

The Union Advocate.

A WEEKLY JOURNAL.

Our Country, with its United Interests.

Newcastle, N. B., Wednesday, February 16, 1876.

EDITORS & PROPRIETORS.

WHOLE No. 432.

W. ROBIN & J. ANSLAW,
OL. IX.—No. 16.
For Sale Cheap For
For Sale Cheap For

CANADA HOUSE,
THAM, N. B. Proprietor.
A large and desirable outlay has been made on this to make it a first class hotel, and tras will find it a desirable temporary recess both as regards location and comfort. situated within two minutes walk of boat landing. The proprietor returns to the public for the encouragement him in the past, and will endeavor by pay and attention to merit the same in the future.
Good Stabling on the Premises.
12th. 1875. 14 ly
WAVELY HOTEL,
CASTLE, N. B. Proprietor.
A large assortment of goods with a quantity of choice have all been selected from the best and most reliable sources and at a price that is sold cheaper than any not superior to any line imported to this Parties wishing fair dealing articles are respectfully invited to call on the proprietor at his stock, as I feel assured that they will be satisfied.
C. OSCAR ERIC
Practical Watchmaker
Tham, N. B., Nov. 30, 74.
MERRY CHRIST AND TO ALL.
An indispensable necessity Season of the year.
Subscriber therefore has he has on hand an assort-EST & MOST FASHI STYLES OF LE HANGING
AND HAND
An assortment of the most Styles of KING & PARLOR ST
to be the cheapest offer in this market.
The Fire Irons, Stoves, A nice assortment of Silver Plated Ware
for XMAS PRESENTS,
Baskets, Castor Stands, Bureaus, Chairs, and other articles, at a price that is with his usual variety of goods, he offers as a special and most reasonable price for XMAS PRESENTS.
FRANCIS J. LEE
Tham, 21st Dec., 1875. ing Machines, with to a keen competition the choice of a FINE HERMOS; and
To every Gentleman
of a MEERSCHAUM
HERMOS; the Chromo-
and gild, and are
I sell all the
ST CLASS MACH
have on hand 100, from the best and most reliable sources, and at a price that is
with his usual variety
of goods, he offers as a special and most reasonable price for XMAS PRE-SENTS.
All machines warranted
for one year.
to induce order
at home and not from abroad.
A. A. LOCKER
Canada House,
Tham, June 18, 1874.
JAMES J. ANSLAW,
NEWCASTLE, N. B.
AGENT FOR THE SUPERIOR
STEEL AND BUR
To every Gentleman
of a MEERSCHAUM
HERMOS; the Chromo-
and gild, and are
I sell all the
ST CLASS MACH
have on hand 100, from
the best and most reliable sources, and at a price
that is
with his usual variety
of goods, he offers as a special and most reasonable price for XMAS PRE-SENTS.
All machines warranted
for one year.
to induce order
at home and not from abroad.
A. A. LOCKER
Canada House,
Tham, June 18, 1874.
JAMES J. ANSLAW,
NEWCASTLE, N. B.
AGENT FOR THE SUPERIOR
STEEL AND BUR

W. & R. BRODIE,
GENERAL
COMMISSION MERCHANTS
AND
DEALERS IN Flour, Produce and Provisions,
No. 40, ST. PAUL STREET, No. 40, Next the Bank of Montreal, 127 ly QUEBEC.
J. & W. REID,
PAPER MAKERS & GENERAL STATIONERS, No. 40, ST. PAUL STREET, No. 40, QUEBEC.
MANUFACTURERS OF
Machine Made Paper Bags, Blank Books, &c., Dealers in all kinds of Paper Stock and Paper Making Supplies, Room Papers,
Hooding Materials,
Scrap Iron & Metals, Naval Stores.
March 12th, 1874. 12 72
HOSSACK, WOODS & Co., IMPORTERS OF STAPLE & FANCY GROCERIES, Manufacturers of
STEAM CONFECTIONERY, FANCY BISCUIT, AND OIL PASTE BLACKING.
PROPRIETORS OF QUEBEC COFFEE & SPICE STEAM MILLS, 22 Notre Dame St., (lower town)
QUEBEC.
March 12th, 1875. march 72
WHITEHEAD & TURNER, Awarded Four First Class Prizes at the Industrial Exhibition, 1871.
