Is there not in it all some evidence that the virtuoso is tending away from the orchestral effects that earlier years were most potent, and is turning to delight solely in painistic beauty as such? It is quite unfair to say that Mr. Paderewski was surpassed by Liszt, Tausig, Thalberg and Rubinstein, e. g., in quality of scale-fingering or in tone-color. For if there is one thing he aims at it is pure beauty in music, and without the qualities mentioned musical beauty would be impossible. The matter seems to have become psychological, and this may have its Several Interesting Opinions on the Elizabeth Street School Incident.

"We have no Jewish question in Toronto," said Inspector Hughes yesterday, "and we will not have one unless the Christians force it. The Jews of Toronto have been very liberal. The Hebrew people in Toronto have studied the New Testament, and read the New Testament at our opening exercises, and they have never objected to being present at the devotional evercises at the opening of the school. In 34 years only one Hebrew has made a complaint. "The Rev. Rabbi Jacobs told me this week and has told me at other times fortunate thing if the school children of Toronto were in any way prevented from learning to sing the Christian hymns and the good old Christmas carols. They have no wish whatever to Judaize the Christians and my fear in respect to this whole matter is that exciting statements may in some way stir up the Hebrew people.
