Our Street.

There is no wealth in our street,
No stately mansions rise;
We are the poor and humble folk
Whom purse-proud snobs despise.

But we have given to the Flag
Of stalwart men a share;
When Victory crowns the cause of Right
We're represented there!

Not all the pomp that wealth can give
Can render more complete
The pride those stately soldiers bring
Each day to our street.

An unpretentious thoroughfare,
The dwelling of the poor;
All day the rosy children run
In glee from door to door.

"Inspectors" every one, they go
Their khaki friends to greet.
They call those soldier lads their own,
"The boys of our street."

Smile if thou wilt, wise (?) shirker,
Or fling the coward jeer—
'Tis not the time for such as thou,
The time for MEN is here!

Men of the breed who tremble not,
Foes of their land to meet—
Men of the race whose spirit flows
In boys of our street.

St. John's, Feb. 19th, 1915. NELL.

From Fort George

Private Peter Sampson (Fox Harbor, P. B.), to Wm. McCue, Fox Hr. Fort George, Inverness, Scotland, January 19th, 1915.

Dear Friend,—I received your kind letter and also the tobacco, for which I am most thankful. It was really a gift. I am glad to hear all are well and enjoying themselves. I am having a delightful time. I was disappointed when I read over the list of names for the next five hundred and saw none of the boys were coming. Placentia District is not doing her share. There are only seven or eight of us here now and no more coming this time. Well, in fact, none of the outposts are sending what they should. There are plenty like me—only better men—or at least think they are, so now is the time to show what sort of stuff they are made of. There is nothing to be afraid of. If your time to die is not come, you won't be killed; anyway, boys, it would be far better to be shot than to be under the German flag, but there is not the least danger of that. We are sure to win, for a British soldier is worth one hundred Germans and we ought to thank God that we are British. I have nothing strange to tell you. We are well treated and cared for in every way. You are not to mind a silly letter you may see in the papers. I saw one saying we had no pay for six weeks and saying our officers were not good. But it is all rot, the man who wrote that must know it was a lie. Capt. George Carly is in command of our Company and Lieut. C. Wighton, Lieut. R. H. Tait and Lieut. Goodridge, and I'm sure there are not better fellows in Newfoundland than these; the fellow who says they're no good, don't know a good man when he sees one. Wishing you good bye.

From your sincere friend,
PETER SAMPSON.

WAR EVERLASTING.

The daily papers tell about the war, give all the news—that's what they're for. They're full of tales, dramatic, stern and sad, and lists of dead from this or that; they tell how French has wisely moved his troops, and how the Turks defeated leave their coops. All news that's fresh the daily papers yield, for it rakes o'er every crimson field. Then come the weeklies, with their stories raw, their highbrow writers thrashing ancient straw: the yarns with which the daily prints are through, are rearranged, and handed us as new. And when the news is stale as last year's beans, it's warmed again, by monthly magazines. And now all authors, in their cozy dens, oil their machines and fill their fountain pens, and write of war, and all their coming books will smack of blood and guns—and army cookies. Their plots they'll glean from stories you have read; like coroners they'll gloat above their dead; and every page will speak of dying groans, and every chapter treat of dead men's bones. War has more evils than the soldier knows when he's shot by, or when he shoots, his foes. The stay-at-homes must suffer just as well, and sigh with one who knew, "Ah, war is hell!"