Manufacturers of
CORN BROOMS, DUSTERS,
And all descriptions of HAIR AND FANCY BRUSHES, LOWER TOWN,
QUEBEC.
March 12th, 1875. march 72
T. R. JONES & Co., Canterbury Street, ST. JOHN, N. B., Importers of Every Description of British & Foreign Dry Goods,
AND—
MANUFACTURERS OF CLOTHING, Hosiery, Hosiery, Blankets, Lingerie, FURNISHING GOODS,
The best assortment of stock in the lower Provinces for Country Stores, Lumbermen, Mill Owners, Railway Contractors, &c., Wholesale. — Terms Liberal.
July 1, 1874. 21 ly
S. F. SHUTE,
Direct Importer of Fine Watches, Rich Jewellery, Electro-plated Ware, Clocks, Fancy Goods, &c., Orders Solicited, and goods sent to responsible parties on approval.
WATCH REPAIRING, in all its branches promptly attended to.
AGENT for the "Florence" Sewing Machine, and "Morrison & Co's" PERFECTED SEWING MACHINES.
Remember the Place.
S. F. SHUTE,
Queen St., Fredericton, N. B.
Dec. 22nd, 1875. 24 ly
JAMES S. NEILL,
Importer, Wholesale & Retail Dealer in Hardware, Glass, Paint, Oil, Turpentine and Putty BAR IRON'S STEEL, ALL KINDS OF AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENTS, OPPOSITE COUNTY COURT HOUSE, QUEEN STREET, FREDERICTON, N. B.
Dec. 22nd, 1874. 24 ly
LUMBERERS, ATTENTION!
I AM SOLE AGENT FOR THE WOODBRIDGE SAW MILL, which with the late improvements, stands unrivalled.
This Machine requires no expensive puffing, as it has by its own merits become the leading Saw Mill of Canada.
It is so geared that the Saw makes two revolutions to one stroke of the piston, thus avoiding the shaking caused by direct action.
CHAS. C. CARLILE,
Jan. 20th, 1874.
TO MILL OWNERS!
THOMAS B. PEACE, of New York, a Practical Saw Manufacturer of 20 years experience, has just opened a Saw Mill at the "Waverly" Hotel, and is prepared to attend to professional attention.
Repairing made a Specialty.
A fine assortment of Saws of all kinds expected in a few days.
SHOP—WATER STREET, N. B.
May 10, '75. 12 ly CHATHAM, N. B.
1875. TRUNKS. 1875.
LARGE ASSORTMENT OF TRUNKS, &c., FOR SPRING TRADE.
Ladies' Saratoga Trunks, in Zinc and Leather; Gent's Extra Bound do. do.; Solid Leather Overland Trunks and Valises; Canvas, Embossed & Comp. Packing Trunks, and Trunks of every description made to order; Ladies' Reticles and Shopping Satchels; Gent's Pail Bags; Boys' School Satchels.
W. H. KNOWLES,
Trunk Factory, 49 German St., St. John.
Receipt Books,
Draft Books,
Notes of Hand.
Usually kept on hand or printed to order.

M. K. MORRISON, WHOLESALE & RETAIL DEALER IN DRY GOODS, GROCERIES, PROVISIONS, GLASSWARE, WOODENWARE, HARDWARE,
BOOTS AND SHOES.
And a variety of other Goods suitable for general use.
AGENT for the Steamer City of St. John.
DALHOUSIE, N. B.
July 13, 1875. 17
MITCHELL & CO.,
GENERAL
COMMISSION MERCHANTS
—AND—
SHIPPING AGENTS, 22 & 23.....COMMON STREET, MONTREAL.
August 29, 1874. sep 9
W. H. NAPIER,
BATHURST VILLAGE, Is prepared to attend to Auction Sales in town and country at shortest notice.
Bathurst, May 1st, 1875.
NOTICE TO BUILDERS.
R. BLAKE
Has now in full operation, his ROTARY STEAM SAW MILL for the manufacture of DIMENSIONED LUMBER OF ALL SIZES.
DOORS, SASHES, BLINDS &c.
LUMBER PLANED & MATCHED.
Arrangements will shortly be made for the manufacture of Shingles & Clapboards.
Orders respectfully solicited.
ALL WORK WARRANTED TO GIVE SATIS-FACTION.
Chatham, Oct. 10, 1874. 21 CARD.
