A despatch from Sofia to the Daily Mail says that a Bulgarian detachment, after destroying the railway for some little distance around Eskibaba, withdrew to that village. Adrianople is surrounded and its fall almost immediately, is considered certain. Azim Bey, the Governor of Kirk Killiseh, who is said to have been responsible for the panic there, had been executed, according to a Constantinople despatch to the Mail.

LONDON, Oct. 29.

In the present nervous tension regarding the general European situation, extreme importance attaches to a telegram, which the Czar of Russia has sent to King Peter of Serbia, congratulating him that the Serbian army had proved successful in Macedonia, without needing to invoke assistance from outside. At the time this despatch is filed, no information has come as to its effect in Vienna, but it may reasonably be surmised that it will be regarded as most unpleasant, and cause an alarming demonstration. One has only to remember that, but for German threats, Russia would have mobilized against Austria when the latter executed her Bosnia-Herzegovina coup. Serbia's territorial ambitions, now almost openly avowed, are the chief danger points in the relations of the Great Powers. Austria will not tolerate any change in the status quo. Russia, by the Czar's congratulatory telegram practically exposes and commends Serbia's ambitions. A despatch to the Daily Mail from Vienna clearly states the Austrian position. The overwhelming success of the Bulgarian and Serbian armies is not regarded as sufficient warrant for modifying the determination of Austria to maintain the status quo. Should it become evident, however, that such cannot be everything will depend upon the attitude of Serbia to her Austro-Hungarian neighbour. Serbia's ambitions for an outlet to the Adriatic through the Sandjak of Novi-Bazar, cannot be easily squared with Austria's policy, which regards Novi-Bazar as a special legacy on the demise of the "Sick Man." The Czar's despatch is a notification to Austria that, if she attempts to interfere with Serbia's plans, she will find Russia against her. This would be the beginning of a European Armageddon, because Germany, which supported Austria three years ago, when threatened by Russia would certainly do so again. This would necessitate France, and probably Britain, coming to Russia's assistance. It is significant that in England it is being pointed out that no better combination of circumstances could arise in favor of the Triple Entente than to embark on war with Germany at such a moment, for Austria, attacked by the Balkan States in the South, and Russia in the North, would be unable to offer any assistance to Germany, and Germany would, therefore, have to detail a considerable number of troops to guard her eastern frontier, and would be unable to hurl her full strength against France.

BERLIN, Oct. 29.

The "Frankfurter Zeitung" prints a Vienna despatch, evidently emanating from official sources, saying it is time for intervention by the Powers, whether requested or not. If Turkey is defeated in the impending battle between Adrianople and Constantinople, it will be high time for Europe to look to its interests, since the destruction of European Turkey could not be tolerated; nor could the occupation of Constantinople by another Power. Blood enough has been shed, and peace can be offered to both sides if Bulgaria is defeated, with good prospects of acceptance. Austria is not likely to attack Serbia, as that would mean immediate war with the Balkan Alliance. A decisive battle is expected within a few days, hence intervention is probable within a week.

"Syrup of Figs."

Look at the tongue, Mother! If coated, it is a sure sign that your little one's insides, the stomach, liver and 30 feet of bowels are clogged up with purifying waste matter and need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once. When your child is listless, drooping, pale, doesn't sleep soundly or eat heartily or is cross, irritable, feverish, stomach sour, breath bad; has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, sore throat, or is full of cold, give a teaspoonful of Syrup of Figs, and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, undigested food and sour bile will gently move on and out of its little bowels without nausea, griping or weakness, and you will have a well, happy, and smiling child again shortly.

With Syrup of Figs you are not What does it matter if nights are long, posed entirely of lucious figs, senna and aromatics it cannot be harmful, besides they dearly love its delicious taste.

President of the Board of Agriculture, criticized Lord Roberts, and apologized to Germany, saying, "I can see no reason for which Britain need be involved anywhere. Whatever may be happening in the Balkans, there is nothing for England to go to war about. It is because of the supreme importance of never exciting animosities that I deplore the speech of Lord Roberts at Manchester a few nights ago. The Field Marshal is doing no service to this country when he makes, at a public meeting, what practically amounts to a statement that war between England and Germany is inevitable. I do not believe such a war is inevitable, and I think that statements like those of Lord Roberts are not only deplorable, but dangerous. If Germany resents it, I would like that nation to know that it is resented no less in England."

