BRITISH ENGINEERS TO VISIT VICTORIA

Next summer Victoria will be visited by a party of engineering and scientific on the street. She was living with an aunt, and despite her relatives' objec-tions decided to marry the man who had been so faithful in his search for As most of these men will later on in life be identified with the great en-gineering projects of the world, the im-portance of their visit to this country can scarcely be over estimated. Nugent M. Clougher, a young engireer of London, is in the city to-day arranging the details of the trip. It was not his intention to come as far west as British Columbia, but at the suggestion of Lord Strathcona he came through. The visit will only occupy eight weeks in this country, so the time at the disposal of the party is not very great. It is the intention, how-ever, if time permits, to visit the mills, sugar refinery and power plant at Van-couver, and from Victoria to visit the smelters, sawmills and coal mines of the Island. The C. P. R. are taking up the project enthusiastically, and Mr.