THE Subscriber respectfully announces that he has opened a new Shop near the Ferry Landing, CHATHAM, where he is prepared to execute, in the very best style of workmanship, all kinds of MILL WORK AND GENERAL JOBBING, having obtained improved machinery for that purpose.
Mortising Machines, and Hand Circular Sawing Machines, for Joiners' use, made to order.
JOHN THORNTON,
Chatham, May 18, 1875. 19 ly
D. MACEE & CO., Manufacturers of
HATS, CAPS & FURS,
Wholesale,
51 KING ST., ST. JOHN, N. B.
D. MAGEE. M. F. MANKS.
April 21st, 1874. 23 ly MAIL STAGE.
THE Subscriber has received the Contract for carrying the Mails between the RAILWAY STATION & BATHURST POST OFFICE.
AND IS PREPARED TO CARRY PASSENGERS AND BAGGAGE TO MEET ALL TRAINS.
ORDERS left at his residence will be tended to.
THOS. A. HARRIS.
Bathurst, Nov. 15, 1875. 19 ly
NOTICE! NOTICE!
The Subscriber begs to intimate to the inhabitants of Newcastle and vicinity, that he has opened a BAKERY with every facility on CASTLE STREET, adjoining the Store of James White, and is now prepared to furnish all kinds of PLAIN, FANCY
—AND—ORNAMENTAL BAKING to all who may patronize him, and trusts by producing a FIRST CLASS ARTICLE, EQUAL IN EVERY RESPECT to that obtained abroad, To receive a liberal share of patronage in this community.
HENRY WYSE, JR.
Newcastle, 7th Sept., 1875. 8
GLASS! GLASS!
IN STOCK:
1000 BOXES GLASS, Assorted Sizes.
JUST RECEIVED:
4 TONS W. LEAD, A 1; 49 barrels RAW & BOILED OIL; 6 lbs.
TURPENTINE; 2 tons PUTTY.
WHICH WILL BE SOLD CHEAP.
BLAKESLEE & WHITEHEAD,
23 German St., St. John, N. B.
Oct. 5
DENTISTRY.
D. A. BAXTER,
DENTIST!
Intends leaving BATHURST for DALHOUSIE the FIRST OF JANUARY, where he will remain FIVE WEEKS ONLY.
Will be in CAMPBELLTON the FIFTH OF FEBRUARY, and CHATHAM the FIRST OF MARCH, for a short time.
December 1st, 1875. 22

FIRE BRANCH.
ROBERT MARSHALL'S
FIRE AND MARINE AGENCY.
ST. JOHN, N. B.
Applications may be made to the following Representatives:
NEWCASTLE—A. A. Davidson, M. Adams.
CHATHAM—T. F. Gillespie, W. Wilkinson.
BATHURST—Anthony Rainey.
DALHOUSIE—George Haddow.
RICHMOND—H. Livingston, J. D. Phinney.
Imperial Fire Insurance Com'y OF LONDON, ESTABLISHED 1802.
Capital and Cash Assets exceed £2,000,000.
The Etna Insurance Com'y.
INCORPORATED 1819.
Cash Capital and Assets over $6,000,000.
The Hartford Fire Insurance Com'y.
INCORPORATED 1801.
Cash Capital and Assets over $2,500,000.
BRITISH AMERICA ASSURANCE COMPANY, ESTABLISHED 1833.
Capital and Assets $500,000. Its funds are invested in undoubted securities.
PHENIX COMPANY OF BROOKLYN.
INCORPORATED 1837.
Cash Capital & accumulated fund $2,000,000.
Dwelling Houses, whether built or in course of construction, as well as Furniture, containing therein, insured for terms of one or three years, at lowest rates. Steam Saw Mills, Vessels on the stocks—or in port, Warehouses, Merchandise and Insurable property of every description covered on the lowest possible terms.
ROBERT MARSHALL,
GENERAL AGENT, NOTARY PUBLIC AND BROKER.
March 23, 1875. 20
The Citizens' Insurance Com'y.
FIRE, LIFE, ACCIDENT & GUARANTEE.
Capital, $2,000,000.
HEAD OFFICE, — MONTREAL.
SIR HUGH ALLAN, President.
INCORPORATED 1819.
