

A Woman's Love-Letters.

Joy hovers now in a far-off mist,
(The night draws on and the air breathes snow !)

And I reach, sometimes, with a trembling hand

To the red-tipped cloud of the joy-bird's land.

(Alas! for the days of the storm and the snow !)