THE HOUSEHOLD

CHILD'S PLAY TABLE.

CAN BE TURNED FROM TABLE TO SAND BOX.

Invented by a clever kindergarten teacher in Little More Than Four Feet Long, Two and a Half High and of Lesser Width.

An ingenious play table for children which has been adopted by many kindergartens in this country and even in Germany is the recent invention of Miss Frances A. Greenlaw, a young kindergarten teacher of Marinette, Wis. It saves space and time, serves as well in an ordinary nursery as in the school-room and amuses the little folk by its very capacity of transformation.

The table is a little more than four feet long, two and a half feet high and of lesser width. The varnished top is ruled in squares, helpful in dressmaking, painting colored papers, designing and exercises in measurement. When the small students weary of such lessons, the top is tipped over on its hinges, off regardless of the dolls that crash headlong to earth, and a large box of white sand is disclosed. This slight usually evokes the enthusiastic murmur of song, and then the children ply their spades in the hope of finding pearls or sunken ships. The wise teacher sees that there is something new to be found each time.

But the possibilities of the sand box are endless. Horses are built on the beach to the accompaniment of the carpenter's song, the forester sings and plants a grove of evergreens, the farmer builds his weather for inland, and the mother hangs out her clothes on the toothpick poles. The sand box is so much fun that it is a question whether the students will ever be willing to have the top restored and go back to the common toys of dressmaking and designing.

Miss Greenlaw is a most enthusiastic kindergarten teacher. Her practical knowledge of carpentry, she not only invented the play table, but built the first full size model herself. Her furnishings were saw, plane, turning lathe and a hammer, which never mistook the wielder's thumb for a nail.

What the Baby Needs. The less noise a baby hears, the less he is carried about and played with for the first six months of his life, the better it will be.

It is seldom necessary to take him from his crib except for his bath and meals. The habit of tossing him about and trotting him on the knee makes him nervous and wakeful and cannot possibly do any good.

His undeviated system calls for rest, yet he is often denied that privilege.

Children as well as older people are to a great extent creatures of habit, and they cannot acquire habits that are conducive to proper development and health of the body at too early an age.

It is during sleep that the building up forces work without interruption and the child gains in flesh and strength.

Have regular hours for his naps and see that everything is favorable for sleep at that time. There should be no tight bands to hinder respiration.

Place his crib in such a position that the light will not shine directly upon his face, preferably in a cool, quiet corner. Do not cover him too warmly. Change his position occasionally, and he will sleep longer.

Slips for "Best" Blouses. Some girl with a love of pretty things hit upon the clever idea of making great bags and slips, with which she covered her best blouses and tuckers, of doctored stuff instead of the usual plain white muslin affairs. The open door of that closet reveals a pretty sight instead of a rather funeral effect the muslin shroudings are bound to give. Choosing a closely woven material, so that the dust is as safely defied as when a stout muslin in the shield, is the only point that need be looked to. Have some of the covers big, sheet-like affairs. There are certain gowns which keep in better condition if something is folded carefully about them than if they are slipped into the roughest of bags. And put loops upon legs or wrapping sheet, so that their weight, little as it may seem, will bear directly upon the closet hooks instead of adding its weight to straggling the delicate skirt or blouse out of shape.

Still Waters Run Deep. First Lady—That new housemaid of yours seems a very quiet girl. Second Lady—Yes, she's so quiet that when she's cleaning out a room she doesn't even disturb the dust.

Had Tetter for Thirty Years. I have suffered with tetter for thirty years and have tried almost countless remedies with little, if any, success. Three boxes of Chamberlain's Salve cured me. It was a torture. It breaks out a little sometimes, but it is worth it to do. D. H. Beach, Midland City, Ala. Chamberlain's Salve is for sale by W. A. Warren, Plum, B.

The Manitoba Legislature has passed a bill providing that children must not be married under the age of twelve years, and that under the age of eighteen the consent of parents must be obtained. This is doubtless to fit the cases of some recent immigrants from Central Europe.

THE TENNIS GIRL.

THE GIBSON WHITE LINEN TAILORED COSTUME STILL SMART.

To Dress Well For a Tennis Tournament is Half the Battle—Never Wear Lace Trimmed Pinnacis. Appropriate Neckwear and Hats.

The typical tennis girl, the sort of girl one would expect to find in a Gibson picture, is gowned in dazzling white linen of severe make and wears a shirt and a straw Panama or linen hat. The only relief she affords herself is a hand and waist belt in colors which probably proclaim the college or the club of some masculine relative or friend. More becoming if less ostentatiously sporting is a ribbon of pale blue to match blue eyes or a pale pink to accentuate a delicate complexion. Perhaps most alluring of all is the entirely white ensemble. The tournament girl should remember to dress well for her matches. We all know what a tremendous incentive is the sympathy of on-lookers on such occasions. Indeed, on-lookers are quite as alive to the appropriateness as to the prettiness of a player's costume, and they give a perhaps unconscious backing to the girl who is clever enough to combine the desired objects. Not knowing either of the players, they want the one who looks the most charming to win. And she is swayed to her best exertions by this thought, probably openly expressed in applause of her good strokes.

