VOTED MEN OF RING IN ARMY BOUTS

Championship Meet That Would Have Meant $25,000 House in Pre-War Days
Aldershot, England, April 13—(Correspondence of The Associated Press)—American soldiers encamped in this district had an object lesson in the conduct of a big boxing match here a few days ago when they were invited to be the guest of the British soldiers at a programme of fourteen contests between representatives of the Aldershot command and the southern command of the British army.

Headliners of the tournament included about half the best boxers in England, now all in khaki. Among them were Sergeant Jimmy Wilde, Sergeant Ralph of the Canadians, Sid Burns, Corporal Billy Fullerton, and several others whose names were well known at the National Sporting Club in pre-war days.

There were no purses, the prizes being simple silver and bronze medals worth about 45 cents. Had the competition taken place at a London arena and been open to the public, the programme would have been worth about $25,000 to the promoters. But the public was not admitted, and the prize of admission to the soldier spectators ranged from twelve cents to 81. The latter amount corresponded to the $30 seats in the old days of the National Sporting Club in London.

There was an enormous attendance of officers and men, together with a great many soldiers' families. It was probably the first time in the history of the ring in which men, women and children attended a match of championship calibre. Despite the keenness of the fighting, there was only one bout in which any blood flowed. The majority of the men taking part were so physically fit, owing to their military training, that they were able to stand up in the ring and give and receive punishment with a degree of fortitude seldom seen in professional boxing meetings.

An impressive feature of the entire competition, from the standpoint of the American spectators, was the scrupulous stich and fair refereeing. Holding and clinching were stopped immediately, one warning only being given. Any pair who stood up and engaged in "shadow fighting" also received a first—and last—caution. There were fourteen contests altogether, each of six rounds. The Aldershot command won the meet, making thirteen of the fourteen events.

Commander Walcott, head of the American branch of the British Admiralty Intelligence Department in London, was the chief referee.

More Judgments Under the M.S.A.

Following are reports of cases decided by the central appeal judge, Mr. Justice Duff, Ottawa:

Re Joseph Doucet and Albert Thibault.
Motorists and conductors in the employ of a street railway company are not to be exempted merely by reason of their occupation.

The central appeal judge in the case of the Montreal Street Railway Company for the exemption of two of their employees, one a motorist, the other a conductor. Although both were exempted by the local tribunal, there is no evidence fit to be considered by a judicial tribunal to show that either of these employees is indispensable. The appeal in both cases is allowed and the exemption disallowed.

Re Octave A. Maltait.
School teachers in elementary schools are not to be exempted from the group of their occupations.

Re Latourneau (Serial No. 110044 DC) and Re Morel (Serial No. 86278 DC), No. 8 Central Appeal Reports, followed.

Where a decision has been given by the central appeal judge in a case, such decision should be applied and followed, in cases within that class, in all tribunals.

The central appeal judge—This is an appeal by the chief public representative for the military district of Montreal, under the control of the Catholic School Commission. He is in the same position as about 145 teachers under the same control.

On Feb. 19, 1918, the central appeal judge delivered judgment on the cases of Latourneau (Serial No. 110044 DC) and Morel (Serial No. 86278 DC), two of these 145 teachers. In both cases exemption had been refused by Mr. Justice Duff, and on appeal it was held by the central appeal judge that these cases were not essentially distinguishable from those already decided by him touching the exemption of school teachers generally, and the claims for exemption were disallowed in each instance.

The applicants, supported by the Catholic School Commission, had asked leave to appeal to the central appeal judge, the leave was granted on the representation of their counsel that they desired the appeals to be treated as "test cases," there being, as was then stated by their counsel, these 145 cases in Montreal alone which would be governed by the result of the two appeals.

The present case, one of these 145 cases, the circumstances of which do not differ at all from those of Latourneau and Morel, in which, as above mentioned, the central appeal judge has decided that there were no grounds for exemption, was brought before Mr. Justice Archambault, sitting as an appeal tri-

No Occasion To Be Gloomy
(Toronto Star.)
Men in public positions and also citizens of less responsibility should refrain from references to the days we are passing through being the darkest days of the war. Statements to that effect are untrue and they depress the national morale. Recently we have passed through some anxious weeks and there may be others ahead. But we never have had occasion for despair or even despondency. The enemy has made no progress since the end of March. Never again will we have cause for genuine concern unless the enemy makes another great attack with much greater success than he obtained in the one that began on March 21st. Of this there is little prospect on the western front. As to the Italian front we can but wait and hope.

The darkest days of the war were in 1914, when the allies were outnumbered on the western front by three to two, and when the enemy's superiority in guns and munitions and military knowledge was even greater. The enemy was not generally so regarded at the time, when the allies were impatient on the western front, notwithstanding Russia's withdrawal, the allies are almost, if not quite, equal to the enemy in numbers and in war material, and could meet the enemy on absolutely equal terms but for the differences in language and army organization. On the Italian front the enemy may have a considerable superiority in artillery; otherwise there is no occasion for anxiety.