J. H. Whitehouse, M.P., has given notice that he will ask the Secretary of State for War, if his attention has been called to the speech of Lord Roberts, on October 22nd, in which the Field Marshal said it was the policy of Germany to attack England as soon as her preparations were complete; and whether, in view of the friction that such language creates between this country and Germany, he will take steps to prevent general officers of the British Army from using such language concerning a friendly Power. Colonel Jellicoe will also be asked if any representation on behalf of Germany has been made to the Foreign Office.

The New Minister

BY H. L. RANN.

Ministers.

The new minister is a shy plant, which is torn up by the roots every three or four years and located among total strangers. Sometimes this is done at the request of the minister, and sometimes at the request of an irate body of parishioners.

Whenever a minister is transplanted as the result of insurgency in the church it will usually be found that the leading insurgents are those who never attend divine worship except on Easter Sunday, but who contribute heavily from a front pew on the platform. Their criticism of the minister always is that his sermons are not interesting.

The first thing the new minister is called upon to do is to revamp the Ladies' Aid Society and reorganize the choir, whose members stay away from church in order to show their respect for the old pastor. Some of the heaviest contributors express a deep sense of disappointment by cutting down their contributions to $2.50 per quarter, payable in cord wood.

As soon as the new minister lands in town he is taken to the home of one of the pillars and given an unbiased pedigree of the membership. This task is usually confided to some brother who is wholly free from notes and beams and who aims to be sound asleep when the collection box is being circulated.

After the new minister gets acquainted, he finds that there isn't much of anything to do except dig out two sermons a week, heal up a large resonant split in the church, keep up the finances, collect his own salary, reconcile some of the warring brethren, and act as janitor. It is no wonder that the average community looks upon the minister as a pampered pet of luxury, with nothing to do but flit around in a Prince Albert coat and serve mixed metaphors twice on Sunday.

If some of the caustic critics in the news could exchange places with the minister for a week, there would be less clandestine yawning at the evening service and fewer care-free comments on the morning discourse.

Mr. Fitzpatrick's Offer to Council.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir—A correspondent of your paper, signing himself "Higher Levels," came out the other night and endeavored to convey the impression that I had been induced by Mr. Fitzpatrick to write boosting up his offer to the city. Since this effusion appeared, Mr. Fitzpatrick has denied the accusation publicly, and up to date we have not been favoured by any more of the classical productions of the "big man with the small mind."

The day is passed in this city, thank God, when blatted upstarts like Mr. Higher Levels could come out and silence the voice of the workingman either by threat or influence. The people of this town are looking for improvements in their dwellings, we are sick and tired of hearing the matter discussed, and now, when one of our citizens comes out and makes a bona fide offer, we are supposed by Mr. Higher Levels to discountenance his offer, simply because he thinks Mr. Fitzpatrick is going to become as rich as a Jew in less than no time.

Now, Mr. Editor, everyone knows that in order to erect houses for the people one of the first things required is land. This has been offered and when the street is run through it no doubt will be procurable for a moderate sum.

If we are in earnest about the housing business we should start in and do something, not talk on unceasingly summer and winter. If on the other hand the Council and Councilors are only playing hide and seek on the matter, they should look for some lighter subject to amuse themselves with, for I can assure them that we have people living in tenements in this town that are not fit for a dog to live in. Mr. Higher Levels can bask in his nicely heated, brilliantly lighted and perfectly ventilated drawing room, there he can produce letters throwing cold water on a genuine offer of a respectable citizen, and now that he is challenged by this gentleman to come out over his own signature he hangs back and sings dumb after having made his little dart. But surely the Council are not going to lose sight of this offer. Come, gentlemen, wake up and do something to improve the intolerable condition under which we exist.

Yours truly,
PROGRESS.