For this girl the ideal apparel is that described above. Every garment must, of course, be of spotless freshness. Nothing is likely to prejudice the minds of an audience as any lack in this respect, and this means a clean white shirt every day of a tournament week. The undershirt also forms a consideration of essential importance. On no account should a lacey petticoat be worn for tennis. Great as is the attraction of such lingerie, there is danger of the feet catching in it. The embroidered substitutes are now so lovely that one can give up the less suitable alternatives without regret. A white petticoat is likewise delightful for tennis, as it is so easy to move about in, and it may be made with an embroidered floral overture, so that no effect of daintiness is lost.

The question of hats and neckwear is not so easily disposed of. Some tennis players have never swayed from their devotion to the sailor hat, and custom has insured them to its weight and made them oblivious of any discomfort arising from its hardness. Others, however, have adopted the Panama and linen hats, both of them preferable from the picturesque point of view. The Peter Pan waist is a popular sporting model this summer. With its turnover collar, elbow sleeves and flaring cut it is indeed both comfortable and becoming.

The tennis costume illustrated is of white linen. The skirt is laid in box pleats and stitched ten inches from the waist. The little jacket is on the kimono order and elaborately worked in English embroidery.

AMY VARNUM.

"Peter Pan" Things. A queer little plaided Scotch affair, with quills. This was followed by the "Peter Pan" blouse, with low round collar, short sleeves and patch pocket. Now there's an entire "Peter Pan" suit, which youngish girls are wearing with immense delight, because of its simplicity and girlishness.

It's merely a shirt, waist suit, the blouse wherever it is like that described above, and the short round skirt plaided or plain. For country wear, mornings, picnics, etc. it's a very pretty sort.

So far that's all the "Peter Pan" modes, though possibly those new belts of bright Scotch plaid silk belong to that category.

Water Clothes. When packing away winter clothes try dried lavender, cloves and other fragrant spices with them. Instead of the inevitable camphor or moth balls. Pleasant odors will prevent the moths as effectually as disagreeable ones, provided they are sufficiently pungent.

For Fancy Work. Large sewing bags to use for one's fancy work are made of wide ribbon and two small embroidery hoops are used for handles.

BATHING CAPS.

Made of Silk Covered Rubber to Match the Suit.

Natty and becoming are the caps to go with the new bathing suits this season, and very far removed are they from the old style rubber cap, which made even the prettiest of women look plain and homely.

Made of silk covered rubber to match the color of the suit, they are most fetching and attractive. Formed of a treasured piece of material, there is cunningly concealed beneath a rubber cap of oil silk to slip over the hair, one point of the cap coming just over the forehead, the other two ends being brought up and tied in a bowknot.

Still another shape, when tied, forms a pretty ruffle in front, which is exceedingly becoming. Nor are these caps only for show. The introduction of the oil silk cap renders them very practical, and a girl can not only paddle about the shores, but actually swim, without fear of getting her hair wet—that is, unless she essays to dive, when no bathing cap made can be kept in place.

Besides caps in plain colors, some are lined with white which when tied show the contrasting shades, or still others are made from silk which has a dainty flowered pattern over it. Either the two toned or plain colors are best liked, the effect of the figures being more common.

Along with the new bathing caps come cunning little silk pockets which have a particularly all fashioned favor, being in appearance like those that grandmothers used to carry with her handkercher, glasses, etc. when she went out to tea. For the summer girl, however, who doesn't wear spectacles, they are intended for her handkercher, bath keys or any valuables she may wish to keep with her. They are fastened to her belt securely and are of the same material as the bathing suit. It is quite unnecessary to say that the girl who wears this accessory to the new bathing suits has no intention of getting her feet wet, but, rather, is out for the purpose of promounging the beach, to see and be seen.

An Economical Fashion. That deep band of color used to edge the coverings of down quilts or the lightweight cotton filled ones so satisfactory for summer weather is there for a purpose quite aside from that of beauty or effectiveness. It is always the edges that soil first, and it was to protect them that the bands of solid color, usually much darker than the material of the quilt, were first used. If your summer quilts haven't these bands they are easily applied and are easily ripped off and fresh ones substituted when they finally succumb to soil. Only choose a material that is closely enough woven, so that the design of the foundation may not show through.

Keep Lemon Peel. Fill a bottle with rectified spirits and when using lemons cut off the yellow part of the rind and place in the spirits. You will find this quite as good as the essence of lemon which is sold in the shops. Essence of orange can be made in the same way.

Embroidered Parasol. Something novel in the way of an embroidered parasol is shown in the illustration, and with the growing fondness for having all of one's personal belongings marked, it is fair to suppose that the initial or monogram parasol will have great vogue. At present, lines and shades are marked in this way, and the letters are always worked solid and not too heavily padded. To be effective the monogram or interlaced initials should be four or five inches high and not too elaborate in design. Should one wish to work her monogram on a ready made parasol it is best to clip the stitches which hold the cover to the frame and rip the section which is to be worked partly off the frame before doing the embroidery. When the work is finished and pressed it will be only a few minutes' work to set this section in place again. Of course, if one is accustomed to doing the satin stitch embroidery, as well as the padding in a frame, it will not be necessary to rip the covering from the frame of the parasol.

A NOVELTY IN SUNSHADES.
