Mount Carmel Cemetery.

The Managing Committee of Mount Carmel Cemetery held its 17th anniversary meeting last evening. The Treasurer presented the financial statement which had been duly audited. It met with unanimous approval and passed. The election of officers was then proceeded with and the following gentlemen were chosen:—
Mr. M. J. Malone—Chairman.
Mr. J. Dalton—Treasurer.
Mr. J. P. Grace—Secretary.
Auditors:—Messrs. McGrath and Angel.
Labour Committee to work in conjunction with the Executive:—Messrs. Kenna, Angel and Callahan.

The amount of work as outlined by the chairman which is necessary to be done the coming season will be costly and extensive; repairs to paths, boundary fences, etc. The committee are sanguine that means will be forthcoming to meet all demands and if possible to wipe off a portion of loan on the concrete retaining wall along the front entrance, Quidi Vidi Road. It was decided, it means will allow, to have the interior of the Mortuary Chapel embellished during the coming season. Several other important matters appertaining to God's Acre were discussed. Votes of thanks were tendered to all parties interested for generous financial aid during the year and particularly to the Press for courtesy received.

Grape Juice.

All honor to the peerless Bryan, who, custom's obsolete deity, fermented dope cheese, a n d thereby shocks the red-nosed stickler who wants to swallow some good pickler, some rich imported booze. Wine, men once thought at meals was very important, even necessary; they had their daily toots, and diligently, at the table, poured down as much as they were able, and slumbered in their boots. But we've outgrown this silly custom, and others of the kind, dad bust 'em, which make our fathers sick; and with no alcoholic quiver we wash down onions and fried liver with water from the creek. When we attend a big swell dinner we find that coffee is a whisper, "It warms us to our toes; we ask for drinks that leave us sober as are the heavens in October, and no perma goes. And when the long drawn feast is ended we seek our couches feeling splendid and snore throughout the night; and rise when we have had our slumber without that taste, the hue of amber, which makes the mouth a sight. When men who have exalted places against Old Booze shall turn their faces, the nation should applaud; there is no time or place or season when man can find a decent reason for drinking forty-rod.

The Month of Beauty.

JUNE is the month of snow white beauty—with color as a background. Peeping white lingerie, white stockings, white waists and white dispositions are the mode.

Women never look so lovely as in June. With their laces and the graces they seem to flit about like White Cross nurses in the battle of hearts, and the way they attend to the wounded is merciful.

The stores are billows of whiteness in these first June days—great waves of white waists come rolling in, and the great lines of white petticoats with their laces and embroideries look like the white, swayed, foaming crests that fling themselves at the shore.

If you haven't caught this spirit of the white month, by all means get it now.

There is a charm to this white apparel which only a woman can understand, but which every man can feel. And as for colors?

Why use them of course. For color is the natural background for white. Any color goes with white, for white is all colors in one.

Colored waists, colored dresses, colored hats, slippers and stockings, in harmony—or in pleasing contrast, if you will—but let the underlying feeling of your whole dress ensemble carry the idea of white.

This is a wonderful month for you in the stores. Everything imaginable to lend to the mystery of your charm is now on display.

Slippers, hosiery, lingerie, dresses, waists, millinery, neckwear, fabrics, embroideries, laces—are all waiting for you in heaping piles and in bulging racks. And all of these things are being advertised in this paper to-day and every day to help you in your choice.

Read every one of these Ads—they all have a story to tell. They all are showing you plans for the increasing of your pleasure and your charm.

And when advertising can do that for a woman, it should be gratefully received.

People Oppose Navy Vote.

Bourassa's Latest Outburst.—Asserts on Word of Honor that Cabinet Ministers Have Expressed a Lack of Faith.

Montreal May 22.—In a bitter attack against Premier Borden, to-day, Henri Bourassa, affirms, under his word of honor, that cabinet ministers have confessed the unpopularity of the two naval policies. He writes: "Think of it," said one of the ministers, "what humiliation for Canada and the Empire if the people should vote against the contribution." "To obtain a majority and even a decent vote in Ontario," said another minister hailing from that province, "we would have to drag the voters to the polls."

Anticipate the Denials.

"Mr. Loughheed, Minister without portfolio, and the Government leader in the Senate, admitted that in the provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan the majority would be considerably opposed to both naval policies. "About these admissions," adds Bourassa, "and I cannot give legal proofs, those interested being dominated by party exigencies would deny them, but I affirm on my honor that the information comes from a direct and most reliable source."

