Political Wiseacres in England Again Express Doubts About Canada's Future Loyalty—The "Foreign Wedge" Bogey

(Times' Special Correspondence)

London, Oct. 22.—Henry Page Croft, M.P., who was just returned from Canada, believes that the problem of the Middle West lies in the excess of American and European settlers over those of British birth. "Here," he states, "American and European immigration is quickly distancing British immigration, and Saskatchewan and Manitoba in a few years' time will have a majority of electors who have not been born under the British flag and to whom the British sovereign and British traditions are regarded as of very little interest in many cases. Indeed, with hostility. To say that these people can be held to the British Empire by sentiment as the British government appear to think, is either pathetic in its ignorance or criminal in its knowledge. Unless British statesmen act and quickly, there is little doubt that a foreign wedge will be driven into the centre of Canada which will threaten the whole future of imperial unity."

In his statement before the dominion's royal commission sitting under the chairmanship of Hon. George B. Foster, Sir Clement Kinloch-Cook, M.P., used almost the same language. In his opinion the necessity for promoting British immigration to Canada was emphasized by the fact that the combined immigration into the dominion from the United States and the continent was greatly in excess of that from this country. He blamed the British government for its attitude of apathy. As far as the dominion was concerned there was a lack of continuity of policy. If there was an imperial board upon which the imperial and dominion governments were represented, all the fluctuations of demand for labor could be made known with authority and without delay.

ECCENTRIC ECCLESIASTICS

Reminiscences By Rev. Forbes Phillips, Author of Casock and Comedy

(London Answers)

The church has no monopoly of eccentricity, but of all institutions it has the largest share.

Some years ago I had to speak at a big public meeting on "Lifeboat Work."

"Have you any fish?" inquired my host. "The last person we had here refused to sleep in a bed. When everyone had retired to rest the whole house of that from this hammering on the wall of our visitor's bedroom. Come and see!"

I entered the room. "And he pointed out two large holes in the wall, where the paper had been peeled away from the plaster disturbed. 'Well, the person we had here last hammered two huge hooked nails into those walls to support a lamp-moon.'"

I had the qualified pleasure of meeting this eccentric at dinner some years after. "Can I serve you some soup?" inquired our hostess. "Never take soup," was the reply. Then, later, "You will have 'home fish'?" The cleric simply shook his head. So he declined dish after dish.

"But what will you have?" inquired the now desperate hostess.

"I should like to have five raisins, one apple, a few nuts, and some oil."

By this time everyone was uncomfortable. A whisper went round that there were no raisins in the house. I suggested that he should go on with the oil and the apple. His face assumed a look of eloquent resignation. The next moment he sprang to his feet and rushed from the room.

The intelligent underfootman had brought in bicycle-ol.

A delightful old clergyman, professor of Greek at my own university, had a habit of forgetting to put on his clothes. Once he walked into college chapel in an old-fashioned nightgown. It was a misty morning early in February. An undergraduate was reading the first lesson, when this silent, ghost-like figure moved along in the dim dawn which crept through the stained-glass windows. One of the dons took his arm and led him out.

On another occasion it was his turn to preach in the cathedral. Instead of stepping into the pulpit, he walked out altogether, and things came to a standstill.

Another old college don was a dresser. One day he met me in the town. "My boy," he said, "I came out to go some where, but it's gone-gone! Can you tell me where I meant to go?" I suggested that he should go back to his college.

What is more I saw him safely there. Later in the evening he sent for me. There was the light of a great discovery in his eyes. "My boy," he said, "it has all come back to me in a flash. I never meant to go anywhere at all. I wanted to write a letter, and I must have missed my way to my library. You will have a glass of wine?" But he forgot to ring the bell. Presently he said: "Do have some more. Now, what have I done with the de- canter?"

Many men's eccentricities are the result of self-hypnotism. I remember once seeing a well-known clergyman walking calmly along during a down-pour of rain, holding his walking stick up, under the impression that it was an umbrella.

A bishop and a well-known scholar was spending the day with me. I took him up to a bedroom to have a wash. "Come in," he said, as I was leaving. "Do you mind reminding?" Then he explained to me that, so soon as he saw a bed, the power of suggestion was so strong that he frequently undressed and went to bed, to the inconvenience of hosts and other folk.

Absent-mindedness is responsible for much amusement. An elderly clergyman, on arrival in Rome, was positive that he had lost some of his luggage, and gave notice at the office; but he was unable to say what the package was like, or even what it was.

It transpired in the course of next day.

Consular Agency at Bay of Islands

Washington, Nov. 1.—By direction of the president, the state department has arranged to open a consular agency at Bay of Islands, Newfoundland, with Oso H. Gould in charge. President Taft's attention was called recently to the importance of such an agency to New England fishing interests.

CLARK AND CLARK, a dainty team of singers and dancers, make an attraction and gave much pleasure at yesterday's performance. The lady of the act in her song numbers is refreshing especially in the singing of "Call me Daddy," which selection perhaps may not be quite understood in the east but it is well rendered. Miss Clark displays an elaborate wardrobe wearing one dress made of tiny glass beads and weighing more than fifty-eight pounds, with small opera hat to match. Mr. Clark is a comedian who easily wins his audience. The pictures shown were of the usual high standard.

DOUBLE VAUDEVILLE BILL AT LYRIC.

Lyric patrons are being treated to a double vaudeville bill the latter part of the week. Both acts appeared yesterday and are of such a nature that all classes found reasons to be pleased. Harry LaSalle, a Mexican novelty juggler and musician gives one of the most pleasing single acts seen at this house for some time. His selections on the guitar are away from the routine path. "The Rosary" is rendered in a unique but captivating manner and his efforts were well rewarded by applause. Another feat worthy of mention exploited by this artist is his step dancing while juggling several Mexican knives.
