THE RAILWAY and THE HIGHWAY

The last quarter of the nineteenth century has been, on the American continent, the era of railway development.

The first quarter of the twentieth century will be the era of highway development. The sums expended in railway construction in Canada alone during the last forty years have exceeded those expended in highway construction.

The freight rates on farm produce are a frequent subject of complaint. The farmer gets his produce consigned to a warehouse, where it is piled up and waits for a truck to take it to the market.

Railways have been described as the arteries of commerce. But if that is their function then the highways are the smaller veins and arteries through which commerce is circulated to every remote part of the body politic.

It will be to the interest of all persons having farms or country properties for sale, to communicate with us at once.

HARVEY STATION NOTES.

Harvey Station, Dec. 5.—Rev. W. A. Ross, M. A., field secretary for the N. B. and P. E. I. S. S. association, visited this place last Sabbath and gave stirring addresses on the need of religious education for the growing boys and girls.

The children of the mission band of this village gave an excellent concert last night in the church. An interesting programme of recitations, choruses, solos, dialogues, etc., was very well rendered.

Our forefathers, the pioneers of the highway, were not so well equipped as we are today. They had to make their own roads, and they had to maintain them.

The Rev. A. Barton, of Prince William, passed through here yesterday on his way to St. John, N. B.

Our forefathers, the pioneers of the highway, were not so well equipped as we are today. They had to make their own roads, and they had to maintain them.
