

BONAPARTIST MANIFESTO

FROM PRINCE NAPOLEON, FOR WHICH HE GOES TO JAIL.

A Proposal to Banish All Descendants of Former Dictators—Figaro Seized—The Prince Says.

PARIS, Jan. 16.—A manifesto from Prince Napoleon (Plon Plon) appeared in Figaro (the Bonapartist organ) and on the street walls this morning. It created a sensation, and led to the arrest of the prince in the afternoon. Figaro was seized and the placards effaced from the walls.

IN THE MANIFESTO the prince dwells on the impotence and incapacity of the government, the disunion of parliament, the decadence of the army and of the finances. He declares that religious peace is attacked and the observance of the concordat can alone establish religious peace. He rejects any compromise with the royalists. He advocates to the plebiscites by which the empire was sanctioned.

The chamber of deputies voted urgency for a motion made by Floquet (republican) prohibiting the presence in France of any member of former French dynasties.

Jolibois (Bonapartist) interpellated the government regarding the arrest of Prince Napoleon. He said the issue of the manifesto was simply a matter of office. The prince had only exercised his right, and Deves, minister of justice, had exceeded his authority in causing the prince's arrest. Deves replied that the manifesto had not only been published, but placarded. The matter would come before the tribunal.

The government was strictly observed by all citizens of the republic, not excepting Prince Jerome. Martin Fenille (republican) moved an order of the day approving of the action of the government in regard to Prince Napoleon. Adopted 417 to 89.

In discussing the question to banish the members of former dynasties, Bissacis said he was anxious to separate the personality of kings and princes from the present incident. Lord protests followed the remark. The president of the chamber ruled the prince's "kings" and "princes" were unconstitutional.

PRINCE NAPOLEON said to-day that he issued the manifesto because everything is going wrong in France. The republic had proved its incapacity for governing; it had not the power to suppress the influence of the popular vote; republicans were losing in not having resorted to the plebiscite five years ago when they would have secured five million suffrages. The manifesto denied that he had any personal interests in the matter. He was a supporter of the scrutin de liste system, which he believed under the present system the executive was governed chiefly by local interests. He should like to see at the head of the nation a man of high character, but at any rate free from the influence of the popular vote. With the present chamber of deputies it was impossible to hope for anything. Gambetta failed to suppress the influence of the popular vote. The prince believed that a parliamentary regime was only practicable under exceptional conditions. He was convinced of the perfect legitimacy of his manifesto. Competent persons approved its terms, and affirmed that the plauding which accompanied it was not a mere display of flattery.

PARIS EXCITED. The following great sensation. On the 16th of January, the Bonapartist manifesto was printed. The evening papers reproduced it. The Bonapartist members of the chamber of deputies held a meeting and decided to protest by every means in their power against the action of the government. At Figaro's office, Prince Jerome, Prince Victor, and Prince Louis were arrested. The manifesto was placarded in the provinces. Twenty-six placards were arrested. The Bonapartist card posters were arrested. The manifesto was printed in the provinces. The manifesto was printed in the provinces. The manifesto was printed in the provinces.

At a tenement house fire in London Monday night five persons were burned to death. The strike of the Caledonian railway employees is extending. The goods traffic in the west of Scotland is almost stopped. The Italian commission has decided that specie payments be commenced in April or May. Payments are to be made in gold or silver. Bismarck opposes allowing facilities for return of German emigrants to their native country. He is opposed to their naturalization as American citizens. It is rumored that the porte ordered to apologize to Krelbel, the Russian consul-general, and Aleko refused. A crisis is imminent.

THE MILWAUKEE FIRE.

Barkeeper Arrested on Suspicion—More Bodies Found.

MILWAUKEE, Jan. 16.—George Scheller, barkeeper of the Newhall house, was arrested this afternoon on suspicion of being the fire starter. He was found in the barroom at 1:30 a.m., but it has been ascertained that he returned to the saloon with Will Sanderson and Tom Dunbar about 3 a.m. There is the greatest excitement over the arrest.

It is reported that Scheller was arrested principally on the statement of Lonsbach and another employee, who claim that they saw Scheller in the wood room, where Lonsbach says the fire originated, and he was there after 3 o'clock in the morning. The district attorney refused to let any one see Scheller, saying he is afraid a attempt will be made to lynch him. Scheller has been on a debauch.

Excited knots of people on the streets talk of lynching Scheller. He is extra guarded at the jail. Scheller has lately been in financial straits. The remains of three girls and an unknown man were recovered from the ruins to-day. Considerable progress has been made into the court, where it was expected a large number of bodies would be found, without revealing any new victims, and the opinion prevails that the inmates made their way to the Michigan street, where they were killed. The bodies now remain in the ruins.

Another fragment of eleven bodies have been recovered from the ruins, but did not contain a register of transfer book.

THE U. S. TARIFF.

Where the Proposed Reductions Come in—A Sweeping Measure if Carried.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—It is reported that the democrats in the house will throw obstacles in the way of the reduction of tariff bill but will labor for a reduction of the present rates. The tariff bill is a sweeping measure, and if carried, it would result in a great reduction of duties on many articles. The democrats are opposed to the bill, and are expected to make every effort to prevent its passage. The bill is expected to be passed in the next few days.

ODDS AND ENDS ABOUT MUSIC AND MUSICIANS.

Mr. Torregrossa interviewed—A Chat with a Music Dealer—Some Fugacity in the Trade.

With a view to obtaining some reliable information as to the music and musicians of Toronto, I selected Mr. F. W. Torregrossa as the first victim to be interviewed. Seated by his side in his elegant office, in a parlor on the corner of King and York streets, he was a pleasant and agreeable man, and he was very ready to answer the questions with which he was assailed.

"How did you find the state of music in Toronto when you came here nine years ago?"

"The musical taste of the city was, I think, very low. There were a few good musicians, but they were scattered all over the city. There was no organization, and no one was doing anything to improve the state of music. I was very much surprised to find that the public were so ignorant of music. They would not listen to anything but the most vulgar and common tunes. They would not listen to anything but the most vulgar and common tunes. Long before the time appointed numbers had gathered at the house of mourning on Wellington place, and up to the time of starting they continued to arrive in ever increasing numbers. The remains were placed in a handsome casket, and were carried to the cemetery by a hearse. The casket was followed by a large number of friends, and the funeral was a very impressive one. The remains were interred in the cemetery at 1:30 p.m.

What is your opinion of a music hall for the city?

"It is just what is wanted. I called a meeting of a few days ago to consider the subject at which a number of our wealthy men were present. They arranged for another meeting in a short time for a further discussion of the scheme. We want to reach the poorer people by giving them a chance to see a good concert. They are very much interested in the subject, and they are very much interested in the subject. They are very much interested in the subject, and they are very much interested in the subject.
