THE SHADOW ON THE BLIND

BY N. BLUNT.

As a hospital nurse of many years' standing I have been through some strange experiences, but perhaps none quite so thrilling as the one I am about to relate.

Sin home to him.

It was three years since the crime, I had almost forgotten, or rather ceased to recall to mind, that weird night in Bloomsbury Square. Sometimes I to relate.

Very sensibly, these sisters do not pay overmuch attention to book education. The catechism, of course; but after that a little learning, in their opinion, goes a long way. They strive to give the children a good industrial training, and it is a matter of common report that the Catholic-bred negro is generally the most trustworthy of all servants. Unless, though, a housekeeper happens to be a Catholic in good repute, as a strict follower of her religion, let her not hope to lure one of these black birds out of the convent nest.

THOMAS A. EDISON

The World's Greatest Inventor The eight hundred or more patents credited to Thomas A. Edison means one for every three weeks of his fifty-eight years, and even this calculation is unjust to his mechanical genius, for it does not include his many inventions which never ventured into the publicity that patents demand.

This wizard of invention was a model of precocity. Born at Alva, Ohio, he had only one teacher-his mother; at seven he became a wage-earner; at eleven he was reading Newton's "Principia"; at twelve he was a newsboy on the Grand Trunk Railway, and in an improvised laboratory in the baggage car he began to dabble in chemistry. A broken bottle of sulphuric acid filled the air with an odor that was unspeakable, and the cruel hands of the conductor registered his disapproval by a brutal blow on the ear of the young disciple of science, which made him deaf for life. He soon learned telegraphy and became so expert that the most rapid operators on the line could not rattle him by their fiercest speed, and all taken down in his small, clear, copper-plate writing. He showed then the remarkable ability to meet any situation instantly and perfectly. When he was in Canada, and the terrible storms cut off all telegraphic communication, and it was necessary to get word to Sarnier, an American town across the border, he mounted a locomotive and "tooted" a telegraphic message again and again

His first patent was for a machine for recording votes for the State Legislature. It worked perfectly, but it was the very thing the Legislature most cordially did not want. In the same year he went to New York friendless, penniless, in debt, hungry, footsore and heart-weary at times, but with eyes wide open for chances. The Laws Gold Reporting Co., that reported stock transactions, had an accident that put all its machinery out of commission. Wall Street patrons fretted, chafed, grew frenzied at the delay. Young Edison diagnosed the difficulty, treated it instantly, and was at once known and recognized. A short time later he had a $40,000 check in his pocket for a stock ticker he invented. Then real life began for him.

To tell of his inventions in a few lines is like seeking to condense a library into an epigram; but mention must be made of multiplex telegraphy, incandescent electric lighting, the phonograph, moving pictures, the microphone, the tasimeter, the odoroscope, electric pen, his storage battery, the megaphone, which list faintly suggests a host of others.
