Mary Jane or Rosalie Cecilia?

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

A letter friend suggested to me the other day that it would be a splendid idea if children were called pet names in their babyhood and permitted to name themselves after they grew up.

"My mother named me Rosalie Cecilia," she writes. "I looked and act like Mary Jane. I am large, square and matter-of-fact. When people hear my name they always laugh. I have tried to be called Cecilia as the lesser of two evils and I sign R. Cecilia, but people want to hear what the R. stands for and that annoys them more than ever. Now is it fair that because my mother was romantic over her first little pink and white baby that a sensible, plain, unromantic woman should be burdened with a name like that?"

No Wonder She Feels Strongly.

One can readily understand the warmth with which my letter friend advocates this reform. A name like that on a person if doesn't fit is as out of place and awkward as he sits and furbelows of sweet sixteen on plain, angular and forty. It isn't so bad when the mistake is the other way round. Mary Jane imposed upon a girl who is a Rosalie Cecilia in heart and appearance is like a demure Quaker costume on a very pretty girl. It gives an added pliancy to her charm.

But as to letting the young folks name themselves—at what age, pray, should they be permitted to exercise this function?

The scheme is one which has suggested itself to me several times but

I always paused in the face of that difficulty.

Would the names we choose at twelve or sixteen be any more suitable to our matured selves than the choice of our adoring parents?

When we were about twelve a group of us girls had a club and one of its most delightful features was that we club members knew each other not by the names inflicted upon us by misguided parents but names of our own choosing. One girl was Lily, another Violet, another Millicent, another Vivienne, while I recalled their own formerly despised names, Joan and Anne.

Perhaps twenty would be a picturesque and appropriate time for a young person to select his name—just as he stepped into his majority. But I'm not sure that even then he would like the name the rest of his life. Besides, any former name would have become irremovably glued to his personality by that time.

I sympathize with you with all my heart, Mary Jane that should have been, but I just can't devise any new way that would be materially better than the old. Can you?

Questions and Answers.

Question: A letter friend writes that she still clings to the feeling "I'm a man because a woman couldn't be so logical. Don't I agree with her?"

Reply: I know you mean to compliment me but please don't do it by running down my sex. The most illogical, prejudiced person I know is a man. To be honest, the most logical is also a man but both of these facts are accidents of my acquaintance. There are logical men and logical women, and more of the latter every day. Men have formerly encouraged women to be illogical because they like to laugh at them and feel their own superiority, but I hope and trust they are growing out of that "blest their sweet eyebrows but confound their intelligence" attitude.

Concert at Catalina.

A very attractive concert was held in the Roman Catholic Hall here on Easter Monday night. The hall was beautifully decorated and the stage presented a splendid appearance. The doors were opened at 7.30 p.m. in charge of Mr. McLoughlan, ready to admit all and for a time he was busily engaged collecting tickets and changing money until all seats had been filled and more chairs had to be procured for the big crowd that assembled to take in the entertainment. At 8 o'clock the chairman, Rev. O'Dwyer called the audience to order and made mention of his appreciation of the large number present and expressed his thanks to those who were taking part in the performance, particularly Mr. C. Tavernor, the station agent here. He then introduced the performers with the opening chorus, "Riding down from Bangor" which was nicely delivered by all the performers.

The programme being very lengthy occupied the time till 11.30 p.m., dialogues, recitations and songs being delivered by each of the performers in turn, and as each one finished, the audience appreciated the same with clapping. Miss L. Guy sang the old favorite song, "Why did they sell Killarney?" in a most pleasing manner while Miss N. Hartery sang the "Sing me the Rosary" which was judged good. The Highland Fling by Miss Humphries and Mr. Murphy was a real treat and the dialogue entitled, "Doctor's Holiday" was carried out in a most realistic manner in each act. The Minstrel Show by Messrs. Hogan and Tavernor was a "big hit." Mr. Hogan's story of "his granny and her knee-knocked daughter" was loudly applauded, while Mr. Tavernor's "Dream of his trip to Heaven" and the "Cook's Surprise over a locomotive injury" set the audience in a roar of laughter that near shook the building.

The concert all through was a thorough success and much praise is due all those who took part, especially Messrs. Tavernor, Hartery and Hunt; and by no means forgetting Mr. P. Hogan who organized it. The proceeds doubled the amount expected. After the concert a dance was given free of charge and the younger element remained behind and enjoyed themselves until the wee 'small hours' of the morning, when all dispersed feeling quite satisfied with the night's functions.

Mr. Allen's Evening Concert.

The programme of this concert which will be given in the Methodist College Hall on Thursday next, will include S. S. Wesley's beautiful anthem for five voices, "Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace whose mind is stayed on Thee," which is considered by some to be his greatest work, and H. Arnold Smith's Madrigal: "Here a pretty Baby lies," which was composed in the examination room, Oxford University, in the course of the final examination for the Degree of Mus. Bac. in November, 1910. The complete programme appears in our advertisement columns, and is made up of 14 numbers given by The Cathedral Choir, Misses Mitchell, Duley and Herder and Messrs. Thos. G'Neil and A. H. Allen. The seating arrangements on this occasion will be as follows: The 75c reserved seats will run from A to M in the middle block only, the 50c reserved seats running from A to N on both sides and from J to N in the middle block.

Religious Reception.

At St. Patrick's Convent, Riverhead, on Tuesday, 6th inst., there took place the very pleasing ceremony of Religious Reception. The young lady who that day received the White Veil was Miss M. Goss, called in religion, Sister M. Bridget, daughter of Mr. T. Goss, of Torbay. The ceremony was performed by the Archbishop-Elect, assisted by Rev. J. T. Cox, S. J., and Rev. Fr. P. J. Coyne, S. J. Fr. Coyne in a very touching address reminded the Novice of the obligation of the step she was that day taking, and also of the "hundred-fold" promised by Our Lord to those who leave all to follow Him. The Archbishop-Elect, with the benediction of the newly-received, were afterwards entertained by the good Sisters of the Community.

Small buttons for waists surely never were sold in such quantities.
