

MARY PICKFORD'S VISIT ABANDONED

Regrets Business Reasons Prevent Her Coming to Toronto at This Juncture.

The visit of Mary Pickford and her husband, Douglas Fairbanks, has been postponed for the present, owing to the fact that Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Fairbanks' business engagements necessitate an immediate departure for Los Angeles, where everything is in readiness for each of them to start making their next picture for the United Artists Corporation.

This announcement was made yesterday morning by A. C. Berman, sales manager of the corporation. He added: "Miss Pickford regrets exceedingly her inability to visit the city of her birth, and promises that she will come here at the first possible opportunity."

Mary Disappointed.
There is no use denying that Mary feels badly about unkind things said by some about her, said a Toronto friend of the movie stars, who returned from New York yesterday. "It is quite true, too, that Mary has looked forward exceedingly to visiting Toronto after having made good in her work. 'Won't it be lovely,' she said, 'to go back to my birthplace now that I am somebody' and I think this is her natural feeling. She will be terribly disappointed at the change in plans, I know. Mary has more than a sentimental interest in Toronto. She is a taxpayer here. And she bought $250,000 worth of Victory Bonds here."

Y.W.C.A. OPEN NEW RECREATION CENTRE

A little more than a year ago the Dominion council of the Y. W. C. A. opened a recreation centre for men and women at 95 West King street. This was done as an experiment, and has been found of great value, indeed, it met a crying need in the community. Unfortunately the rent had been too great and the accommodation afforded so small, that there has been a month's deficit. This has necessitated closing the West King centre. In order that the membership of the centre should still have a club, and in order that girls may have a noon rest and a reasonable and health-giving room meal, the local association is opening a large cafeteria, rest and recreation rooms at 12 West Adelaide street. It is hoped that all the present membership, and many more young women who are engaged in the city, will avail themselves of the new centre.

U. S. BECOMING KEENLY INTERESTED IN CANADA

New York, Aug. 4.—The increased interest which the people of the United States are displaying in Canada and Canadian affairs is reflected in the columns of the U. S. newspapers. The Canadian Bureau of Information during June collected no less than 1700 items concerning the Dominion, and the bureau's records cover only 22 out of the 48 states. This number, too, does not include Canadian items published in trade papers and special publications.

Statistics for July are not yet available, but the present indications are that this month will exceed June in the matter of publicity accorded the Dominion by the press of the United States.

FOLLOWED THE CROPS.

Washington, Aug. 4.—A circus owner, whose crop of dollars was not materializing, recently made unique use of the government's crop reports to stimulate growth of his earnings. He had been exhibiting where farm crops were poor, and was losing hundreds of dollars daily, he told officials of the bureau of crop estimates of the department of agriculture when he called for advice. He learned what part of the United States had good crops and moved his circus to the more prosperous regions.

"What's in a Name?"

Facts about your name; its history; its meaning; whence it was derived; its significance; your lucky day and lucky jewel.

JEAN.

Jean is one of the many French names which have come to be Anglicized by dropping the final ending. The infinitely prettier when spelled Jeanne, it is apparently thought to favor too much of the Gaelic for good fish ears. It is one of the simplest of feminine names—its equivalent Jane being the sole example of an appellation even less burdened with affection.

Jean means "grace of the Lord." Its earliest predecessor was Joanna, wife of Herod's steward. The Roman calendar has two feasts in honor of Joanna, the holy woman of the Bible, but the real vogue of the name is due to the numerous St. Johns of the Scriptures, of which Joanna is really the feminine.

In the twelfth century Jehanne and Jeanne appeared in the history of France and Navarre. The latter was especially a paragon name and its bearer married into many of the royal families of the time. The daughter of Henry II, who married into Sicily, was the first English princess so-called. The Scottish Joan Beaufort, whom the Scots called Jean, was the maiden beloved by the captive James I.

The sapphire is the talismanic gem belonging to Jean. It is said to attract divine favor for her and protect her from all danger and disease. Friday is her lucky day and 2 her lucky number.

The ceremony, artificially decorated with lovely ferns and large French marguerites were a suitable setting for the dainty bride and her maid. Charming, indeed, the bride looked in her gown of white crepe de chine, embroidered in pale pink, beautiful in its simplicity, with large hat of pale pink chiffon, draped with exquisite lace. The bride, Miss Beatrice Tedball, sister of the bride, and Miss Ray Bradshaw, niece, looked very pretty in pale pink crepe de chine dresses, worked in pale blue; large hats completed their toilettes. The flowers were bouquets of sweet peas, the bride carrying a chain of these looped from her hands as she held her ivory-bound prayer book. Mr. James Bradshaw, brother-in-law, gave her away. MODERN METHODS AMONG BRAHMINS

Canadian Missionary Tells of Natives' Alarm at Progress of Christianity.

Sein Fein tactics appear to have spread to the Hindu nationalists of the Kistna River district, according to a report from Rev. J. B. McLaurin, Canadian Baptist missionary in that field, which was given out yesterday afternoon at the Baptist mission offices, Toronto.

Mr. McLaurin's report, alluding to a meeting of the Kistna nationalists, says: "The gentry were evidently thoroughly alarmed at the progress of Christianity and with great noise and uproar condemned the foreigners who were spoiling their religion and bringing the Hindus with lands and money to forsake their mother religion."

Brahmins Great Liars.
"I can cheerfully bear witness that the Brahmins of this place are great liars for two or three years the impression that the missionaries should be scared out for good and all, went to the police office and complained that I had offered them fifty rupees (about $25) to give false witness in a case that had been cooked up against some of the converts. I may say that this preposterous yarn was too much even for the police."

In view of great progress of the mission district, the report adds: "We are not losing any sleep over the brainstorms of the Kistna nationalists."

Plays, Pictures and Music

"A Prince There Was" at Royal Alexandra.

Next Monday evening at the Royal Alexandra Theatre will see the return of that clever child actress, Lorna Voars, to the ranks of the Robins Players, when Edward H. Robins will offer the cleverest and latest of George Cohan's comedies, "A Prince There Was." This comedy concerns a very wealthy young man who has become wearied of life. Time means nothing to him nor does direction. All he wants to do is travel, and not be bothered with the gods of the country. In the city he meets a little girl who arouses in him the latent business qualities that are laying dormant. From one time he enters business until the fall of the final curtain there is just one continual laugh as he tells in the manner of a clever dialog that only George Cohan knows how to write.

As in his previous comedies, Mr. Cohan does not confine his funmaking to the stage. He also pokes a little fun at the audience, and the audience appreciates it, just as in "Seven Keys to Baldpate." Lorna Voars will be seen in the role of the fairy godmother—a part she played in "The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come." The regular members of the Robins Players have been cast in such a manner that the very best production of "A Prince There Was" will be seen. The scenic settings will, as usual, be in the high standard of the Robins productions. The matinee will be as usual on Wednesday and Saturday.