Every description of Insurance effected at lowest rates on application to A. E. ALEXANDER,
Agent for North Shore,
Bathurst, Nov. 5, 1875. 13 ly
B. WILKINSON,
MILLWRIGHT AND ENGINEER.
Mill Work of all kinds attended to.
ORDERS FOR Iron and Wood Working Machinery WILL RECEIVE PROMPT ATTENTION.
All necessary information given.
RESIDENCE—Near the Court House, Newcastle.
December 7, 1875. 3mpd-8 TAILORING.
The Subscriber is prepared to MAKE UP
GENTLEMEN'S CLOTHING
In all the Latest Styles.
NEW FASHIONS CONSTANTLY RECEIVED.
SHOP—In the building owned by Mr.
Jos. Hays, fronting the Square, NEWCASTLE.
December 7, 1875. 8
NOTICE.
W. J. WILLIAMS,
PHOTOGRAPHER!
HAS OPENED HIS NEW BUILDING, PUBLIC WHARF, NEWCASTLE.
—WITH A—
Choice Stock of SEWING MACHINES, Picture Frames, Mouldings, Steel Engraving, &c., &c.
Which he will sell at his usual Low Prices.
PHOTOGRAPHS of all sizes, in the latest Style of the Art.
OLD PICTURES COPIED AND ENLARGED, and nicely framed.
In connection with the above we are running an Oyster and Dining Room.
Where Oysters and Meals can be obtained at the SHORTEST NOTICE.
W. J. WILLIAMS & CO.
November 25, 1875. 24
MIRAMICHI FOUNDRY,
Water St., - Chatham, N. B.
GENERAL
IRON AND BRASS FOUNDERS, MANUFACTURERS OF
STEAM ENGINES, BOILERS, AND MILL MACHINERY.
Ship, Plough, Stone, Cemetery, and every description of Castings.
CONSTANTLY ON HAND AN ASSORTMENT OF Cooking, Hall & Parlour Stoves.
ORDERS may be addressed to JAMES W.
FRASER.
December 15, 1875. 15
PAINTS, OILS,
VARNISH, BRUSHES,
NAILS, SPIKES.
SHIP CHANDLERY GOODS MILL SUPPLIES, STEAM PACKING, &c., &c., &c.
Constantly on hand.
FOR SALE CHEAP—FOR CASH ROBT. B. PATTERSON.
Chatham, May 13, 1878. 16
JOHN W. CAMPBELL,
DALHOUSIE, N. B.,
AUCTIONEER FOR COUNTIES OF RESTIGOUCHE & NOVA SCOTIA
All Business connected with Auction Sales in these Counties will receive prompt attention. Goods and produce sold on Commission.
Dalhousie, Oct. 30, 1875. 19 nov10

Selected Literature.
LOVE'S VICTORY.
BY B. L. FAIRBANKS.
Published by Harper Brothers.
SCENE THE SECOND.
IN BELGRAVIA.
CHAPTER VIII.
LAURA'S DREAM.
'Dear child, while my head was bowed down by shame, and darkness encompassed me, I tried hard to believe him. I fought with my reason, with my sense of right and wrong, and said, 'he can not be guilty; his word is sufficient.' But the missing key was found in his office coat—the missing book at his lodgings; and when these proofs were brought forward, and I heard the damning testimony of a fellow-clerk, the comments of the people, the reluctant admission of his own counsel that he did not see how he could resist the evidence, and that all he could do was to plead the extenuating circumstances of youth and indiscretion—when I thought the summing-up of the judge, and the rapid decision of the jury, 'Guilty!' —hope died utterly away, and I could no longer doubt the guilt of the brother I had loved so dearly.'
'Even then he declared his innocence?'
'To the last. Before sentence was passed, he said proudly, in reply to an observation made by the judge in reference to the plea for mercy, 'I do not ask for mercy, my lord, for that would carry with it an admission of guilt. I am as one in a web, and I am innocent, as I hope for future mercy.' The judge rebuked him for his obstinacy, and sentenced him to transportation for life. I bade him goodbye as though he were on his deathbed.'
'Oh, father, it was hard!'
'It was just. His last words to me were, 'Brother, the day may come when you will repent your injustice; and I told him that the object of my life should be the restitution of the money he had embezzled.
