MY HEID IS LIKE TO REND, WILLIE

A SCOTTISH BALLAD.

A SCOTTISH BALLAD.

My heid is like to rend, Willie,
My heart is like to break;
I'm wearin' aff my feet, Willie,
I'm your cheek to mine, Willie,
Your han' on my briest-hane,
O say yell think on me, Willie,
When I am deid and gane!
Its vain to comfort me, Willie,
Sair grief mann ha'e its willBut let me rest upon your briest,
To sab and greet my fill.
Let me sit on your knee, Willie,
Let me shed by your hair,
An' look into the face, Willie,
I never shall see mair!
Pm sittin' on your knee, Willie,

I'm sittin' on your knee, Willie,
For the last time in my life:
A puir heart-broken thing, Willie,
That ne'er can be your wife.
Ay press your han' upon my heart,
And press it mair and moir;
Or it will ourst the silken twine
Sae strang is its despair!

Sae strang is its despair!
Oh wae's me for the hour, Willie,
When we thegither met;
Oh wae's me for the time, Willie,
That our first tryst was set!
Oh wae's me tor the loam's green
Where we were used to gae;
An' wae's me for the destinie,
That gart me lave thee sae!

That gart me lave thee sac!
Oh! dinna min' my words, Willie,
I downa seek to blame;
But oh! ins hard to live, Willie,
An' die a ward's shame!
Het tears are hailin' over your cheek,
And hailin' over your chin;
Why weep ye sac for worthlessness,
For sorrow an' for sin?

I'm weary o' this waril, Willie,
An' sick wi' all I see;
I canna live as I ha'e lived,
Or be as I should be.
But fauld unto your beart, Willie,
The heart that still is thine;
An' kiss ance mair the white, white check
Ye caid was red lang syne.

Ye enid was red lang syne.

A stour goes thro'n me heid, Willio,
A sair stoun thro'n my heart;
Oh! hand me up an'let ne kiss
Thy brow cre we twa part.
Anither, an' unither yet!—
How fast my life-strings break!
Fareweel! Fareweel! theo'you kirk-yaird
Step lichtly for my sake!
The lavrock in the lift, Willie,
That lifts far ower our heid—
Will sing the morn as merrilie
Abune the clay-cauld deid;
An' this green turt we're sittin' on,
Wi'd dwa-draps shimmerin' sheen,
Will hap her close who did thee wrang,
As warld bas seldom seen.
But oh! remember me, Willie,

As warie has seigons seen.

But oh! remember me, Willie,
On lan' where'er ye be;
An oh! think on the leal, leal heart,
That never luved nue but thee!
An' oh! think on the cauld, cauld mools
That file my yellow hair;
That kies the check, and kies the chin,
Ye never shall kies mair!

Ma. Lawless.—This gendeman has been for some time engaged in writing the continuation of his very valuable History of Ireland, of which two volumes have been published. Those volumes have passed through three large editions in this country—they end with the reign of Anne. Mr. Lawless is now about to give the reignsof the four Georges, and the reign of William IV. to the Reform Bill. This is the period of Irish history beyond all comparison, the most interesting to the reader. The events it embraces are of the highest and most important cinaracter. To enable Mr. Lawless to bring out a work so expensive as this necessarily must be, he is calling on his countrymen to subscribe one half of the cost of the work, which will be sold in two large octavo volumes for thirty shillings; the other half payable on the delivery of the second volume, To this call there has been a praiseworthy response. The first volume, we undestand, will be published in the latter end of August.

WILLIAM REYNOLDS—North Side Market-Square, has just received per Timandra, and there who make use of of opium to excess, frequently swellow draughts of vinegar immediately afterwards. Dr. Crump observes, that when a patient finds himself in a distussed situation, he has accented to a piece of opium as big as his thumb, and immediately after drinks a glass of vinegar. This shrows him into a fit of laughter and every extravagance of mirth, and frequently terminates in death—Mechanice' Register.

Morried, at Lockport, on the 8d inst. by the Rev. Mr. Clark, Col. Win. Bond, of that village, to Mrs. Nancy I. Bond, of Keene, N. H. The Balance states that the parties, who are considerably advance in his, had been married at an early age, and a momerous and respectable fundly of children were the best finite of the forming. Experiment took place, after which a bill of divorce was frozured by one of the parties, under the laws of another state. A mutual reconciliation ensued, and assented in this renewal, or rather repetition of their matimonal vows. The children of the former marriage, everal of whom are heads of families, were present. The soldisant Rev. Thomas Taylor was tried for blasphemy, at the Surrey Sessions, on Monday. At half-past twelve at night, the jury returned a verdiet of guilty, and the Court sentenced the defendent to be imprisoned two years in the country guol, and to pay a fine of two hundred pounds, and to enter into his own recognisance in the sum of five hundred pounds for his good behaviour, and find two sureties of two hundred and fifty pounds, for the next five years.
