The Prince and the Queen on Good Terms.

Interesting Incident of the Ponsonby Wedding.

Parnell Gets a Special License to Marry Kitty.

Further Proceedings in the Campbell Libel Suit.-Verdict for Plaintiff.

London, June 24.—An incident at the Ponsonby wedding is commented on as proving that whatever differences may have existed between the Queen and Prince of Wales on account of the baccarat scandal they have been removed, and mother and son are once more on most cordial terms. As soon as her Majesty was seated in or on the throne-like gilded chair provided for her, she caught sight of the Prince and family opposite, and smiled beamingly. Then, as if noticing the eagerness with which the audience scrutinized her demeanor, she rose, with some difficulty, and crossed in front of the altar to where Wales sat. As she did so she held out her hand, and the Prince, who had arisen and stepped forward to meet his royal mother, stooped and kissed the hand of the Queen with a smack that could be heard all over the chapel. The Queen and Prince remained chatting together for several moments, the audience watching the interview with the greatest of interest. The Prince wore his full uniform of field marshal, and as the day and place were hot he was unmistakably uncomfortable, perspiration fairly pouring from him. LONDON, June 24 .- An incident at the interest. The Prince wore his full uniform of field marshal, and as the day and place were hot he was unmistakably uncomfortable, perspiration fairly pouring from him. He seemed quite nervous and ill at ease. The crush was terrific, despite the fact that admission was by ticket only. An amusing contretemps resulted from failure of the sentry to recognize the Lord High Chamber-Plain, who had not thought it necessary to provide himself with a ticket. The wrangle between little and big official grew quite warm before a passing dignitary interceded and persuaded Cerberus that there was no mistake about the identity of the chamber-lain. The scene in the chapte was a rarely brilliant one, gorgeous trappings of Scot's Guards showing well against the daintier coloring of the finery displayed by the ladies. There was much chattering and flirting while the audience were waiting for the event of the season. A bejeweled countess amused kerself by pinching the arm of a stalwart piper as she passed him, but he managed to retain his military aplomb and even to look bored. The bride's dress contained much yellow, in compliment, no doubt, of the color of the regiment's shoes and stockings.

A dispatch from Rome says: "A card scaudal resembling in a small way the celebrated baccarat case, has convulsed military and social circles in Leghorn. A number of officers were playing at a military club in that city, when occasion arose to suspect that a cavalry officer was cheating. There was a quiet arrangement an the part of a few of the players to watch the suspected man. As a result, he was soon openly accused, and on-demanding to be faced with his accusers learned they were his general and several other high officers. The proof was sufficient to satisfy the officers of the club, and the offender, Lieut. Ricciardi, was expelled and handed over to the police. It is learned that Mr. Parnell has obtained a special license to marry Mrs. O'Shea. He has been compelled to do this owing to delays interposed by his local elergyman in Brighton. He can now be married Thursday. He has intimated that no one is to be present at the ceremony resulted from gross neclicence and several characteristics.

The action for libel brought by Henry Campbell, M.P., and private secretary to Mr. Parnell, against Ald. John Hooper and Mrs. Eliza Nagle, as owners or part owners of the Cork Daily Herald, was continued in that city yesterday. Mr. Campbell complains of a statement made by the Herald that while other members of Parliament were attending to their duties Campbell was biring houses for immoral purposes for Parnell. Counsel for the Herald to-day contended that if Campbell did not telegraph about hiring the house at Eastbourne Parnell did so. Mr. Vinal, a real estate agent, deposed that letters (produced in court) which were signed by Campbell's name, were really in Mrs. O'Shea's hand-writing. Mr. Campbell, recalled, said he had never heard of the letters or telegrams until this action was brought.

The retirement of Justin McCarthy, M.

is expected directly John Dillon is released from jail. Mr. McCarthy's friends assert he is unable to give much attention to his duties, and has always recegnized the fact that the position he accepted as leader was only a

it is asserted more Parnellites would desert and join the majority of the party.
The National Press publishes a statement
as to the receipts and expenditures of the campaign fund. The statement is signed by James F. Xavier O'Brien, M. P. for South Mayo, and is and follows: "Amount collected, $634,385.
Expenditures—Legal expenses, $36,100;

A Murderous Attack on a Baseball Umpire.

Downs, Kan., June 24.—At a baseball game here yesterday Frank Burton, a bystander, found fault with the decisions of stander, found fault with the decisions of the umpire, and a souffle ensued, during which the umpire, Fred House, got the best of the struggle. The combatants were separated, and the game was resumed, when Burton stole upon House unawares and knocked him down with a bat. The blow resulted in paralysis, and House now lies at the point of death. Burton is in the brother-in-law of the year Du Morny.

three interests had to be fought. Then there were the difficulties in the way of enforcing the act if it was passed, difficulties which were known to all who had any knowledge or experience of the Scott Act. Mr. Foster next admitted that the question of revenue was a practical difficulty, but he denied that it was a paramount one. He did not count a gold dollar as being one moment in the balance against a single ray of light or happiness in the hones of the people of this country, or against the well-being of a single man who was in danger. Still, those $7,500,000 presented a practical difficulty which any Finance Minister would have to consider. What he proposed was a royal ing for the sitting on herefore, de-djourned on until Tues-

Mr. Laurier contrasted the speech and resolution of the Minister of Finance, and showed how inconsistent they were one to the other. He showed how much at variance were the proposals of the honorable gentleman and his conclusions. He declared he was a prohibitionist still, that he would not lower himself by replying to the charges that had been made of inconsistency and yet, not to go into his record, it was but necessary to put his speech to-night against his resolution to prove the truth of those charges. (Applause.) He would be ready to vote immediately to enact a law, but he wanted to be sure that it would be sustained by public opinion. If the country were ripe for it he would be ready to vote to enact it. What he wanted was information whether public opinion was ready. The honorable gentleman had said he was prepared to take the responsibility of leaving the tax to make up the loss of revenue that would result. He had been ready to find other sources of revenue. He could only know that the people were ready. He would not hold a piece of gold against a ray of light, he had told the House, and the moment he had the information he was prepared to pass a prohibitory law. He asked for light in his speech as to the ripeness of public opinion. In the resolution he asked for a royal commission—what for? To inquire if the public were ready? No! it was to inquire into the effect of the liquor traffic on all interests affected by it—(Liberal laughter)—that was the position of the honorable gentleman who would not hold a piece of gold against one ray of light. Mr. Laurier declared in conclusion that he ition he would favor that the present ight be allowed to con-during their lives.
