Still Passing The Problem On

(Toronto Star) In recent articles we have shown how our governments, federal, provincial and municipal, although profoundly impressed with the seriousness of the housing problem, have done nothing but prope talk and more talk.

HELPS TO AVOID GRIPPE

The consequences of Grippe are so serious that it is essential to take every precaution against it. Beware of chills and colds and see that your feet are dry and warm, and do not keep wet or even damp clothes on. If you are very tired be most careful. You are then most subject to take cold. Don't wait for it to appear, take a dose of a good remedy at once.

the provincial authorities to the municipal, and from these it has been wafted on to the loan companies.

But we find that the loan companies will not touch it, either. They pass it on, through and out to the sidewalk again.

The proposal of the civic committee on housing is that the money which the downtown government is willing to lend to the province at 5 per cent to be spent on housing, and which the province is willing to lend to the city at 5 per cent to be spent on housing, and which the city is asked to lend at 5 per cent to those who would spend it on housing—be not lent to the city, but to the loan companies, so that they can lend it to those who will spend it on housing.

The suggestion is that the province should lend the money at 2 per cent to the loan companies, and that they should lend it to the builders at 6.

But the loan companies do not want it. They say it costs them one and a quarter per cent to handle money, so that they would lose money on the deal aside from all the risk. They do not want to touch it anyway—so they pass the problem on, out to the sidewalk again.

As 5 per cent money would only go part way towards offsetting the present high cost of building—as the federal housing expert whom we have quoted in previous articles admits—it is quite clear that 6 per cent money would do still less in that direction.

The loan company people, in passing the housing problem on its way, make a useful observation. They declare that the proposal to lend money at 5 or 6 per cent for housing purposes assumes that a shortage of money causes the shortage of houses. They deny that this is so. They declare that there is no shortage of money.

they all talk and talk in the hope that one of the other governing bodies will face the facts and have the courage, which they themselves lack to actually go to work and make possible the building of houses on a large scale—as if it were of the imperative importance of a war necessity, which it is.