Reform of Senate.

As to the threat that the Senate would have to vote the contribution otherwise the Senate would be "reformed," Bourassa says: "Such a threat is unworthy of the Prime Minister. The man who uttered such a menace is neither the statesman nor the honest man, but is the chief, or rather the instrument, of an arrogant faction, inspired by jingoism and the gold of the trust of armaments. The Senate would be unworthy of its functions, and would deserve public contempt if it should yield to such an audacious attempt of blackmailing."

Children's Parade.

And Sports at Job's Cove.

A very enjoyable time was held at Job's Cove, Conception Bay, on Friday, May 23rd. In the early afternoon the pupils of the R. C. School, about 60 in number, paraded through the village. The girls wearing the colours which form the Flag of our Empire led the parade; the boys, dressed in neat uniforms and carrying wooden rifles came second. Cheers were given for His Majesty King George V., Her Majesty Queen Mary and for His Excellency Governor Davidson. A programme of athletic sports was successfully carried out. In the school room the children delighted their hearers with a number of songs and recitations. A gun drill by the boys proved very attractive. They were afterwards given a lunch, and few failed to do justice to the good things provided. A football team had been expected from Western Bay, but owing to some unavoidable event nearly all the players had to stay back at the last moment. J. Tobin (Western Bay), and R. English (Job's Cove), selected a five each. The game proved very interesting and resulted in a win for the latter by 3 goals to 1. About fifty couples attended the dance which was held at night. The proceeds go towards the building fund of the handsome new church at Northern Bay, which, through the energy of Rev. J. Lynch, is rapidly nearing completion.

Richard III.

By H. L. RANN.

Richard III. was an English King who put in most of his time removing relatives from the line of succession with a broadaxe. He was one of the meanest kings England ever had, and if it had come to a popular election he couldn't have carried his own ward. He was continually shedding the blood of somebody who would rather be let alone, and when he died the florists did not notice any access in business.

When Richard grew up and decided to reach for the English throne, he found that several people stood in front of him, among whom were quite a sprinkling of uncles, nephews and fourth cousins on his mother's side. Whenever Richard saw these people blocking the path to the throne, simply because they were born closer to the family tree, he would bite his lower lip impatiently and hire somebody to smother a few in a feather bed. This was Richard's favorite method of murdering unreasonable relatives who refused to step out of the line and let him get up to the pie counter, and he finally discouraged so many by this treatment that he became king.

As soon as Richard took the throne a lot of uneasy relatives whom he had been unable to get to begin to conspire against him in a loud tone of voice. The Duke of Buckingham was one of these, and Richard had him beheaded with considerable agility. Finally the Earl of Richmond, who had been putting around Brittany for several years, looking for an opening, landed on the field of Bosworth, pinned red roses on his soldiers and attacked Richard's army in the right hip. Richard's soldiers did not like cursory fashion, in which they were aided by some of Richard's choicest cures, retired from the scene with was not afraid of automobiles. He made great unanimity.

When Richard saw himself deserted he grew desperate and offered to trade what was left of his kingdom for a good, sound saddle horse that not afraid of automobiles. He made this offer twice, but nobody took him up, as his kingdom was considered to be about all in. He was able to run on account of owning a game leg, and finally was stabbed in the cuirass and other vital spots with so much earnestness that he expired in some of Mr. Shakespeare's best blank verse.

Disposing of His Half.

Lancashire men are very fond of dogs, but there are limits, and a prominent dog fancier was not over pleased when he came home one night recently and found that his son had bought a tired-looking mongrel.

"How much didst thee gie for the dog?" he asked.

"Five shillings," replied the son. "Tell thee what A'll do," remarked the father. "A'll go shares wi thee. A'll gie thee half-a-crown for ma share."

The son agreed, and the half-crown was paid over. Then the fancier went on: "A'll tak' tall out, an' A'm went to kick my half outen t' door."

And he did.

ORANGEDALE, C.B., Aug. 7, '08.
Blacking & Mercantile Co., Ltd., Amherst, N.S.
Dear Sirs,—We have nothing but good to say of Mathieu's Syrup and can conscientiously describe it as the most popular and successful Cough Medicine we handle. Owing to the absence of any drug store in this vicinity there is a great variety of proprietary medicine sold in the course of the year, and Mathieu's Syrup pre-eminently leads in its own class. Yours sincerely,
D. MARTIN.
