THURSDAY MORNING, MAY 27.

The New Coalition Cabinet

Altho the formation of a coalitio government in the United Kingdon could be sufficiently explained by the gravity of the issues presented by the war it is evident that other reasons existed for the temporary abandonmen of the party system. It has becom of late increasingly apparent that all was not well with the Liberal cabinet. and that it had to some extent ceased to command "the entire confidence of its supporters in parliament and in the press. Antagonism developed in the first instance over the appointment of a purchasing agent for timber and over the prices and commission paid. The government was severely criticized in London and provincial Liberal newspapers, and the explanations offered by its spokesmen in the house of commons were far from satisfactory.

Another matter where the late gov nent showed itself out of touch public opinion was that relating to the treatment of non-naturalized enemy aliens. For months an evergrowing demand came for their in ternment. Not until after the sinking of the Lusitania did the cabinet consent to adopt a more drastic policy. On Thursday, May 13, Mr. Asmons that all non-naturalized German males between the ages of 1 and 35 would be immediately interned, and that all women and children would, as far as possible, be repatristed. The prime minister explained when announcing the new scheme that 19,000 had been already interned. and that the number of non-naturalized aliens, registered but not interned, was 40.000, of whom 24,000 were men and 16,000 women.

Still another proposal resulted in further weakening of the Liberal government's prestige. The problems associated with the drink question in Great Britain and Ireland are even during peace complex and difficult. arising in part from the state of public opinion and in part from the differing circumstances in the three countries. Complete prohibition and the establishment of a state monopoly were discarded as impracticable, and the cabinet proposed to place spirits dropped by Germany. Canada has and heavy ales under a tax little short hopes in the same quarter. Both light ales. Ireland at once rose in the competition of the British exarms, and so extensive became the porter, who has a strong foothold and opposition in Britain that the proposal had to be withdrawn and a compromise effected. Here too the government offended the temperance party, who considered the proposals not to be drastic enough.

Mr. Asquith and his colleagues war. Mr. Asquith and his colleagues may have recognized that the weight Canada Permanent of responsibility was too great to be borne alone and would be more easily shouldered and met by a national government.

Coalition cabinets formed for political ends have not commonly been very successful or efficient. But the circumstances today are unprecedented, and it cannot be doubted for a moment that all parties in the United Kingdom stand as one in the defence British civilization. Then men in this cabinet, however much they may have differed over internal policies. have never forgotten the higher duty Janowed to the nation and the empire. By order of the Board.

The Toronto World ever sky he makes his home, can rely with assurance on their loyalty, their patriotism and their service. we take it, will prove a stronger bon of union in this emergency than car be found in a purely party cabine under normal conditions. It cannot but inspire this ministry of all the talents to turn their every power, individual and collective, in the achievement of the one compelling purpose that of crushing once and for all the menace of Prussian militarism, restoring the right of every nation however little, to live its own nationa life, and establishing the supremacy of international law.

Pan-Americanism It is not surprising that the United States at this time should foster continental solidarity" with Spanish-American republics. The present Pan-American Conference at Washington may not accomplish a great deal more than any of its predecessors, but it reveals the growing anxiety of the Washington Government to kindle a Pan-American spirit. That barriers of reserve and suspicion must be broken down is fully realized. Indeed. Mr. Wilson did not ask the delegates from the Central and South American states to assume that their Uncle Samuel was entirely unselfish Speaking to them in the east room of the White House the other day Mr. Wilson said:

If I am selfish for America, I at least hope that my selfishness is enlightened. The selfishness that hurts the other party is not enlightened selfishness. If I were lightened selfishness. If I were going upon a mere ground of selfishness, I would seek to benefit the other party and so the him to myself; so that even if you were to suspect me of selfishness, I hope you will also suspect me of intelligence and of knowing the only safe way for the establishment of things which we covet, as well as the establishment of the things which we desire and which we would feel honored if we could earn and win.

steamship communication with the and branches now number 125. South American countries if private capital fails to do so. Evidently the ship purchase bill or some substitute for it will be forced thru Congress at the next session. The delegates were also told that they might soon look for cheap cables, branch banks and extensions of credit.

All these things will go to make better trade relations, but the president hopes for more and in the same speech he told the delegates:

We cannot know each other unless we see each other; we cannot deal with each other unless we communicate with each other. So soon as we communicate and are upon a familiar footing of intercourse with one another, we shall understand one another and shall understand one another and the bonds between the Americas will be such bonds that no in-fluence that the world may pro-duce in the future will ever break

Barriers of race, religion and language separate the Latin republics from the United States far more than any waste of waters. Moreover, the memories of the Mexican war and the Spanish-American war still rankle, Spanish-American war still rankle.

Much real solidarity there cannot be at present. Possibly if the Central American states at some future date

American states at some future date came into the Union and were fairly dealt with, South America could draw closer to Washington. Just now the first task of the United States is to disarm suspecion, and this has made the Wilson administration almost helpless in dealing with the Mexican situation

The United States will try to pick up some of the South American trade countries, however, will have to face a big start.

His lordship states that he enter-tains no doubt as to Mr. McCarthy's good faith in resisting the plaintiff's claim and claiming damages against him. Ontario License Board is further away than ever. The arrival of a deputation of citizens from High Park yesterday, to urge the refusal of the license, opened up a further stage of the case, and a week was given for them to accumulate reasons why their request should be granted.

Rev. Dr. Creighton, accompanied by Rev. E. B. Lanceley and others, laid their views of the circumstances before Chairman Flavelle and his colleagues. They wished advice as to the best way of showing their objections to the hotel.

Mr. Flavelle stated that he saw no reason for two licenses, but the applicants had some claims on the ground of fair play. The deputation claimed that the place menaced their young people who enjoyed the Humber, and suggested a delay so that evidence could be secured.

"The supply of men who are willing to go to the front in Australia practically inexhaustible," said Meyers, a barrister, who arrived at the King Edward Hotel yesterday with his wife. Mr. Meyers said that the diffi-culty was in getting transportation for them, as the British Government had requisitioned all the available boats for the carrying of frozen meats

He suggested that the British Government make arrangements with the Italian Government for the use of the Austrian ships which fell into their hands at the beginning of the war.

LONDON, May 25.—Official reports received here from Petrograd are to the effect that the Russians have the situation in Galicia and south Poland well in hand. They succeeded in breaking down German attempts at checking their advance in the Opatow district, southern Poland, a movement intended to execute an encircling stroke to threaten the German communications in Poland. In order to foll this movement the Germans and Austrians brought up heavy reinforcements and attacked the Russians, who beat them off with great slaughter, a once assumed the offensive, and inflicted heavy losses on the enemy by counter attacks.
