Down To Brass Tacks

Never before since we claimed a right to be considered a free, self-governing country, had Canadians such a sense of partnership in Canadian prosperity as we have today. Not long ago we had wide-open floodgates of immigration, packed steamships, railways vibrating with colonist cars, tourist cars and box cars clanking to the tune of people coming in and goods going out. We all rejoiced in a great uplifting dynamo of prosperity that none of us stopped to trace up. How long it would last none of us knew, we hoped—forever. But we knew better. The turn came. Tight money caused by wars that upset credit, upheavals of one kind or another in various countries, real estate boomsters by the hundred thousand whose only aim in life was to inflate foot-frontage values—suddenly unable to pay their rent, thank God! Then the great war that got all the financial centres and manufacturing nations more or less by the throat, got this country in its grip as never we knew it before. Suddenly as a people we were "down to the brass tacks," not only in sending men to the front, but in keeping the people at home as prosperous as possible. Did we shirk either of these great tasks? Not much! We have tackled both in the spirit of a free, independent people. Our men have landed in England. Our farmers are sending out the wheat at high prices. Our manufacturers are keeping the factories open. Our workmen are kept on the payrolls that sustain prosperity. The movement has been started. Nor in this time of national conservation and reconstruction it is absolutely up to us as citizens of Canada to keep every dollar circulating for goods made by our own people.

Work For All

If the men and women of Canada will buy nothing but "Canadian-Made" Goods from now to January First, every workman in Canada will be employed and the country will enjoy a period of prosperity hitherto undreamed of.

Canadian manufacturers are doing their duty under present stress in endeavoring to keep plants running and men employed regardless of profits.

Good Canadians will show enlightened patriotism, as well as sound business common sense, by buying only "Made in Canada" goods, thus building up their own prosperity and looking after those who remain at home.

And "Made in Canada" goods offer equal value with those made anywhere else in the world.