He made a gesture of despair, and we parted forever. Until that day I did not realize how terrible was the blow that had fallen upon me; but the knowledge came swiftly. The moment I stepped out from the prison-door, after that last interview with my brother, the world was changed to me. Every friend and acquaintance fell away from me, and would know me no more! Not one merciful word, not one kind look was given to me; not one hand clasped me in friendship; I was tainted and disgraced; my brother's infamy had made me infamous. You know the rest; you know how vainly I strove to save; and though you tried to help me, poor child, I might have died with the debt of shame still clinging to me had it not been for the noble-hearted man who, for your sake, supplied me with the means to repay the money my brother had stolen.'
Both her sympathy with her father and her joy at the confirmation of her dearest hope kept Laura silent; but the unspoken words were in her mind, 'For my sake! Be still, my heart. For my sake!' Over the despairing story what bright clouds were stealing to blot it out forever!
'Again dear child,' continued her father, in a quieter tone, 'shall this story, with my consent, pass my lips. I should not have told it now but that it seemed to me necessary to show the generous kindness and nobility of our best friend in his true light. No words of mine can express my gratitude. Last week for the first time since I left the bank, I passed the bank-door as the clerks came out, and then I knew that the story of the restitution was known, and that my shame was wiped away. They raised their hats to me—to me, the poor hall-porter!
The youngsters who used to avoid me clustered around me, and held out their hands to me. With the pressure of their young fingers upon mine, with the music of their kind voices ringing in my heart, I could not help but—I cried for joy!
There were tears in his eyes now.
Brighter grew the clouds in Laura's dream.
'All this has our noble friend done for me, for your sake, dear child—Through him we are here, honored and respected. He has restored to me my debt, for your dear sake—I'm his father now, and you can repay him.'
'How?' asked Laura, shyly, and in a voice so low that, had her head not rested on his breast, he could not have heard it.
'That is his secret, which he wishes to tell you himself. But can you not guess how you can repay him?'
'I think I can,' she whispered.
'Yes, you will, dear child.'
'Lord, bless you! What joy it brings to me to know that your heart is in your words. I have not suffered in vain.' The curtains were gently drawn apart, and another person entered the recess. 'See he is here—our friend and benefactor—the restorer of my honor.'

He kissed her with great tenderness, and releasing himself from her embrace, left the place. Laura stood in blissful silence for a few moments, with night's soft light shining on her face. Then, turning her head, she saw standing by her side—Mr. Armstrong!
CHAPTER IX.
A DECLARATION OF LOVE.
It is not often that the dream of a life is shattered in an instant of time.
Generally, the conviction that we have been living in a shadow-land, made bright by hopes which are never to be realized, comes only by gradual stages, and in such a manner as to lessen the bitterness of the shock. We fight against our reason; we question and doubt; we find and invent excuses; we are so tenacious of our treasure, so unwilling to be robbed and disenchanted, that we obstinately close our eyes to the fact.
The woman we love is false. Who dare say so? We look with anger on the person who first whispers the reason in our ears, and were it in our power to inflict a mortal injury upon him, we would do it without compunction, and find justification for the act in his baseness. He was our friend; he is no longer so. We used to confide in him; he is no longer worthy of our confidence.
'Why, it was to this very man that we first confessed our love for the best and purest being the world ever contained; it was to him we poured out our grief when, ungrateful that we were, we fancied she was cold to us—to him we poured out our joy when she spoke the dear and precious words which made the days fairer and the flowers more beautiful, and which kindled in our heart, a star of love, and faith, and truth, the light of which could never be dimmed. And now this false friend has played the traitor, and has muttered black treason to us. Out upon him!— Never again shall our hands be clasped in friendship; the mask has dropped from his treacherous face.
He goes from our presence with a sad countenance, and when next we meet we are strangers—as we should always have been but for our folly and trustfulness. Yet his words have left a sting, and we feel the smart. They recur to us during the sleepless night of his life's disclosure, and our brain is alive with uneasy doubts.
Babeve and anon through the restless hours they pale in the light of the star of love that shines in our heart. Her face, with a smile upon it, rises to our imagination, and gives him the lie. 'Can you mistrust me?' it expresses. 'Look in my eyes for truth.' We look, and find it. But the doubts arise again. We throw the blame of our suffering upon the false friend, and it intensifies the wrong he has done us. When we see her again, her face seems to reproach us; but she smiles as she did yesterday, and her embrace is not less warm; her hand lies in ours, her lips are as soft and willing.
