundest From Then Until Half-past Eleven.

A scientific investigation of progress of sleep of the normal person has resulted in the production of graphically, almost like a fever chart, how the depth of sleep varies with the different hours of the night. It is suggested that the right time to go to bed is 10 o'clock. If a man or woman retires at that hour the intensity of sleep and soundness of repose increases gradually until 11 o'clock. Then suddenly sleep becomes very profound, and by 11.30 at its soundest. By 11.45 it begins to-day is a reality. to decrease slightly, and at 12.30 is about the same as at 11.15. The soundness of slumber then gradually decreases until 2.30, when it increases again slightly, but at 4 begins to ally tapers down to wakefulness at sults. 6 o'clock, when the normal person who retired at 10 is supposed to get

Special to The Evening Telegram:

With significant unanimity, the French press favors the idea of submitting the Moroccan question to an other European Conference, as Germany is believed to be averse to again appealing to the Powers. This sudden chorus seems to indicate that the word has been given to demand that present negotiations be broken off and a conference summoned in the hope of bringing pressure to bear upon Germany, in order to make her come to terms. No doubt is expressed as regards a peaceable settlement of the crisis, and it is generally believed here that any danger that may have existed has been averted by England's attitude.

pecial to Evening Telegram.

LONDON, Aug. 4. The Standard claims to have good athority for the statement that all danger of war over the Moroccan question has vanished. Disputed points between Germany and France, the newspaper say, have been settled as to principle, but the details still remain subject for negotiation. France will cede to Germany territory in French Congo in return for a free hand in Morocco, thus there is no fear of Germany permanently occupying posts in Morocco.

Papal Delegate Thanks Bishop March.

St. John's, Nfld., July 30, 1911. Rt. Rev. J. March. D.D.

Bishop of Harbor Grace. My Lord Bishop,-I am still under the impression of the very cordial fee ception tendered me at Harbor Grace, and I take this first opportunity to offer your Lordship, your devoted clergy and people, the expression of my best thanks. I shall long cherish the remembrance of my first visit to Newfoundland, and among the many agreeable memories which I shall carry away with me, not the least pleasant will be the hearty, wholesculed demonstrations of Catholic faith and loyalty to the Holy See, of which I was witness in the Diocsse of Harber Grace.

It will be my duty at an early date

a tell the Holy Father how deeply the Catholics of this Island are attached to him and devoted to the Holy See, and I am sure that, amidst his many trials, the homage and fealty of his children in this distant country will be a source of consolation and comfort to him. I am only sorry that he could not have seen with his own eyes what I have seen during these last ten days, and that he could not have received in person what has been tendered to his humble representative. pray that Almighty God may always keep alive and fervent in the hearts of the people their earnest faith. which not only does them honor, but evidences as well the zeal and deotedness of their Bishop and Clergy. I take this occasion to bless once more your faitaful people, and, with regards. I beg to remain. Your Lordship's very obedient ser
