In the Toronto News, Nina Vivian writes as follows on a subject of local interest: "It would be very nice if unpleasant subjects could always be ignored, would it not? But there is one particular unpleasantness which is by the Oxford County Council, making a grant of $300 to the 22nd Reginable vigor, and which every one of usable vigor, and which every one of usthe women in particular-are hoping will become gradually a thing of the past, or at least a punishable offense, viz., expectoration on the sidewalks and in public conveyances. As yet no Canadian municipality has passed an Ottawa, Mr. W. J. Gerald, assistant anti-expectoration ordinance, and in commissioner of inland revenue (for this way we are considered behind the people of the United States. But something may be accomplished without law. In London, Ont., a good deal of fun is made by visitors of the little signs nalled up on every post and pillar bearing this legend: "Please do not spit on the sidewalks." Nevertheless the cleanliness of the pavement is an evidence of the fact that those signs are useful if they are not strictly orna-

These formed a scene most pleasing to the onlooker. The meeting was in charge of Mr. J. W. Westervelt, jun., the superintendent of the Sunday school, and the services were of a varied and interesting nature. Beautiful hymns were sung by the congregation, and these were interspersed by addresses. Mr. George Matthews. secretary of the school, gave a concise statement of the past year's work after which Mr. J. W. marriage of Miss Blanche E. Leake, of London, and Edwin Clayton Monroe, of San Francisco, took place Wednesday at noon at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph C. Black, 441 East Santa Clara street. The rooms were decorated with flowers and foliage plants. As the bridal party entered they were greeted by the Wedding March from Lohengrin, played by Miss Resseguie, of Oakland. The bride and groom came together, and were preceded by a little flower girl, Miss Phyllis Leake. The bride's gown was white d'esprit over white silk, and her bouquet was white carnations and maiden-hair ferns. The bridesmaid, Miss Jennie Mountjoy, of London, Canada, was attired in a dress of gray crepe, trimmed with white chiffon, and carried a bouquet of La France roses. The best man was Mr. Dave Young. The ceremony was performed by Rev. F. B. A. Lewis, according to the ritual of the Episcopal Church. After the service all present gathered around the newly-married couple with words of congratulation and good-wishes, and later a luncheon was served on small tables in the dining-room. Among those present were Mr. Mountjoy and daughter, of Canada, and Mrs. Mary Leonard. The bride is a niece of Mrs. J. C. Black, with whom she made her home, and the groom is a young business man of San Francisco.

The Late Hiram L. Odell.

Hiram L. Odell, one of the best known and most highly esteemed citizens of St. Thomas, and a gentleman well known among the business men of London, died at his residence, 149 Wellington street, St. Thomas, on Sunday evening, from a stroke of paralysis sustained about a month since. He had a previous attack about eleven years ago, from which he never entirely recovered, although he managed Glade, George Taylor, Armstrong, to look after his business in St. Thom Nichol, J. Pocock, Kilgour, Harding as for some years after, his son as for some years after, his son, Joseph R., taking charge of the London branch; but for several years the deceased had relinquished all business cares, living a quiet life. Mr. Odell was cartage agent for the C. S. R and M. C. R. at St. Thomas and London ever since the opening of the roads, and latterly also for the C. P. R. at St. Thomas. The deceased was born in Westminster township in 1835, but had resided in St. Thomas for over a third of a century. chair. Dr. Johnston spent two days in father came to Middlesex from Lower Canada when only 17 years of age and settled there, forming one of the pioneer homes of the western country Besides his widow he leaves one son, Joseph R., well and favorably known in London as the successful manager of the cartage business for the past eight years, who will have sincere sympathy in their affliction. Deceased was most highly regarded as an exemplary man, and leaves behind a record for kindness and sterling integrity not often encountered in the keenness of business competition.