The doubts have fled; we have lost a friend, but love, and faith, and truth remain. The star shines brightly. Yet within a week we are conscious of a change in her;
what change and how it came we know not, but it is there. (It is not only with the leaves of a flower that
'He loves me—loves me not,' is played; and men and women are seldom so single-hearted as Margaret as to play it but once in life.)
The doubts revive, and the sting which we thought her constancy had plucked out, smart again. And we hear other whispers. We fight and struggle against them; the fault is in ourselves, not in her. Yet we cannot dwell so long on this. In her manner is not the same. She is more beautiful than ever, but her lips smile less frequently. The grateful and kindly feelings toward our kind, which our love brought prominently into play, are awakening; a beggar who stands at the corner of the street in which she dwells suffers from this. We used to give alms to the beggar; to-day we pass him by without a thought. We study the history of our acquaintanceship
and love; we dwell on the memory of words, and looks and kisses which we have treasured in our heart of hearts. Undoubtedly she is colder than she was; her enthusiasm in four amity; the mask has
dropped from his treacherous face.
The doubts arise again. We throw
the blame of our suffering upon the
false friend, and it intensifies the
wrong he has done us. When we
see her again, her face seems to reproach us; but she smiles as she did
yesterday, and her embrace is not
less warm; her hand lies in ours, her
lips are as soft and willing.
The doubts have fled; we have
lost a friend, but love, and faith, and
truth remain. The star shines
brightly. Yet within a week we
are conscious of a change in her;
what change and how it came we
know not, but it is there. (It is not
only with the leaves of a flower that
'He loves me—loves me not,' is
played; and men and women are
 seldom so single-hearted as Margaret as to play it but once in life.)
The doubts revive, and the sting
which we thought her constancy had
plucked out, smart again. And we
hear other whispers. We fight and
struggle against them; the fault is in
ourselves, not in her. Yet we cannot
dwell so long on this. In her manner
is not the same. She is more beautiful
than ever, but her lips smile less frequently. The grateful and kindly
feelings toward our kind, which our
love brought prominently into play,
are awakening; a beggar who stands
at the corner of the street in which
she dwells suffers from this. We used
to give alms to the beggar; to-day we
pass him by without a thought. We
study the history of our acquaintanceship
and love; we dwell on the
memory of words, and looks and
kisses which we have treasured in
our heart of hearts. Undoubtedly
she is colder than she was; her enthusiasm in four amity; the mask has
dropped from his treacherous face.
The doubts arise again. We throw
the blame of our suffering upon the
false friend, and it intensifies the
wrong he has done us. When we
see her again, her face seems to reproach us; but she smiles as she did
yesterday, and her embrace is not
less warm; her hand lies in ours, her
lips are as soft and willing.
The doubts have fled; we have
lost a friend, but love, and faith, and
truth remain. The star shines
brightly. Yet within a week we
are conscious of a change in her;
what change and how it came we
know not, but it is there. (It is not
only with the leaves of a flower that
'He loves me—loves me not,' is
played; and men and women are
 seldom so single-hearted as Margaret as to play it but once in life.)
The doubts revive, and the sting
which we thought her constancy had
plucked out, smart again. And we hear other whispers. We fight and
struggle against them; the fault is in
ourselves, not in her. Yet we cannot
dwell so long on this. In her manner
is not the same. She is more beautiful
than ever, but her lips smile less frequently. The grateful and kindly
feelings toward our kind, which our
love brought prominently into play,
are awakening; a beggar who stands
at the corner of the street in which
she dwells suffers from this. We used
to give alms to the beggar; to-day we
pass him by without a thought. We
study the history of our acquaintanceship
and love; we dwell on the
memory of words, and looks and
kisses which we have treasured in
our heart of hearts. Undoubtedly
she is colder than she was; her enthusiasm in four amity; the mask has
dropped from his treacherous face.
The doubts arise again. We throw
the blame of our suffering upon the
false friend, and it intensifies the
wrong he has done us. When we
see her again, her face seems to reproach us; but she smiles as she did
yesterday, and her embrace is not
less warm; her hand lies in ours, her
lips are as soft and willing.
The doubts have fled; we have
lost a friend, but love, and faith, and
truth remain. The star shines
brightly. Yet within a week we
are conscious of a change in her;
what change and how it came we
know not, but it is there. (It is not
only with the leaves of a flower that
'He loves me—loves me not,' is
played; and men and women are
 seldom so single-hearted as Margaret as to play it but once in life.)
The doubts revive, and the sting
which we thought her constancy had
plucked out, smart again. And we hear other whispers. We fight and
struggle against them; the fault is in
ourselves, not in her. Yet we cannot
dwell so long on this. In her manner
is not the same. She is more beautiful
than ever, but her lips smile less frequently. The grateful and kindly
feelings toward our kind, which our
love brought prominently into play,
are awakening; a beggar who stands
at the corner of the street in which
she dwells suffers from this. We used
to give alms to the beggar; to-day we
pass him by without a thought. We
study the history of our acquaintanceship
and love; we dwell on the
memory of words, and looks and
kisses which we have treasured in
our heart of hearts. Undoubtedly
she is colder than she was; her enthusiasm in four amity; the mask has
dropped from his treacherous face.
The doubts arise again. We throw
the blame of our suffering upon the
false friend, and it intensifies the
wrong he has done us. When we
see her again, her face seems to reproach us; but she smiles as she did
yesterday, and her embrace is not
less warm; her hand lies in ours, her
lips are as soft and willing.
The doubts have fled; we have
lost a friend, but love, and faith, and
truth remain. The star shines
brightly. Yet within a week we
are conscious of a change in her;
what change and how it came we
know not, but it is there. (It is not
only with the leaves of a flower that
'He loves me—loves me not,' is
played; and men and women are
 seldom so single-hearted as Margaret as to play it but once in life.)
The doubts revive, and the sting
which we thought her constancy had
plucked out, smart again. And we hear other whispers. We fight and
struggle against them; the fault is in
ourselves, not in her. Yet we cannot
dwell so long on this. In her manner
is not the same. She is more beautiful
than ever, but her lips smile less frequently. The grateful and kindly
feelings toward our kind, which our
love brought prominently into play,
are awakening; a beggar who stands
at the corner of the street in which
she dwells suffers from this. We used
to give alms to the beggar; to-day we
pass him by without a thought. We
study the history of our acquaintanceship
and love; we dwell on the
memory of words, and looks and
kisses which we have treasured in
our heart of hearts. Undoubtedly
she is colder than she was; her enthusiasm in four amity; the mask has
dropped from his treacherous face.
The doubts arise again. We throw
the blame of our suffering upon the
false friend, and it intensifies the
wrong he has done us. When we
see her again, her face seems to reproach us; but she smiles as she did
yesterday, and her embrace is not
less warm; her hand lies in ours, her
lips are as soft and willing.
The doubts have fled; we have
lost a friend, but love, and faith, and
truth remain. The star shines
brightly. Yet within a week we
are conscious of a change in her;
what change and how it came we
know not, but it is there. (It is not
only with the leaves of a flower that
'He loves me—loves me not,' is
played; and men and women are
 seldom so single-hearted as Margaret as to play it but once in life.)
The doubts revive, and the sting
which we thought her constancy had
plucked out, smart again. And we hear other whispers. We fight and
struggle against them; the fault is in
ourselves, not in her. Yet we cannot
dwell so long on this. In her manner
is not the same. She is more beautiful
than ever, but her lips smile less frequently. The grateful and kindly
feelings toward our kind, which our
love brought prominently into play,
are awakening; a beggar who stands
at the corner of the street in which
she dwells suffers from this. We used
to give alms to the beggar; to-day we
pass him by without a thought. We
study the history of our acquaintanceship
and love; we dwell on the
memory of words, and looks and
kisses which we have treasured in
our heart of hearts. Undoubtedly
she is colder than she was; her enthusiasm in four amity; the mask has
dropped from his treacherous face.
The doubts arise again. We throw
the blame of our suffering upon the
false friend, and it intensifies the
wrong he has done us. When we
see her again, her face seems to reproach us; but she smiles as she did
yesterday, and her embrace is not
less warm; her hand lies in ours, her
lips are as soft and willing.
The doubts have fled; we have
lost a friend, but love, and faith, and
truth remain. The star shines
brightly. Yet within a week we
are conscious of a change in her;
what change and how it came we
know not, but it is there. (It is not
only with the leaves of a flower that
'He loves me—loves me not,' is
played; and men and women are
 seldom so single-hearted as Margaret as to play it but once in life.)
The doubts revive, and the sting
which we thought her constancy had
plucked out, smart again. And we hear other whispers. We fight and
struggle against them; the fault is in
ourselves, not in her. Yet we cannot
dwell so long on this. In her manner
is not the same. She is more beautiful
than ever, but her lips smile less
frequently. The grateful and kindly
feelings toward our kind, which our
love brought prominently into play,
are awakening; a beggar who stands
at the corner of the street in which
she dwells suffers from this. We used
to give alms to the beggar; to-day we
pass him by without a thought. We
study the history of our acquaintanceship
and love; we dwell on the
memory of words, and looks and
kisses which we have treasured in
our heart of hearts. Undoubtedly
she is colder than she was; her enthusiasm in four amity; the mask has
dropped from his treacherous face.
The doubts arise again. We throw
the blame of our suffering upon the
false friend, and it intensifies the
wrong he has done us. When we
see her again, her face seems to reproach us; but she smiles as she did
yesterday, and her embrace is not
less warm; her hand lies in ours, her
lips are as soft and willing.
The doubts have fled; we have
lost a friend, but love, and faith, and
truth remain. The star shines
brightly. Yet within a week we
are conscious of a change in her;
what change and how it came we
know not, but it is there. (It is not
only with the leaves of a flower that
'He loves me—loves me not,' is
played; and men and women are
 seldom so single-hearted as Margaret as to play it but once in life.)
The doubts revive, and the sting
which we thought her constancy had
plucked out, smart again. And we
hear other whispers. We fight and
struggle against them; the fault is in
ourselves, not in her. Yet we cannot
dwell so long on this. In her manner
is not the same. She is more beautiful
than ever, but her lips smile less
frequently. The grateful and kindly
feelings toward our kind, which our
love brought prominently into play,
are awakening; a beggar who stands
at the corner of the street in which
she dwells suffers from this. We used
to give alms to the beggar; to-day we
pass him by without a thought. We
study the history of our acquaintanceship
and love; we dwell on the
memory of words, and looks and
kisses which we have treasured in
our heart of hearts. Undoubtedly
she is colder than she was; her enthusiasm in four amity; the mask has
dropped from his treacherous face.
The doubts arise again. We throw
the blame of our suffering upon the
false friend, and it intensifies the
wrong he has done us. When we
see her again, her face seems to reproach us; but she smiles as she did
yesterday, and her embrace is not
less warm; her hand lies in ours, her
lips are as soft and willing.
The doubts have fled; we have
lost a friend, but love, and faith, and
truth remain. The star shines
brightly. Yet within a week we
are conscious of a change in her;
what change and how it came we
know not, but it is there. (It is not
only with the leaves of a flower that
'He loves me—loves me not,' is
played; and men and women are
 seldom so single-hearted as Margaret as to play it but once in life.)
The doubts revive, and the sting
which we thought her constancy had
plucked out, smart again. And we
hear other whispers. We fight and
struggle against them; the fault is in
ourselves, not in her. Yet we cannot
dwell so long on this. In her manner
is not the same. She is more beautiful
than ever, but her lips smile less
frequently. The grateful and kindly
feelings toward our kind, which our
love brought prominently into play,
are awakening; a beggar who stands
at the corner of the street in which
she dwells suffers from this. We used
to give alms to the beggar; to-day we
pass him by without a thought. We
study the history of our acquaintanceship
and love; we dwell on the
memory of words, and looks and
kisses which we have treasured in
our heart of hearts. Undoubtedly
she is colder than she was; her enthusiasm in four amity; the mask has
dropped from his treacherous face.
The doubts arise again. We throw
the blame of our suffering upon the
false friend, and it intensifies the
wrong he has done us. When we
see her again, her face seems to reproach us; but she smiles as she did
yesterday, and her embrace is not
less warm; her hand lies in ours, her
lips are as soft and willing.
The doubts have fled; we have
lost a friend, but love, and faith, and
truth remain. The star shines
brightly. Yet within a week we
are conscious of a change in her;
what change and how it came we
know not, but it is there. (It is not
only with the leaves of a flower that
'He loves me—loves me not,' is
played; and men and women are
 seldom so single-hearted as Margaret as to play it but once in life.)
The doubts revive, and the sting
which we thought her constancy had
plucked out, smart again. And we hear